'Mingling' Answer to Discrimination Says Indian

TORONTO (CP) — A young Indian princess who says the answer to discrimination is to "mingle," talked Thursday about her plans to make a career out of helping her people.

Evelyn Joseph, 18, was chosen national Indian princess for 1969 from among seven contestants at a pageant on the Tobique reserve in New Brunswick Tuesday.

She won $25 and two trips anywhere in the world. She plans to go to Africa and Hawaii, she said in an interview. Thursday in Toronto on her way back to her home on the Capilana Reserve in North Vancouver.

When she graduates from high school she intends to do some teaching—and help her people by stressing education and culture.

She attended elementary school on her home reserve, then went to an integrated jun-ior high school.

WILL TAKE GRADE 12

In September she will take Grade 12 at a high school where she says discrimination is negligible.

"Some of the Indians—there are 40 of us and 1,100 kids in the whole school—think they are ignored by the others.

"But they form a group of their own and that might be the trouble. Me? I mingle."

Miss Joseph is from the Squamish tribe and she is helping set up a students' council on the reserve to work with the Squamish council. As far as she knows, this is the first case of an Indian youth council working with the tribe's elders.

She also works with younger children on the reserve, helping them learn such Indian cultures as beadwork, hand carving, and native sports like lacrosse.

After high school she intends to go to the Mormon-founded Brigham Young University in Salt Lake City, Utah. The tribe will pay her fees.

"I'll have to make some sacrifices there. They're strict and you can't drink, smoke, drink tea or coffee on the campus. I smoke and I love tea."

Aunt Rachel's Cookie Recipe

By MARY MOORE

QUESTION: I have misplaced a recipe you gave some time ago . . . called Aunt Rachel's Cookies, made with sour cream and raisins among other ingredients. My family enjoyed these immensely. . . . Barbara M.

ANSWER: That was ten years ago Barbara.

AUNT RACHEL'S COOKIES (delicious buttery, crisp)

2 1-3 cups sifted all - purpose flour
¾ tsp. baking soda
1 tsp. baking powder
½ tsp. salt
½ cup butter
1 tbsp. shortening
1 cup sugar
1 egg
1-3 cup sour cream
¼ tsp. vanilla
½ to ¾ cup steamed and dried raisins.

Sift sifted flour with soda, baking powder and salt. Cream shortening and butter until smooth; stir in flavoring. Then cream in sugar thoroughly. Beat in egg until fluffy, then stir in flour mixture and the cream alternately in 2 or 3 portions, mixing until just smooth after each. Add dried raisins. Chill dough. Roll out on lightly floured pastry cloth or board about 3-16" thick. Cut out with 3½ to 3" scalloped cutter. Place on greased cookie sheets and bake 13 to 15 min. at 375 deg. Fahr. Remove from pan to cake rack immediately. Yield 4 doz.

QUESTION: Could you tell me what is wrong with my dumplings? They are fluffy on the outside and hard in the middle . . . Mrs. Milton H.

ANSWER: Yes I can but you did not include your address. If you had I could have mailed this to you two months ago. Please include stamped self-addressed envelope and 10 cents next time.

DUMPLINGS

Sift together 1¼ cups sifted all-purpose flour, 3 tsps. baking powder, ¾ tsp. salt. Quickly stir in ¾ cup milk. Dietitians Say You Are What You Eat

By DORIS CLARK

"You are what you eat." So say the dietitians. What on earth do they mean? Do I look like a tomato, simply because I love salads? Shucks, no. Although folk who gobble gobs of garlic do get to smell odd.

But there is a definite way in which they are right — the food experts, I mean; because our bodies are physical, chemical entities (among many remarkable other things). If we consume the elements needed to make bone, flesh, hair, blood, you, in the right proportions, we will look and feel good.

A balanced diet makes for clear skin, shining hair, sparkling eyes. Even a good disposition. But not enough of the right things may bring about lassitude, along with dull hair, pale face, pimply complexion, or downright illness.

Food is plentiful in Canada. We have the known fact. No one on get Canada's Food Guide. Are we going to eat to live or accept pale-faced hail-life?

Dear Doris: I need information as regards a lawn wedding, small affair. As I have never put on a wedding, nor helped in any, I am completely lost. . . .

Gowns for bride and two bridesmaids, mother's dress, hat, etc. Lawn decorations, lunch, etc.

Thank you ever so much, as I know with you, I will get results. — At Sea.

Dear At. Sea: It is a bit overwhelming at first, isn't it? But it comes down to earth when you apply the one-thing why we put together a Wedding Count Down. Lists what you should do and how far ahead of time you should do it. I'll send you one. And one about refreshments and duties of everybody.

You haven't said what flowers are blooming in your garden. If I could dream up a rose arbor for you, this would mean perfection. Bride and groom would stand right there for the ceremony.

The nautical beauty of a garden hardly needs decoration, but if you need a little more shade you may want to add lawn umbrellas; and perhaps a few tubs of flowers if roses are short on bloom.

Bridal and bridesmaids gowns may be either formal or informal; mother-of-the-bride may wear postal dress or silk suit. Hat and gloves should be worn during the ceremony.

Ann Landers

Wrangle Over Ring Not A Good Beginning

ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I'm engaged to a girl I met in September. Two weeks ago we started to look at engagement rings. The one I picked out costs $900. The one she wants is $1600. We had an argument over which ring to buy and then her mother got into the act. She said I should give Estelle the ring for $1600 because it will be the only ring I will ever buy her and what's the difference since I am buying it on time anyway.

My folks say if the girl really loves me she would not be happy with any ring I picked out. Now my dad has formed a bad opinion of Estelle and I'm sour on the subject of diamond rings and marriage.

My take home pay is $92 a week. It's too late to undo what has been done, but please tell me how I could have avoided this mess. — TROUBLED ROMANCE.

DEAR CLOUDED: When a fellow takes his girl shopping for a ring he should tell her in advance what he wants to spend and that should settle it. But more important, neither of you seems to have the faintest notion of fiscal responsibility.

Don't you realize that the minimum payment on a $900. ring over a three-year period (which is too long), will be more than $30 per month, or 8% of your take-home pay? And the heck that rings a boy with Estelle could cause the family budget by more than $50. a month. It doesn't sound to me as though your diamond fancier is ready for marriage — and your prospective mother-in-law should keep her oar out of your water.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I just read that wild diatribe from "Wiser Now", the scheming little witch who feels so much better after having talked to her lawyer and learned she can fix her husband's wagon now that she has the goods on him. She said "The knowledge that I can drain him financially has given me a whole new outlook on life. I feel like a new woman!"

I'd like to suggest that that man and others like her solve the problem instead of putting the guy through the meat grinder. If they'd add a little spice to their love making they'd discover that the old boy would stay home a lot more. Very few men in this world need to be loved fourteen times a week.

I hate to admit it, but 18 years ago I was an unresponsive, inhibited bed partner until my husband handed me a poem. It changed my entire life and I am as happy about it as he is. I hope you'll print it.

"I took the legs from an old table,
I took the back from an old chair,
I took the neck from an old bottle,
From a horse I got the hair.
I put them all together with some iron and some glue,
And I got a darned sight better loving
Than I ever got from you." — ALSO WISER.

DEAR WISER: So are we all, and I thank you.

Executive Secretary Must Exercise Judgement

TORONTO (CP) — Of the 253,000 clerical workers in Ontario, only a few can be called executive secretaries, who are generally defined as working in the management field earning as much as $175 a week.

Ruth Carrier, Miss Toronto 1951, is such a secretary, but her rise to the top was a gradual process. For the last six years she has been secretary to Graham C. Ferguson, president of Canadian Security Management, an investment company which manages and distributes mutual funds.

Nowadays the road to the top has been smoothed by the greater availability of professional secretarial training. For example, graduates of Ryerson Polytechnical Institute's secretarial science course step into jobs with starting salaries in the $100 to $120 range.

Also changing is the kind of responsibility a secretary might have. In the words of Ruth's boss, Mr. Ferguson, the main function of his secretary is to organize his activities so that his days in the office will be "free-flowing."

"She must have the necessary judgment to re-direct correspondence within the company and will therefore have to be thoroughly familiar with the activity in all departments," Mr. Ferguson said.

"She does not make executive decisions, but she will have to determine the urgency of specific confidential items that come up during my absence."

Levels of responsibility will vary greatly from job to job. In some instances the executive secretary will be managing a large office staff and in another she might be functioning as a research assistant.

In response to the added responsibilities, secretaries are accepting the Association of Administrative Assistants or Private Secretaries, founded in 1957 to upgrade the standards of secretarial work by improving qualifications.

Working with the extension department of the University of Toronto, this group organized a three-year correspondence program offering such courses as English, psychology, business law and economic geography.

The 200 graduates of this program have received the designation "qualified administrative assistant."

Family Reunions

FLEMING REUNION

Zwick's Island Park proved to be a popular spot for the Flemings on Sunday afternoon when some 180 members of the family met for a picnic lunch and reunion.

After dinner the President, Clifford Fleming, conducted the business which included the minutes of the previous reunion and the treasurer's and historian's reports.

Table prizes were won by Mrs. Eugene Francis who was the latest bride. Prize for the youngest boy at the picnic went to Larry Bird, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bill Bird. The youngest girl was Tina Marie White, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward White who also received a prize. The oldest lady and gentleman present were Mr. and Mrs. A. Stevenson, 85 and 81 years of age respectively. The person from the farthest point was Mr. Garth Timbrell and the nearest birthday was that of Roger Reid.

The election of officers resulted in the return of the same executive as at present with the exception of the historian's job which was turned over to Mrs. Arthur Timbrell. The retiring historian, Mrs. Harold Fleming received a vote of thanks for her work over the past several years.

The president expressed his thanks to all those who attended the reunion and invited all back to the next picnic to be held on the same location on the third Sunday in July 1970.

The sports committee organized games for the children including races and relay games and treats were handed out to all the children. The adults spent some time visiting until the supper hour.

Closure Has Been Invoked Eight Times

OTTAWA (CP) — Closure, the controversial parliamentary procedure employed by the government Thursday to choke off Commons debate on government rules proposals has been imposed eight times since 1917.

Speaker Lucien Lamoureux set the official record in ruling on a procedural point raised by Gordon Aiken (PC — Parry Sound-Muskoka).

The sleuthing through files over a 50-year period was part of 96 hours of preparation by the Speaker and his staff for the debate leading up to application of a gag on further debate.

"These (eight) precedents have been studied very closely, the journals have been looked ord.

into and the debates have been read," Mr. Lamoureux said in assuming what he called the "dubious honor" of reviewing closure's history in the Canadian Parliament.

Mr. Aiken's point was one in a series of abortive opposition moves Wednesday and Thursday to stave off closure in discussion of a proposed new rule allowing the government as a last resort to fix debating time limits on public bills.

The device for closure, or applying a gag to debate, was put on the rule books in 1913 to end a bitter filibuster on the navy bill. But it wasn't used then, on the basis of the Speaker's rec-

His citations refer only to the use of closure during full-dress Commons sittings. There have been a number of times when it was applied when the House is sitting in committee of the whole, presided over by the deputy Speaker or some other alternate as chairman.

The first example cited by Mr. Lamoureux occurred Aug 30, 1917. The government called on third reading of a bill providing for government acquisition of the capital stock of the Canadian Northern Railway Co.

Sept. 10 that same year, closure was invoked on second reading of the Wartime Elections Act. Four days later it was imposed on third reading of the same bill.

Closure was employed March 2, 1926, to end the Commons throne speech debate.

A blast over three years later, March 29, 1932, it was invoked in a debate on amending the standing of Canada.

The most famous instances of closure — at least in recent decades — came in the pipeline debate of 1956, when the gag on debate was twice moved by the government.

At issue were second and third readings of an act to establish the Northern Ontario Pipe Line Corp., a Crown corporation designed to make it possible to deliver Alberta natural gas to markets in Eastern Canada via the privately-owned Trans-Canada Pipe Lines Ltd.

Invoking of closure then drew rise to some of the roudiest scenes the Canadian Commons has seen. It played a major part in the defeat of the Liberal government the next year.

The debate was also marked by several applications of closure at the committee stage.

The latest precedent for the use of standing order 33 — which provides the authority for invoking closure — was Dec. 14, 1964, in debating a motion for concurrence in the report of a special committee on a Canadian flag.

"And what has driven you into our clutches?"

Cadieux Denies Fifteen Forces' Bases to Close

OTTAWA (CP) — A suggestion by Michael Forrestall (PC —Dartmouth-Halifax East) that up to 15 armed forces bases are to be closed was denied by Defence Minister Cadieux in the Commons Thursday as an "exaggeration."

Mr. Cadieux said the defence department has never contemplated closing 15 bases. He told Mr. Forrestall in answering a statement of closing plans may yet be made around Aug. 1.

A formula to condition the financial impact of base closings was pretty close to completion, he told the Commons.

The defence minister told J. Angus MacLean (PC—Malpeque) he will be happy to receive a Prince Edward Island delegation led by Premier Alexander Campbell, due Monday to make representations for continuance of the air base at Summerside.

Mr. MacLean drew an assurance from Prime Minister Trudeau the measures to avoid "significant hardship" will be taken before bases are closed.

Andrew Hees (PC—Prince Edward-Hastings) asked why this policy hasn't been put into effect at the base at Picton, Ont. Mr. Hees said the base is all but closed and nothing has been done for three affected.

Four-hour Storm Floods Farmland

EXETER, Ont. (CP) — A four-hour storm Thursday afternoon flooded this community 25 miles north of London and ruined hundreds of acres of cash crops in surrounding areas.

The flood overturned cars, caused extensive property damage and almost drowned 18-year-old Ron Thornton, who clung to shrubbery after being swept off his feet by the waist-deep torrent. He was pulled to safety by his brother Rick, 18.

Several patients were removed from South Huron District hospital when the flood caused a short circuit in basement electrical installations.

Police Chief Ted Day said the rain, accompanied by hail "as big as quarters," began about 3 p.m.

Fred G. Wright of the Canadian Canners Ltd. plant here said thousands of acres of crops worth "many thousands of dollars were destroyed." He said canning peas and corn crops were seriously affected, along with white beans and grain.

Ottawa to Crack Down On Pollution by Ships

TORONTO (CP) — The federal government has promised to crack down on commercial vessels polluting provincial waters, George Kerr, Ontario minister of energy and resources, said Thursday.

Mr. Kerr said in an interview he had been assured with a meeting he had in Ottawa with Otto Lang, federal minister without portfolio responsible for water and energy, at which the two levels of government agreed to set up a joint committee to advise on water management policies.

He and Mr. Lang had discussed incentives to industry for pollution abatement programs, pollution control schemes, and problems in enforcing regulations affecting commerce craft and commercial vessels.

Mr. Kerr said the federal department of transport has drawn up new regulations affecting commercial vessels, and Mr. Lang promised these regulations will be enforced.

Mr. Kerr said the Ontario Water Resources Commission is not entirely happy with the new federal regulations "because they are not as drastic as ours," and he hoped for a new meeting on the subject before the regulations become law.

HALIFAX (CP) — Industrial pollution is more dangerous than pollution caused by human and domestic sewage, Dr. R. B. Logie, assistant deputy minister of the federal fisheries department, said here Thursday.

Industries introduce new materials and products which often tend to be poisonous, and a small industry is able to pollute an area as quickly as a city of 100,000 can, he said in an interview.

Industries now are producing synthetic products which nature has no way of dealing with and these are contaminating waterways around the world. Man will have to go through primary disposal systems before being dumped in the ocean, he said.

Though control of water pollution comes under several jurisdictions, federal, provincial and municipal governments will have to take a united approach to it.

Injunction Forbids Beach Trespassing

TORONTO (CP) — An injunction restraining Rev. Robert Wright of Welland and other persons from trespassing or entering the property of Sherkston Beaches Ltd. until next Wednesday was issued Thursday by the Ontario Supreme Court.

John F. Holman, secretary-treasurer of Sherkston Beaches, located near Welland on Lake Erie, said in an affidavit presented to Mr. Justice Lloyd Houlden that last Wednesday about 150 persons intruded on the beach carrying signs which read "Beaches for People," and "Why Pay These Leeches for Public Beaches?"

Mr. Holman said the company has owned the 600-acre beach property since 1957, operates it as a camp and picnic resort and charges admission to everyone over 12 years of age.

Mr. Holman said there appears to be an organized campaign against the company that will be continued unless a court restrains illegal activities.

Other defendants named besides Mr. Wright were Andrew Connelly, R. C. MacDougall, John Whitman, Robert Hood, Carl Montgomery, Ray Hodgett, Paul Ligali, Raymond Burrod Fairley and Peter Kormas, all living in the Welland area.

Toronto Told Strip Wards Out

TORONTO (CP) — The provincial cabinet Thursday upheld an Ontario Municipal Board ruling that the city must establish block-shaped electrical wards instead of the long, north-to-south strips city council wanted.

Municipal Affairs Minister Darcy McKeough told reporters after a cabinet meeting the new system must be in effect for municipal elections in December.

He said the cabinet approved an order-in-council approving a ruling by J. A. Kennedy, OMB chairman. There is no appeal from the cabinet decision.

Mr. Kennedy received angry protests from several city aldermen when he rejected a city plan to increase the number of wards to 11 from nine while retaining their long, narrow shape.

The strip wards lump together the votes of lower, middle- and upper-class residential districts and make aldermen responsible to all interests of both blue-collar and affluent constituents. Some of the present strip wards stretch from Lake Ontario to the northern limits of the city.

CP to Use Toll-Free Phone Plan

OTTAWA (CP) — Approval for CP Rail to open a customer service centre in Ottawa, replacing 30 area station agents and 12 caretakers, was given Thursday by the Canadian transport commission.

The railway applied for the new system last Nov. 4.

Customers for rail passenger, freight and express services, as well for air, ship, hotel and bus communications services operated by the same company, will be able to use a toll free telephone number to transact business with the company.

The station agents and caretakers are on the railway's Smiths Falls division, covering parts of both Ontario and Quebec.

Strictly Personal

Expressway End in Itself

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

An observer from another planet — inhabited, by more rational creatures than we are — would be hard put to understand the behavior of Earthlings, if he hovered in his interplanetary spacecraft over any American freeway or expressway at 5 in the morning or 5 in the afternoon.

He would see tens of thousands of cars inching forward bumper to bumper, four or six abreast, some taking nearly an hour to arrive at their destination — while, paralleling this freeway, there is a broad and totally empty surface street.

Whichever city he drifted over, he would find the same inexplicable traffic snarl, with the same almost deserted avenue running alongside the expressway. And he would have to conclude that it was not speed but some other desideratum that prompted millions of motorists to move their cars onto expressways at these particular hours.

But he would be wrong in assuming that Earthlings are as rational as the inhabitants of his planet. For we are what traffic engineers call victims of "freeway mentality." Because the freeways were built to relieve congestion on the surface streets, we have totally abandoned the surface streets and transferred the congestion to the freeways. No longer a means to an end — getting there faster — the expressway has become an end in itself.

In a recent issue of the journal, "Traffic Safety," a transportation official in Los Angeles warned that "freeways can be victims of their own popularity during peak hours, and many concerned authorities see the overloaded superhighways turning into bottlenecks."

He points out that only five per cent of California roads are freeways, yet they carry 60 per cent of the traffic. During the six peak hours of the day — which is to say, about half of daylight hours, when people do most of their driving — the average speed is only 30 miles an hour. Hardly a breath-taking velocity for a multi-billion dollar road system.

Yet the parallelling surface streets would be just as fast, and sometimes much faster. Every motorist knows that the car out of commission in one lane of expressway can tie up traffic for a mile — and this is most likely to happen during rush ours But hardly anyone will give up the dubious status of riding the freeway and take a surface street to his destination.

Freeways become obsolete almost from the moment they are completed; it's a part of Parkinson's dervitsh law that traffic mounts to meet the maximum capacity of the road and there is no end to the process, until the county is entirely criss-crossed with freeways and all traffic has a ground to a halt — while kids play ball on surface streets.

Venerable County Jail Walls Have Housed More Than Their Share of Grief in 130 Years

By HARRY MULHALL
(Staff Reporter)

Belleville's first real landmark is in its last days.

Not that the venerable walls of Hastings County jail are coming down immediately.

But Ontario's first regional detention centre already is under construction near Napanee.

With its completion, four aged county jails will be emptied. The Belleville building will be demolished, replaced by new county offices.

Realization of such a project will not be for a matter of years.

It's not happening tomorrow. Still, compared to all the yesterdays symbolized by the solid stone building that once dominated the city, the time span is brief.

It's one of the oldest edifices of its kind in Ontario, pre-dating even its own name.

The building came into being with the administrative formation of Victoria District, later to be named Hastings County.

The first cornerstone for what was to be how the district courthouse and jail was laid in 1838 — the first assizes being held a year later.

Up to that time prisoners had been sent to Kingston — a fair-sized journey in the days of early settlement.

In fact, the first man convicted of murder in the area — a fatal stabbing over a horse deal — had to be taken to Kingston for execution of the death penalty.

The new building was an administrative improvement — though by modern social measurement the jail hardly was home for the most hardened felon.

The first cells were dungeon-like, in the basement of the court building.

There were 12 such units, nine feet wide, 12 feet long, windowless and sealed by a heavy wooden door. An aperture at the bottom of each door was presumably used to push food through to prisoners.

Into the catacomb went every description of personalized social problem — from the unrelenting to the unfortunate.

Those jailed for debt shared the same environment as hardened criminals, vagrants, the insane.

If society didn't complain about conditions, the gaoler did.

In 1858 a grand jury proposed "a sufficient yard with a fence be provided for the use of prisoners, who are in custody for hard labor."

Just three years later another grand jury suggested "the propriety of arranging the female prison in a way that would prevent criminals associating with women who are confined there for minor offences."

In 1864 yet another jury found it necessary to "urge strongly the necessity for increased accommodation . . . for the proper classification of prisoners, as (the jurors) are convinced that the present system which all classes of criminals to associate with those who are committed for trial — and even lunatics."

Such a detention system, warned the jury, "is most pernicious in its effects."

Finally, authority stirred itself and plans were made for a big addition to the jail.

A new wing was built in 1865 — at a cost of $10,000 — and the result was a jail rated first in Ontario for its adaptability.

In its new shape the court house and jail — solidly settled on rising ground between Church and Pinnacle streets — was a dominant feature of the local landscape for nearly a century.

Its symbolic presence also was heightened by an official end to one of the most morbid social practices — public hanging.

The last such open imposition of capital punishment in Belleville probably helped hasten its end in Ontario. A grisly affair, it involved the hanging of a young Irish immigrant couple in 1862.

The ghastly behavior of the mob, the fact that some regarded the conviction of dubious merit, heightened an incident that still lurks in Belleville's community consciousness.

Few people today remember the names of the couple, but many a Bellevillian will recall the event. Some still link it to a curse purportedly placed on the entire community.

Despite this, the community progressed — a circumstance that did little for the building symbolizing the administration of justice.

Courts and offices became obsolete, dingy, cramped. Finally, the county moved to replace it.

In 1961 a new county centre was opened — slap in front of the 130-year-old building.

The jail was still retained — as a functioning unit — although its days obviously were numbered.

Quinte-area counties launched a committee to organize a new regional centre. In 1968, the old county detention centre entered a new phase — and its last. Its administration was directly taken over from the county by the provincial government.

Despite its inevitable end, improvements continue to be made — renovations, repainting, new installations of furniture and equipment.

In its last days the old building is looking better than ever.

Early Inmate Lamented Bare Feet, No Sympathy

Walter J. Theriault, present governor of the county jail also is custodian of an impressive compilation of prison records.

Among them is the 1855 complaint of the gaoler seeking more money from county council. The jail, he reminded, not only was "tolerably well supplied" with criminals, but also vagrants, debtors, disorderly persons "and even paupers and lunatics."

making his post an onerous task.

The plight of some of the lunatics at the time was worse than that of the governor, as a letter the same year — 1855 testifies.

From the subterranean gloom of his confinement, one man penned a piteous appeal to county council.

He was, he said "in a hurried and unexpected manner brought here a prisoner from Hungerford, barefooted and without sympathy."

Convicted of larceny he was jailed for six weeks — just as he stood.

"I am barefooted and having no means to provide boots or shoes, neither have I any friends to apply to for any article of warm clothing — as my clothes in general are pretty bad and very light and thin for this cold season.

But the community without the walls soon began to notice the need for improvement.

Last Custodian

Walter J. Theriault is governor of Hastings county jail. With new regional centre replacing local Quinte detention buildings, the governor likely is the last custodian of historic old building.

Once Community's Landmark

Old county building as it stood for nearly a century, dominant Belleville landmark. Its facade now is obscured by modern court-county centre. Present plans call for venerable-looking edifice — its first cornerstone dating from 1838 — to be replaced after regional detention project empties one of Ontario's oldest jail buildings.

Humane Society Reminds Dog Owners Summer Sweltering in Winter Coats

By BARRY GRILLS
Staff Reporter

Summer's heat and sunshine has prompted the Ontario Humane Society to issue "summer pet care" tips.

Provincially and locally, humane society officials have been investigating cases of neglect over the summer months.

Chief among the complaints by the society and concerned citizens in the area is the leaving of dogs in cars during the heat of summer.

"I've seen them strangling there in the heat," explained Mrs. Vivian Ethier, manager of the local Humane Society shelter.

The society feels that if pets must be left in a car, the owner should make sure the windows are partially open to allow a cross draft of air.

It is not recommended that any pets be left in cars during the hot weather, but if such a situation is necessary then the windows should be left partially open and water should be taken along on the trip in a dish.

Mrs. Ethier maintains that dogs have a personality as do other pets and consequently they become irritable in the heat of summer months just as many humans do.

"Opening all windows makes a difference," she said.

But there are other tips peculiar to the season of sun and heat.

Dogs should not be tied outside in the hot sun. If the animal is on a lead in the back yard the owner should make sure that the lead is long enough to allow the dog to sit out of the sun. Food and water should be left outside with him and the water should be changed about three times daily.

"The dog shouldn't be unattended for more than 12 hours," Mrs. Ethier said. "We've had approximately 50 complaints about this sort of thing."

She added that some of the complaints were unfounded, but that in many cases the animals were found wrapped around trees and left there to get themselves untangled.

Exercising animals is also an important segment of care in the summer months.

According to Mrs. Ethier, dogs can obtain ample exercise in their own backyards if their leads are loosed around a clothesline.

Not merely a summer season tip, but one for the whole year, is the advice by the society that animals be taken to a veterinarian when they are ill.

"We've been called to pick up dogs needing medical attention," she said. "I think they should be considered a member of the family."

This Samoyed takes an opportunity to snatch a breath of cooler air after being left in a car. The owner of the dog had the foresight to leave a window open thus allowing the dog some protection from summer heat.

'Melanin' Spells Tan For Sun-worshippers

By JUDY SCHRIEDER
Staff Reporter

Tan - seekers unite - the sun is out to get you!

The fiery orb is the big drawing ticket for the summer months. First day of their vacations, Canadians rush headlong to the sunshine with enthusiastic dedication.

In the Quinte area they bake for hours on the sands of four provincial parks, cottage beaches and lodge hideaways.

Too often, they spend the next few days recovering from a painful sunburn.

Doctors say persons who spend most of their time indoors are usually the critical victims of over - exposure to sunshine during holiday periods.

Timing is important.

Strong ultra - violet rays sweep across the northern hemisphere from about 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. and scorch or spare the sun - seekers according to their content of skin pigmentation.

Skin pigmentation is affected by exposure, and melanin, which sets color depth in the skin, goes to work in the sunshine to produce the bronzed appearance vacationers seek.

Fair-skinned sun worshippers frequently burn badly during early exposure to these rays, due to relatively little melanin in light complexions. Gradual exposure can help protect the skin, but impatient vacationers sometimes do not want to take time to develop an easy, painless tan.

The race to get the deepest, darkest tan under the sun makes lotions and potions in tubes, oils and ointments a must for the true-blue beach frequenter.

If desire for a tan just cannot be forestalled until the sun reaches its natural peak in the summer months, ardent followers of ultra-violet rays can bask in the warmth of "sunshine in a tube," the sun-lamp.

Artificial means of promoting a tan prepare the skin for the real sun rays to come, but for popularity, they cannot compete with a "place in the sun" when summer dawns.

Sun in A Tube

Artificial means of promoting a tan are the closest things to the real rays of the sun, Jo-Anne Raycroft tries out the YMCA's sun lamp, "sunshine in a tube" that gives three hours of sunpower in five minutes.

Als Top Saskys in All Departments

MONTREAL (CP) — Quarterback Carol Williams tossed three touchdown passes to lead Montreal Alouettes to a 27-21 victory over Saskatchewan Roughriders in a Canadian Football League exhibition game Thursday night.

Williams connected with touchdown strikes to Bobby Felix and Rick Cassesse in the first half and David McGillvray in the fourth quarter to give Montreal its first exhibition victory after four losses.

Gino Barretta added a convert and a 30-yard field goal while John Baker kicked a 13-yard field goal, a convert and a single to complete the Als' scoring.

George Reed scored two majors for the losers while Bobby Thompson added another on a 95-yard pass-and-run play with quarterback Ron Lancaster in the fourth quarter. Jack Abendschan converted the Rider touchdowns.

The Riders led 7-0 after Reed's first touchdown on a one-yard run. Montreal, however, replied with 17 points in the second half to the Riders' seven to take a 17-14 lead.

The Alouettes increased their lead to 20-14 in the third quarter.

The statistical story showed Montreal with 22 first downs to the visitors' 13. The Als gained 153 yards rushing and 281 passing while the Riders had 68 yards after the ground and 251 in the air.

Williams was good on 19 of 28 pass attempts, Lancaster connected on 11 of 18.

Sonny Wade, who replaced Williams late in the game, completed two of three pass attempts.

Youngsters Chase Aging Sam Snead

MONTREAL (CP) — The rabbits and eager beavers that constitute the bulk of the field in this year's Canadian Open golf championship will try once again to match strokes today with seasoned veteran Sam Snead.

In the opening round Thursday, the youngsters spent most of the day chasing the early-finishing Snead, a 57-year-old veteran of 32 years on the pro circuit, but they failed to catch him.

Snead fired a five-under-par 67 over the 7,076-yard Pinegrove Course at nearby St. Lo to help himself to a one-stroke lead over the field. He put together nines of 33 and 34.

The few other "name" players in this tournament, which coincides with the American Classic in Akron, Ohio, were within comfortable range in Lake aim at Snead's slim margin today.

But the list of the 50 top scorers in the opening round was cluttered with unknowns, for the most part hungry youngsters seeking a good pay check from the $125,000 jackpot.

One such newcomer found himself in second place just one stroke off Snead's pace.

He is Chick Evans of Northbridge, Mass. enjoying his second season on the pro tour. Evans' previous high finish was eighth in the little-known Robinson Open in Illinois last fall.

Thursday he was 33-35 for a 68.

Probably the most surprised golfer of the day was Vaughan Trapp of Victoria, a 25-year-old, English-born pro of nine years experience.

Trapp joined such illustrious company as British Open champion Tony Jacklin of England, Argentina's Roberto De Vicenzo and four others—Dave Bollman of Norfolk, Va., Jack Bissegger of Montreal, Jim Grant of Atlanta and Larry Mowry of Las Vegas—with 69s.

"I haven't done well in tournaments," Trapp said. "It's my third season on the Canadian pro tour and it's the best I've done."

Trapp sank two 20-foot putts for two of his four birdies and found himself in trouble only once when he went one-over on the short 230-yard 12th.

Toronto's Al Balding was among a group of eight bunched with 70s. Balding had equal 35-35 nines for what he termed a satisfactory round.

"Five birdies, three bogies, that's it," said the affable, cigar-smoking Balding. "That practice yesterday helped. I've been losing the ball a lot lately — out of bounds, into the rough — but I only drove badly on two holes today."

Defending champion Bob Charles, the New Zealand lefty, joined a group of 16 bunched at 71. Charles said he had been driving badly all day and kept slicing with his drives.

Joining Charles were: Doug Sanders of Georgia, Jr. Lo's sometimes-singer Don Cherry of Wichita Falls, Tex; Edmonton's Fin Sorenson; Tommy Aaron of Callaway Gardens, Fla.; Jim Day of Lowell, Mass.; Mexico's Juan Neri; Toronto's George Knudson, Jerry Barber from Los Angeles; Bob Rosberg of St. Louis; Welshman Dai Rees; Johnny Stevens of Wichita, Kan.; Ken Fulton of Trail, B.C., who now plays out of Montreal; Jack Ewing of Bakersfield, Calif.; Jim Picard, Lafayette, La.; and Nat Starks of St. Petersberg, Fla.

Billy Casper, 1967 Canadian champion, was grouped with 16 others with a par 72. Also in this group was Japan's Takaaki Kono, and Canadians Bob Cox of Richmond, B.C., and Stan Homenuik of Dauphin, Man.

Bomber Dispute Settled

WINNIPEG (CP) — The dispute between Dave Raimey and Winnipeg Blue Bomber coach Joe Zaleski has been settled.

"Im satisfied with the way things worked out," said the explosive halfback Thursday. He had been sent home from Hamilton Sunday following a vocal clash with quarterback John Schneider. "I apologized to the coach, I owned him that, and everything is okay."

The Schneider-Ramey spat took place on the practice field prior to Winnipeg's exhibition game in Hamilton Monday against the Cats. Hamilton won the game 28-14.

Word of the dispute caused trade talk and Bombers general manager Earl Landford said he was contacted by two other Canadian Football League clubs.

Pint-sized Rickey Faulkner finds himself picked off first base in a big way during a youth baseball league game at Santa Barbara, Calif. Playing first is Danny Herring, one of the world's biggest ballplayers at 315 pounds. Herring, 17, was Santa Barbara High School's second biggest player in football. The team had a 447-pound tackle. Spectator's Head Helps MONTREAL (CP) — Bill Wakeham of Victoria used a spectator's head to get a par on the ninth hole in Thursday's opening round of the $125,000 Canadian Open golf championship.

Wakeham's second shot on the 445-yard par four ninth hole hooked off into the spectator's gallery, hitting Roland Merkel of Montreal on the head.

The shot bounced down the steep embankment and onto the fringe of the green and Wakeham two-putted for his par.

Meanwhile Mitchel was taken to a first-aid post at the Pinegrove Country Club, where St. John Ambulance Brigade officials treated the wound.

First aid officials suggested that he go to hospital for stitches but said the injured man refused.

"As far as I know, he's still around here somewhere, taking in the action," a first aid official said.

Royals Feel Brunt Of Lolich's Anger

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Mickey Lolich of Detroit Tigers was stranded in Washington, but not long enough to suit Kansas City Royals.

Lolich, left behind by teammate Denny McLain who departed from the all-star baseball game before it finished Wednesday, caught an evening commercial flight and got to Detroit in time to pitch the Tigers to a 3-1 victory over the Royals on a four-hitter Thursday night.

But the Detroit left-hander's feathers still were ruffled by the McLain affair. Denny flew off in his private plane after his brief all-star appearance, leaving Lolich and his wife stranded without transportation. Mickey had planned on returning to Detroit in McLain's plane.

"Denny pulled a crummy trick on me," complained Lolich. Then he took out his anger on the Royals, striking out 13 of them and running his season's record to 14-7.

Elsewhere in the American League Thursday, Baltimore Orioles rapped Chicago White Sox 5-2, Cleveland Indians edged Minnesota Twins 6-5, Oakland Athletics nipped Washington Senators 2-1, New York Yankees dropped California Angels 3-1 and Seattle Pilots tripped Boston Red Sox 8-6.

Lolich got plenty of long ball support from his team-mates against Kansas City.

After the Royals had scored a run on a pair of singles and a sacrifice fly in the fourth inning, Al Kaline's 12th home run of the season tied it for the Tigers in the bottom half of the inning.

One inning later, Don Wert and Tom Tresh both hit homers, giving Lolich a 3-1 lead.

Boog Powell teed off on Tommy John, who has become his favorite whipping boy this season. Powell lined his 25th homer, and third in six swings against John this year, to tied a three-run Baltimore seventh inning that carried the Orioles past Chicago.

Phillies Lose Again

Allen's Hits Not Enough

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Richie Allen might be a strong candidate for baseball comeback honors in Philadelphia, but the Phillies seem certain to prove his return can't bring them back in the National League.

With the disappearing first baseman in the lineup for the first time since he left the team June 24 and was suspended, the Phillies shrugged off his presence and lost again Thursday 7-3 to Houston Astros. It was their 10th defeat in 11 games.

Even with Allen the first 63 games of the season, they rolled down a 28-37 record. When he pulled the latest of his disappearing acts last month that cost him $11,000 in suspended salary, the Phillies went on a nine-game winning streak, but then collapsed to 13-18 without him.

Allen did his best Thursday against the Astros with a run-scoring double and a bunt single —he struck out his other two times at bat.

Atlanta Braves, with Hank Aaron moving into fourth place on the all-time home-run list, increased their Western Division lead with a 9-6 victory over Montreal Expos, while St. Louis Cardinals dropped San Francisco Giants and their star pitcher Juan Marichal, 2-1.

Nelson Briles defeated Marichal with ninth-inning relief help from Joe Hoerner.

Briles also singled in the winning run for St. Louis in the seventh inning, sending the Giats two games back of Atlata.

Earlier in the day, Chicago Cubs beat Los Angeles Dodgers 5-3, running Don Sutton's record against them to 0-13 in four years.

Winner Ken Holtzman lasted only into the seventh inning, but Phil Regan saved the game for him and dropped the Dodgers two games back of Atlanta.

Eskies Not Farm Team Of NFL's Frisco Club

EDMONTON (CP) — Reports that Edmonton Eskimos of the Western Football Conference may become a farm team of San Francisco 49ers of the National Football League are a "misconception," says general manager Norm Kimball.

The Eskimos sent offensive tackle Earl Edwards to the 49ers Wednesday in a deal which, Kimball said, "will ensure our long-term talent supply." No trade was involved and full details were not released.

Kimball said his club was "completely satisfied" with the deal worked out in exchange for the 275-pound, six-foot-4 Edwards.

"However, we're not prepared to discuss the details because our agreement with 49ers makes it impossible," Kimball said in an an interview.

"But it might surprise a lot of people what we got."

Kimball said the agreement could not be described as making Eskimos a farm team of the 49's club.

"There is no concept of this nature whatsoever."

He said it meant the 49ers would deal with the Eskimos on an "equal basis—far more than ever before."

"They are prepared to deal with us on the basis of being equals."

Edwards played defensive tackle for Ottawa Rough Riders but was switched to offence when the Eskimos acquired him on waivers early in the 1967 season. He left Wichita State College before his class graduated and was ineligible to play in the NFL or the American League until this season.

In Toronto, Canadian football commissioner Jake Gaudaur said there was nothing unusual about the Edmonton-San Francisco deal.

"And there is no way a U.S. team could make a Canadian team part of its farm system. Sure, the U.S. team could send a player to a Canadian team, but that player would have to be placed under contract by the Canadian team. Then, before the player was returned to the U.S. team, he would have to be waived through the entire CFL."

Faye Urban Advances to Finals

ST. CATHARINES (CP) — Defending champion Faye Urban of Windsor, Ont., will meet Jane O'Hara of Toronto Saturday in the women's singles final of the Ontario open tennis championship. Both scored victories in semi-final play Thursday.

Miss Urban defeated Vivienne Strong of Toronto 6-1, 6-4 while Miss O'Hara eliminated Louise Brown of Toronto 6-4, 6-3.

The women's doubles final Saturday pits Miss O'Hara and Miss Strong against Miss Urban and Janice Timble of Vancouver.

The Carling Invitational Pace

Class Galore in Feature Race

STAFF — It'll be difficult to pick out the class of the field in Saturday's featured eighth race at the Quinte Riding and Driving Club's weekly harness racing meet at the Belleville Fairgrounds.

That's because each of the seven horses in the race has a measure of class. Six of the horses have won at the Belleville track this summer and the seventh horse — Todd Judd — has compiled a good record in the weekly Wednesday races at Kingston. A week ago Wednesday he won his heat in 2.10.

The seven horses will be competing for the largest purse — $450 — of the Quinte Riding and Driving Club's 30-week harness racing season in Saturday's feature race which is co-sponsored by Carling Breweries and is titled the Carling Invitational Pace.

Other entries in the race are Len Way, Justa Lad, Cash Princess, Hy Peter, Grampa Jack and Single De Best. Of the six Grampa Jack and Cash Princess are the only ones who are stabled regularly at the Fairgrounds track.

Len Way owned by Colbourne Hess of Trenton has the fastest time so far this year of the seven horses. Len Way has just returned from racing at Garden City and Greenwood in Toronto where he covered the mile in 2.07.

Of the seven horses in the Carling Invitational Pace, Cash Princess has been the most consistent in recent weeks.

The seven-year-old bay mare owned by Gord Irwin Jr. of Oshawa and driven by Al Vance has three consecutive second place finishes and a first place finish in the last four feature races at the Fairgrounds track.

Grampa Jack, a seven-year-old brown gelding owned by Karen and Jean Mullen of Foxboro and trained by Bruce Kemp, has also been consistent. He's only finished out of the money once this year at the Belleville track.

Last he finished third in the feature race with a time of 2.11 and the previous week he won his heat in 2.13. That was his first win on the Belleville track in two years.

"We'll be in rough company this week; I couldn't say how we'll do," said Bruce Kemp, the trainer of Grampa Jack. "I think it's possible that we'll see a track record."

Justa Lad will also be a strong entry in the Carling Invitational pace. The seven-year-old bay gelding won last Saturday's feature race in 2.09 and a week ago Wednesday he paced the mile in 2.07 at the Kingston track.

Single Dellbest has twice run the mile in 2:10.1 this year at the Belleville track and Hy Peter's best time is 2:12.4.

There are 49 horses entered in Saturday night's eight-heat racing card.

And the busiest man at the track will likely be Roy Buchanan, the trainer-driver for Colbourne Hess of Trenton. Buchanan will drive seven horses Saturday night and a track buff at the Fairgrounds estimated that he will drive approximately 42 miles in all, including the races and practice warm-ups.

Hockey Teams To Stage Celebrity Dinner

A pair of local hockey teams are trying to make money and fill a void at the same time.

Bellaville's senior and junior hockey teams will stage a Sports Celebrity Dinner, Wednesday, August 27, to raise operating funds for the coming season.

It is expected that at least a dozen sports celebrities — many of them from the hockey world — will be head table guests at the Celebrity Dinner which will be held at Club Canada.

It's been seven years since any organization in town has held a sports celebrity dinner and the two hockey clubs hope to fill that void with a star-studded program.

Tickets will go on sale early next week at several downtown locations and also in Tweed, Picton and Trenton.

Jim Matthews, executive member of the local Junior "B" hockey club estimated that 250 tickets would be sold for the Celebrity Dinner.

Matthews said that the evening could get underway with a reception from 6 p.m. to 7.30 p.m. Dinner will be served at 7.30 p.m.

Jack Devine, the sports voice of CJBQ radio station, will be emcee of the Sports Celebrity Dinner at which all those attending will be given souvenir photos to commemorate the occasion.

Player Called Out Twice in Succession

MIDLAND, Ont. (CP) — Art McComb of Midland Indians was called out twice in succession Thursday night in a South Simcoe Baseball League game with Orillia Juniors.

The oddity occurred after Art with the count three and two, watched a low, outside pitch go by for a called third strike.

The following batter, also on a three and two count, fouled off a pitch that injured his ankle.

Since there were only nine players dressed, as the previous batter, who was Art, came up for one pitch. Again that low, outside pitched sailed by and Art was out for the second time. Orillia won 9-3.

SACO Favored in Local Softball Tourney

Local softball fans will get a chance to see one of the best minor softball teams — Belleville SACO — in the province Saturday.

SACO is one of eight teams from across the province entered in the Belleville Minor Softball Association's annual bantam tournament. The other entries are Don Victoria, Brighton, North Bendale, Trenton, Alderwood, Unionville and Richmond Hill.

Paced by righthander John Sprackett and lefthander Ken Johnson — who have a combined record of 15 wins and one loss — SACO has lost only two games all year.

Trenton beat Belleville Friday, July 11th, the night before the locals competed in the North York bantam tournament. SACO won their first three games in the North York tournament, but suffered their second loss of the season when North Bendale cuffed them 13-2 in the "A" championship game.

Previously SACO had captured in the "A" championship in the Port Perry bantam tournament in June and North Bendale in the title game.

"Belleville SACO will take the "A" championship," BMSA President Ted Sprackett predicted, "I understand that North Bendale is sending their "B" team and no other team appears capable of beating us."

Saturday's tournament which will be played at the Alemite ball park and Queen Victoria School, starts at 8.30 a.m. with SACO taking on Don Victoria at Alemite ball park in first round games. Other first round games match Brighton with North Bendale at Queen Victoria School at 9.30 a.m., (game two), Trenton with Alderwood at the Alemite at 10 a.m. (game two) and Unionville with Richmond Hill at Queen Victoria School at 11 a.m. (game four).

Second or semi - final round action in the "A" championship series will see the winners of games one and two — likely Belleville and North Bendale — look at the Alemite at 11.30 a.m. and the winners of games two and four meet at 2.15 p.m. at Queen Victoria School.

In the "B" or consolation series for first round losers, second round play will feature the losers of games one and two at 1 p.m. at Queen Victoria School and the losers of games three and four in a 1 p.m. contest at the Alemite.

Both the "A" and "B" series title games will be played at the Alemite ball park. The "B" championship game gets underway at 4 p.m. and the "A" championship game follows at 6 p.m.

Season's Highest Run Total Gives City Hotel Top Spot

City Hotel used 16 runs — the highest single-game run production of the Commercial Softball League season — to defeat Corby's Distillery Thursday night and grab sole possession of first place in the Commercial League.

City's 16-2 win in the nightcap of the Commercial league doubleheader moved the Hotelmen two points ahead of Stinson's Construction and Richard Ellis Juniors in the race for the league pennant.

Meanwhile Ellis Juniors missed a chance to stay abreast of the Hotelmen when they dropped a 4-3 decision to Black Diamond Cheesemen in the first game of the doubleheader at Alemite ball park.

City Hotel showed no mercy on Corby's starter Sonny Grey or reliever Carl Boomhower. The Hotelmen banged out eight hits and took advantage of six Corby's errors to score 12 runs in the first three innings en route to their lopsided win.

Lefthander Bob Ethier went the full seven innings to pick up the win for City. He gave up six hits, walked a pair and threw third baseman past 13 men. Grey and Boomhower surrendered 11 hits, issued seven free passes and fanned four.

Shortstop Pug Kellar led the winners' assault with a pair of triples and a single which were good for five r.b.i.'s. Bob Groves drove in four runs for City with a pair of singles, while Rod Ridley also had a pair of singles and Bob Brooks slammed a solo homer. Fehler, Harry Green and Doug Murray each singled for the winners.

Bob Wannamaker with a double and single, Ron Urch with a brace of singles and Chuck Rowbotham and Wayne Bunnett with singles accounted for Corby's hits. Linescore:

BLACK DIAMOND 4
ELLIS JUNIORS 3

A two-run homer loaded single by left fielder Dwight Rathwell capped Black Diamond's three-run rally in the top of the final inning and gave the Cheesemen their second 4-3 win over the Juniors in as many nights.

The Cheesemen collected only two singles in their game-winning rally, but capitalized on a pair of walks by Junior pitcher "Scotty" Rathwell and an error by Junior backstop Wes May.

Ellis Juniors had taken a 3-1 lead with a three-run outburst in the bottom of the sixth inning, but could not rebound after Black Diamond's three-run rally.

The brother combination of Sonny and Don Holoway split the pitching chores for the winners, the pair allowed four hits, issued four walks and struck out five men.

Losing pitcher Reid also gave up four hits. He fanned four and walked a pair over the seven inning distance.

Rathwell, Bill Goodfellow, Jerry Hill and Don Wood each singled for the Cheesemen who moved into fifth place two points ahead of Corby's on the strength of Thursday night's win.

Dale Duvall, John Campbell, Wayne Brown and Wes May hit safely for the Juniors.

The Juniors suffered a second loss Thursday night. The Commercial League executive voted to suspend coach Harold Reid for one year — to July 21, 1970 — for sticking umpire Bill Hurst in a league game Tuesday night. Linescore:

Cassius Clay Resentenced --Gets Five Years Plus Fine

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — Cassius Clay, saying he will never give up- his religious beliefs, was resentenced to five years in prison and fined $10,000 Thursday on an earlier conviction of refusing to be inducted into the armed forces.

It was the same punishment imposed on the former heavyweight boxing champion two years ago in the same case.

U.S. District Judge Joe Ingraham, the same judge who originally sentenced Clay, imposed the Thursday's sentence without comment.

Charles Morgan Jr., of Atlanta, Ga., Clay's chief lawyer, immediately filed notice of appeal.

Clay will remain free on $5,000 bond posted at the time of

"I'm sticking to my religious beliefs," Clay answered. "I know this is a country that preaches religious freedom."

Later, in talking with reporters, Clay said: "They can't let me go. They have to make me an example."

Merchants Defeated

PETERBOROUGH (CP) — Julie Kowalski scored four goals Thursday night to lead Brantlea Excelsiors to a 16-12 victory over Peterborough Petes, formerly the Quinte Merchants, in Ontario Lacrosse Association Senior A play.

Rick Larose and Walker Johnston each scored three times for the winners with Al Smith scoring twice. Other goals were by Wayne MacAuley and Dave Kelsie.

For the losers, Bill Hunt, Bill Armour, Jim Guerin and Im Hickey each picked up two goals. Mike Self, Howie Stephenson, Doug Maynard and Robbie MacArthey scored one each.

Peterborough led 7-4 after the first period with Brantlea edging in front 10-9 after the second.

Ask Uncle Ed

DEAR UNCLE ED:
My relatives are always asking me to have my Will made out. I don't feel like giving them a darn cent. What would you do?
Yours truly,

DEAR SKIN-FLINT:
Well, you could do like my Uncle Ambrose did. When I went to the reading of the Will, it ended with "And to my nephew Ed, whom I promised to remember in my Will - Hi there, Ed!"

Kidnapped Buffalo Girl, 2, Found Wandering in Niagara

NIAGARA-ON-THE-LAKE, Ont. (CP) — FBI agents from New York state made a door-to-door investigation here Thursday into the kidnapping of a 23-month-old Buffalo, N.Y., girl found wandering on a local street during the day.

Patricia Ann Martin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Murray Martin, was taken from her stroller Tuesday while she was with her eight-year-old sister Sheilie, in Buffalo. The kidnapping was only a week before her second birthday.

When found Thursday, her long hair had been chopped off and shaped into a bush cut and she was dressed in boy's clothes.

Police Chief John Laurie notified the FBI and Neil J. Welch, special agent in charge of the Buffalo FBI office, sped agents and the child's mother, Mrs. Murray Martin, here. The mother was reunited with her child in the police station.

Patricia seemed in good physical condition and had not been harmed by her kidnapper, said to be a heavy-set blonde woman driving a yellow Volkswagen convertible with a black nylon top.

Provincial police at Niagara Falls said early today a similar car, with Ontario licence plates, was seen Wednesday at Dunneville, Ont., about 40 miles southwest of this community at the Lake Ontario mouth of the Niagara River.

Less than two hours after the child's discovery, special agent Welch requested and was given permission to conduct a house-to-house search here with agents recruited from offices throughout New York state. They were aided by police in this town of 2,000.

An FBI spokesman said earlier in Buffalo that because Patricia was found in Canada her disappearance became "a federal kidnap situation." A United States-wide alarm had gone out.

An OPP spokesman at Niagara Falls said the agents were operating with local police. He said he guessed they "operated much the same as our boys."

Eight FBI agents and eight detectives from Buffalo were involved and Chief Laurie said he and the U.S. agents conducted the door-to-door search.

Patricia was found by Mrs. John Ghetti of Niagara-on-the-Lake who was driving her children to a swimming pool.

"I thought it was a little boy, the haircut and the way he was dressed," she said. The child was yawning and rubbing her eyes in the middle of the street.

Mrs. Ghetti stopped her car to take the child to the police station.

Chief Laurie a little later received a copy of a Buffalo newspaper. On the front page was a picture of the child who had just come into his office.

Several FBI agents were called in from Port Colborne, Ont., where they had gone earlier to check on a telephone tip that Patricia and the woman being sought had been seen there late Wednesday.

Buffalo police and the FBI said they are puzzled as to the motive for the kidnapping. The Martins, a Mohawk Indian family, are welfare recipients. Mr. Martin, a carpenter's helper, has been unemployed for the last six weeks because of a construction industry strike.

The FBI in Buffalo said provincial police and federal Canadian agencies will be asked to aid in the search for the woman believed to be kidnapper.

She was described as being in her late 30s or early 40s, wearing glasses and possibly wearing an orange-flowered dress. Her complexion was dark and her hair a dirty blonde.

A LION'S TOOTH

The dandelion's name is derived from dent de lion, which is the French word for tooth of the lion.

Keen Demand Is Created For British Farm Workers

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario department of agriculture has been so successful in cultivating an appetite among Ontario farmers for the performance of skilled British farm workers that now it can't meet the demand.

Since 1967 the agricultural manpower branch of the department has recruited almost 650 farm workers from Britain to relieve a shortage in Canada. But branch director John Krauter says another 100 to 150 experienced men are still needed for full-time work.

The estimate does not include the much greater numbers of part-time seasonal workers needed. Mr. Krauter says it reflects the development in which agriculture has become so mechanized that it must now compete with industry for skilled labor. The problem, he adds, is increased by the movement of rural residents to industrial jobs in larger centres.

Mr. Krauter hopes to level off the demand within four or five years by bringing in about 200 workers a year.

Mr. Krauter thought he was ahead of the problem after a 1967 recruiting trip to Britain netted 167 qualified applicants. By the end of the year, however, all the recruits had been placed on Ontario farms and requests were coming in for more.

A full recruitment program has resulted, jointly financed by the federal and provincial governments. With the workers paying their own way to Canada, the cost — $20 for each man placed — has been confined to advertising and travelling expenses.

Employers are expected to offer adequate wages, starting at $300 to $500 a month, and good conditions. Branch officials visit all the farmers to see a modern house will be provided.

As for the recruits, in a few cases they have saved enough to finance a farm of their own and six of them have gone into partnership with their employers. Mr. Krauter estimates that within four or five years, 25 per cent of them will have their own farms.

2nd Thurlow

2ND THURLOW — Mr. and Mrs. Fletcher Reid have returned home from a two week holiday at their cottage at Madoc.

Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Atkins and family spent the weekend at East Lake.

Mr. and Mrs. S. Ray visited with friends at Kemptville recently.

Mr. and Mrs. Ron Kinton and Karie Lyn of Kitchener spent the weekend with the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. S. Ray. Mr. and Mrs. Kinton left for a holiday to Quebec. Karie Lyn remained with her grandparents for a few days while her parents are holidaying.

A birthday surprise party was arranged by Mrs. Gordon Atkins in honor of her husband, Gordon Atkins, Brighton, who celebrated a birthday recently. A delicious potluck dinner was enjoyed. Later several gifts were received for which Mr. Atkins made suitable reply. A happy family reunion was enjoyed.

Unmanned Spacecraft Hurrying Toward Mars

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — While the world celebrates the Apollo 11 moon mission triumph, two unmanned spacecraft, Mariner VI and VII, are zipping toward Mars to give earth's television viewers another space spectacular.

Mariner VI is expected to beam back pictures of Mars from 2,000 miles from the surface next Tuesday, images that will take 5½ minutes to travel the 6,000,000 miles.

Mariner VII is to start sending pictures back on Aug. 3. The pictures are expected to reveal more details of the planet.

A spokesman for the Jet Propulsion Laboratory, part of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, said Thursday both Mariner missions are right on schedule.

Mars was televised by Mariner IX in 1965, but NASA engineers promise pictures far higher in quality from Mariners VI and VII than was possible four years ago.

"The really important keys to our progress are the improvements in the spacecraft and the ground receiver," said Gerald M. Truszynski, NASA's associate administrator for tracking and data acquisition.

We have been able to increase transmitter power, raising the strength of the signal on its journey to earth.

"On the ground, we have better design of the large antenna and microwave amplifier and receivers that go with them to provide much higher sensitivity and lower noise level.

"And the communications satellites permit the worldwide distribution of these signals as they are received back on earth."

Astronauts His Patients

Most Exciting Job for Doctor Goes to Tall Blonde Canadian

ABOARD HORNET (AP) — A tall 33-year-old Canadian doctor will have those medical curiosities —the first men to visit the moon —as his exclusive patients until Sunday.

"Right now, I've got the most exciting job of any doctor in the world," said Dr. William R. Carpentier, a lanky blonde native of Lake Cowichan, B.C., who once was more interested in aviation than medicine.

Dr. Carpentier was the only man unprotected by isolation garments to meet the Apollo 11 astronauts after they landed in the Pacific Thursday.

He escorted them from the helicopter that picked them up to the mobile quarantine facility —MF—on the hangar deck of the Hornet. Then he isolated himself with them in the MF.

The first medical word on the condition of the spacemen came after Dr. Carpentier made a quick examination in the MF. He worked with an international television audience, and the president of the United States, waited just outside.

In his preliminary findings, he reported that the astronauts showed no sign of contamination from moon germs.

"I think they're in good shape," he said. The only ailment he found was a minor infection in an ear drum of the first man to walk on the moon, Neil Armstrong.

Until the MF is moved from the Hornet to the Manned Spacecraft Centre in Houston by plane Sunday, Dr. Carpentier will be making extensive tests to find any.

"The probabilities are very low," he said.

Dr. Carpentier was born in a logging village that carries an Indian name—Cowichan—which means "valley warmed by the sun."

"It's 80 miles to Vancouver overland," he said, "but only 40 miles by ship."

He entered the University of British Columbia in 1961 to study medicine, but almost got sidetracked in aviation. He earned his pilot's licence as a freshman in college and for a while wasn't sure which profession to go into.

"Then I heard about this fantastic specialty called aviation medicine," he said, and decided to combine both his interests.

He took his residency at Ohio State and came to the Manned Spacecraft Centre in 1965. He's still stationed here, but spends a lot of time away.

After the MF arrives at the Manned Spacecraft Centre, Carpentier will go into quarantine with the spacemen and examine them daily until Aug. 12.

Carpentier is married and has two children.

His wife, he says, isn't worried about the moon bugs any more than he is.

8th Tyendinaga

8TH TYENDINAGA — Mr. and Mrs. Earl Cross and family are spending the week at North Bay at the home of Mrs. Cross' parents.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Skelly spent a couple of days in Toronto, guests of Mr. and Mrs. T. Lewis and boys; while there Mr. Skelly attended the Masonic Grand Lodge.

Mr. and Mrs. C. Boyle and family visited with Mr. and Mrs. Sam Cross, Mrs. J. Cross, John and Janice remained for a few days.

Mrs. G. Boyle is a patient in Belleville General Hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Clarke and family of Kingston have been visiting in the area.

MR. TWEEDY by Ned Riddle

Ted Kennedy Was No Stranger To Road Where Girl Killed

By JOSEPH E. MOHBAT
and
DONALD M. ROTHBERG

EDGARTOWN, Mass. (AP) — Senator Edward M. Kennedy was no stranger to the tiny Chappaquiddick Island where he made a 180-degree wrong turn down a lonely dirt road that led Mary Jo Kopechne to her death.

In his only statement since the mysterious accident last Friday night or early Saturday that took the 28-year-old woman's life, Kennedy said Saturday:

"I was unfamiliar with the road and turned right down Dyke Road instead of bearing hard left on Main Street."

By Main Street he meant Chappaquiddick Road, the island's only paved artery.

However, a college student said he saw Kennedy at least once, possibly twice, before the Friday accident, travelling the paved road on the three-mile-wide island south of Cape Cod. And others said Kennedy had been on the island frequently before.

Could Kennedy, whose 37 summers have been spent on Cape Cod and neighboring Martha's Vineyard, have been so unfamiliar with Chappaquiddick that he left its only paved road, leading to the Edgartown ferry, for a bumpy, unlighted road leading instead to a dark and dangerous bridge with no railing?

Could he have driven six-tenths of a mile down that road without realizing that he and his passenger were off course?

And how did he spend nine hours, during which he claimed he was in a state of shock, before reporting the accident to Edgartown's police?

Investigating these and other questions, The Associated Press has learned:

—A college student working on Chappaquiddick Island says he saw Kennedy earlier Friday riding in the black car from the ferry along the paved road that leads to the summer cottage Kennedy's cousin had rented for a party. He believes he saw Kennedy make the drive later, alone, after sailing in the Edgartown Yacht Club Regatta.

—A regular summer resident of Chappaquiddick says Kennedy was a frequent visitor to the island in summers past.

—An Edgartown policeman says all the Kennedy brothers knew the entire area, well.

—A driver travelling from the cottage to the ferry—even in broad daylight—must sharply reduce speed at the Tjilles Inlet section for a 90-degree turn, either to the left or to the right. A left turn keeps the driver on the paved road and takes him to the Edgartown ferry. To the right, he immediately leaves the pavement and enters the dirt road leading to the narrow wooden bridge from which the Oldsmobile plunged into dark, swift running tidal waters.

—A reflector sign before the junction guides the driver to the left along the main road. The dirt road is unmarked.

—Kennedy said he was driving only 20 miles an hour, and there was no indication of high speed at the bridge. None was needed. A driver over the humpbacked structure shows that it is treacherous even in daylight at a low speed.

"Take your pick, Tweedy. Either help me serve these or carry around my salt and pepper mill set."

TORONTO STOCKS

TORONTO (CP) — Golds fell to a low for the year in light mid-morning trading today as the market posted a small over-all gain.

The gold index dropped 2.76 to 211.83 as Dome Mines lost 1¼ to 66, Auwer 2¼ cents to $3.60 and Upper Canada five cents to $3.55.

Industrials gained .15 to 170.20. Western oils lost .49 to 233.38 and base metals .10 to 102.49.

Volume by 11 a.m. was 405,000 shares compared with 524,000 at the same time Thursday.

Eleven of the exchange's 21 group indexes were higher but losers outnumbered gains 119 to 82.

General manufacturers led the advance. The main reason for strength in this group was Ford Canada, up 3½ to 59 on 1,600 shares.

Other index movement was fractional.

Northgate gained ½ to 17½, Canadian Industrial Gas ¼ to 9½, Hudson's Bay Co. ¼ to 31, CPR ¼ to 25¾ and Inco ¼ to 30¼.

Ranger was down ⅛ to 15¾, Quebec Natural Gas ⅛ to 17½, Alcan ⅛ to 27¼, Rank ⅛ to 10¾ and Noranda ⅛ to 32.

The Toronto market overcame a small loss and closed mixed in light trading Thursday.

The market fell two consecutive days under pressure from sharp losses in New York. But, as New York showed some strength Thursday, Toronto reversed cautiously.

On index, industrials gained .04 to 170.05 and base metals .02 to 102.59. Western oils lost .53 to 233.87 and golds 4.83 to 214.59, a low for the year.

Volume remained light, with 2,221,000 shares traded compared with 2,305,000 Wednesday. Although the industrial index, the market's main indicator, was fractionally higher, losses outnumbered gains 255 to 172.

Eleven of the exchange's 21 group indexes were lower.

All upward movement was fractional but some groups, such as oil refining, construction and food processing, showed definite weakness.

In oil refiners, Texaco dropped ¼ to 27, Shell Canada ¼ to 26¼, Imperial Oil ¼ to 74¾ and Gulf Oil ¼ to 19.

Shell reported six-month earnings of 81 cents a share compared with 75 cents in the similar 1968 period. Imperial's first-half earnings were unchanged at 36 cents.

In construction and food processing stocks, Canada Cement lost ¼ to 30, Dominion Bridge ¼ to 13¾, Canada and Dominion Sugar ½ to 36 and Canada Bread ¼ to 10¾.

Campbell Chibougamau rose 35 cents to 99.50. The company said it has a proven and probable gold ore east of the present workings at its Quebec property.

Hudson's Bay Oil climbed 1 to 40 after reporting second-quarter earnings of 45 cents a share compared with 37 cents in the similar 1968 period.

MacMillan Bloedel was up ¼ to 30¾. The company has second-quarter earnings of 71 cents a share, compared with 55 cents in the corresponding 1968 period.

Most Infants Can Withstand Vaccination for Smallpox

By Dr. P. J. Steincrohn

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: We have waited many years for our first baby. Now that we have him, we don't want to subject him to any medical procedure that might be dangerous.

For example, take smallpox vaccination. We just heard of a case in which a youngster, died a few days after being vaccinated. Will you discuss the pros and cons? Our pediatrician insists everything will be all right. — Mrs. G.

Comment: I can understand why you're apprehensive; but from the time we are born, each one of us lives life dangerously. We are surrounded by threats to life, worried about disease and accident every waking hour, we couldn't go about the natural act of just living, and trying to get some satisfaction from life. But I suppose you don't want philosophy at this point. Therefore, I'll give you some facts.

I agree with your doctor that it is likely that your youngster will withstand vaccination without any complications. As I said, nothing is certain. But statistics are on your side. In only very rare cases does vaccination cause any trouble whatsoever. We know, however, there are certain contraindications to having it done.

For example, a child should not be vaccinated while it is suffering from eczema or poison ivy — or from any other form of dermatitis. Neither should a child have smallpox vaccination if it is acutely ill, has a staphylococcus infection of the skin, is under cortisone treatment, or has leukemia. And unless there has been exposure to smallpox, the pregnant woman should not have a primary vaccination.

Other than such exceptions, and some few other conditions I believe that a mother can safely entrust smallpox vaccination to her child's doctor. Hearing about a rare bad reaction should not deter a parent from providing the necessary protection for youngsters against smallpox.

* * *

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: What are the early stages of heart failure? Can it be controlled? — Mrs. C.

Comment: I'll try to give you a short answer in a short question — but an important one. Important because many persons overlook apparently innocent symptoms. Then it sometimes cough is one of the earliest symptoms. Also, shortness of breath which an obese person says is due to "all this extra fat. I'm carrying around." Or swelling of the ankles (or a slight pitting), which some say is due to "standing too long." A little pain under the breastbone or "gas" which is attributed to indigestion. Such are a few of the early symptoms. They can be controlled by proper treatment — and the earlier the better.

* * *

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: My mother, who is in her 70s, was hospitalized three months ago for a severe case of shingles in the lower rib area. She is still having a great deal of pain and burning. She refuses to see her doctor because he has not relieved her. Can you offer any advice? — Mrs. D.

Comment: Your case emphasizes the truth that shingles in the elderly patient isn't like the relatively simple condition found in youngsters. As in your mother's case, sometimes it plagues patients for many months.

Unfortunately, there is no one specific cure or medication that will guarantee to ameliorate the pain. I suggest she keep up with her doctor (and perhaps, ask for consultation). The doctor has to keep trying until he finds something which will help.

Summer Push for Higher Pay Spreads Strikes

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

A variety of mines, mills, hospitals, construction sites, grocery stores, breweries and a telephone company spent the last week in the shadow of strikes or threatened strikes as workers across Canada continued their long summer push for better pay and conditions.

A Cross-Canada Survey by The Canadian Press shows major labor disputes in British Columbia, Quebec, Newfoundland and New Brunswick but Ontario leads as the centre for strike action.

Into its third week in the province was the work stoppage by nearly 18,000 employees of the International Nickel Co. Ltd. of Canada, members of Locals 6200 and 6500, United Steelworkers of America. The union says it is not a strike, but a work stoppage for a new contract at Inco's Sudbury and Port Colborne plants.

The union has not spade its demands public but is believed to be asking for more than a $1.50-an-hour increase in wages and fringe benefits in a three-year contract. Current wage rates average $3.09 an hour.

The company has raised to 98 cents an hour its earlier offer of 95 cents.

Meanwhile, strikes involving other Ontario Steelworkers' locals are a possibility July 31 when contracts expire at the Steel Co. of Canada plant in Hamilton and Algoma Steel Corp. Ltd. in Sault Ste. Marie. Ron Tipler, president of Local 1005, representing 11,500 Stelco workers, says a strike might be called but described current negotiations as promising.

More threatening is the possibility of strike action by 1,135 employees of Union Gas Co. of Canada in Chatham, Ont., and its subsidiary, United Gas Ltd. in Hamilton. Officials of the Oil Chemical and Atomic Workers Union and the International Chemical Workers Union said Wednesday their men will go out Sunday night if no settlement has been reached.

Under the terms of a contract which expired last Dec. 31, the average wage was $3.17 an hour. The workers' demand for a $1-an-hour increase over the next two years has been met by a company offer of 14 per cent in the same period.

Meanwhile, in New Brunswick, more than 1,400 registered nurses—nearly 90 per cent of the province's full-time staff—have announced they will resign Aug. 15 because of an unsettled contract dispute. The New Brunswick Association of Registered Nurses has demanded wages ranging between $455 and $553 a month. The New Brunswick Hospital Association has offered a range between $425 and $497, an increase over the present scale of $373 to $455.

Québec shares labor problems with Newfoundland along the Labrador boundary, where iron ore operations have been shut down since early May by a walkout.

A demand for a $1-an-hour increase over three years by 1,100 Steelworkers in Schaeffervile, Que., and Wabush and Labrador City in Labrador has been answered with an offer of a 64-cent-an-hour increase by the Iron Ore Co. of Canada. A federal-provincial mediating team starts Thursday in Quebec City in an effort to bring a compromise.

Also lingering in Quebec is a strike by 1,000 copper workers in the Gaspe mining town of Murdochville against Gaspe Copper Mines Ltd. Proposed talks have been called off after the company sent letters to union members urging a vote on an offer of a 60-cents-an-hour increase. The strike began in May.

In trouble in the province are negotiations between Hydro Quebec and 8,000 members of the Canadian Union of Public Employees, between police and fireman associations and the City of Montreal, between 84,000 non-medical hospital employees and hospital managements, and between the government and 70,000 school teachers who have been without a contract since June, 1969.

In each case, except for the teachers, wages are the key issue.

Trudeau Caustic

Opposition MPs Called 'Nobodies'

Session Ends In Bitter Style

OTTAWA (CP) — Parliament, withered by July humidity and heavy debate, adjourned Friday until Oct. 22 after an explosive speech by Prime Minister Trudeau.

"I think we should encourage members of the opposition to leave early," Mr. Trudeau said at one point Friday. "Every time they do, the IQ of this House rises considerably."

"The opposition seems to think it has nothing else to do but talk," Mr. Trudeau said.

"They say: If there is a problem, we will talk. If there is a difficulty, we will talk about it. That is all they have to do. They do not have to govern, they only have to talk.

"The first place to talk, if they want a forum, is of course Parliament. When they get home, when they get out of Parliament, when they are 50 yards away from Parliament Hill, they are no longer honorable members — they are just nobodies."

At another point, a Conservative back-bencher accused Mr. Trudeau of kicking children.

Edward Broadbent (NDP—Oshawa-Whitby) said Mr. Trudeau's speech reeked of intellectual arrogance. It was not of the tone usually used by adults in a democratic country.

George Hees (PC—Prince Edward-Hastings) said Mr. Trudeau's remarks were pompous and glib. The prime minister was a "self-styled little tin god on wheels."

Friday's debate, the most acrid since the Pearson-Diefenbaker pie stakes, was the product of fatigue and the exhausting battle over a new time-allocation rule.

The rule came into effect at 1:59 a.m. Friday after the government imposed closure for the eighth time since 1917 Thursday to bring the rule debate to an end.

The rule gives the government unilateral power to set debating time limits if all-party or three-party agreement can't be reached.

The opposition arrived in the Commons Friday ill-prepared to accept anything and promptly rejected Government House Leader Donald S. Macdonald's motion for recess to Oct. 22.

Opposition Leader Robert L. Stanfield said the House should come back Sept. 22 so Parliament could deal with serious national problems.

NDP Leader T. C. Douglas and Creditiste Leader Real Caouette agreed, listing wheat, pollution and inflation as being among the prime problems.

Mr. Trudeau, temper worn thin by a week of "slog hells," responded with a general attack on opposition "hypocrisy" and a particular attack on various members of the opposition.

He said that Mr. Stanfield, as former premier of Nova Scotia, and Mr. Douglas, former premier of Saskatchewan, should realize a governments needs the summer recess to plan and draft its next legislative program.

The fall program may involve a major revision of social welfare benefits. Other items on the list include a new Indian Act, a bill to outlaw wiretapping and electronic eavesdropping and a new expropriation law.

Mr. Trudeau said he didn't expect Mr. Caouette to understand anything about government. The Creditistes were "zeros" and "nonentities" in Commons readings.

He also hit Mr. Stanfield, who twice this week tore into the government's use of authoritarian procedure. The Opposition leader said the new time-allocation rule would give Parliament a Gaullist chamber in which the opposition was powerless.

Mr. Trudeau said Mr. Stanfield was "contemptible" for drawing hatred and contempt upon Gen. de Gaulle. The former French president had never, "as did the leader of the opposition, withdrawn constructively the privileges of a member."

The jibe referred to an incident when Mr. Stanfield was Nova Scotia premier. Mr. Stanfield has said the incident involves a member who slandered someone outside the legislature.

Mr. Trudeau also turned on Donald MacInnis (Cape Breton-East Richmond), who drew his ire Thursday by asking whether Trudeau date Madeleine Gobeil "is still a director of the Nation-

Robber Dies In Gunfight

MEDICINE HAT, Alta. (CP)—One robber was shot and killed and a police officer shot twice in the head early today in an early-morning gun battle during which 11 persons were held hostage at a shopping centre in the city's southeast area.

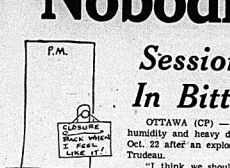
The identity of the dead man was not released immediately.

The officer, Const. Roy Funk, was in satisfactory condition in hospital after emergency surgery for two gunshot wounds in the head.

Police were called early this morning to investigate a break-in at the Aberdeen shopping centre. When four officers arrived at the scene they were held at gunpoint by two men.

The two men forced the officers to carry a safe from a supermarket to a car parked in front of the shopping centre. It was at this time Const. Funk was shot. He lay for some time on the boulevard in front of the centre.

Chief constable Sam Brader, who lives near the shopping centre, arrived on the scene and he too became a hostage. Six civilians, who were passing by in their cars, were forced to join the police officers as hostages.



As police reinforcements arrived, one of the two robbers apparently panicked and started shooting at the newly-arrived policemen. In the exchange of gunfire, he was fatally wounded.

The remaining robber threatened to shoot the four policemen and the wounded Const. Funk lying on the ground.

Chief Brader talked the men into releasing the hostages in return for himself as a hostage.

He accompanied the gunman in a car and drove to the city's flats area where the man's father-in-law was picked up.

A short while later, the three returned by car to the scene of the incident where the robber gave himself up.

Nixon Arrives
Huk Member Shot in Manila

MANILA (Reuters) — Manila police shot and killed a member of the pro-Communist Huk movement early today near a hotel where President Nixon was scheduled to meet Philippines' opposition political leaders tonight.

News of the incident prompted speculation that the Huks were planning to assassinate Nixon, but Secret Service sources travelling with the White House party discounted this theory.

Police said the dead man, Alberto Batac, was in a group of men in two vehicles involved in an incident with police in the Manila suburb of Makati.

The president and Mrs. Nixon flew to Manila from Guam.

Upon arriving at his first stop on an Asian tour, Nixon said Asians themselves should take the lead in promoting their defence and economic progress and in achieving peace in the Far East.

Fringe Benefit

It seems there is more to working underground than just meeting dew worms and looking for leaky pipes. For Oscar Collard, a Welland Water Commission employee, the job also provides opportunities to get a "worm's-eye-view" of some of the city's more attractive sights.

Astronauts Sail Home To 16 Days' Quarantine

ABOARD HORNET (AP) — Apollo 11's isolated astronauts cruised toward landfall in Hawaii today and a flight to Houston where they face 16 days additional quarantine against possible moon bugs.

They will be lodged in the same building where scientists today open the boxes of rocks that Neil A. Armstrong and Edwin E. Aldrin Jr. collected on the moon Sunday.

The two boxes were flown to Houston Friday, weighed, sterilized and kept overnight in a vacuum chamber. Their opening was delayed as geologists and scientists their first look at material from another celestial body.

The boxes were to be opened in glass vacuum chambers and handled with mechanical devices, by men reaching through glove ports.

Armstrong, Aldrin and Michael Collins remained in their silver quarantine van as the Hornet churned northeastward toward a 2 p.m. EDT arrival in Honolulu, where Gov. John Burns and thousands of Hawaiians planned to greet the heroes who flew man's first moon-landing mission.

The van will be moved by truck to Hickam Air Force Base for the flight by C-41 transport to Ellington Air Force Base near Houston.

The arrival was scheduled for 2:35 a.m. Sunday.

Dr. William Carpentier, a native of Lake Cowichan, B.C., the space agency doctor in the van with the astronauts, reported Friday that Armstrong's slight ear infection had disappeared, and said all three men were in excellent condition.

"We are all through with taking samples and tests—from now on there will be just one brief examination a day until we get to Houston," Carpentier said.

The astronauts appeared at the window of their trailer Friday and joined the ship's crew in singing hymns and offering prayers.

Two ship's chaplains—Rev. Francis S. Haryasz, a Roman Catholic priest, and Rev. John Piirto, a Lutheran minister—led the prayers and hymns.

Speaking into a microphone, Aldrin asked the crew on the hangar deck to join him and the other two astronauts in silent tribute to the men who died paving a path to the moon.

"We are proud to be made it," said Aldrin, the sound of his amplified voice broken only by the Pacific waves. "But we will remember there are some who did not make it."

Then the astronauts removed their blue Hornet baseball caps, bowed their heads and joined the carrier's crew in 15 seconds of silent prayer.

Six American astronauts and two Russian cosmonauts have died since the space age opened.

Armstrong described the moon flight as "crowding the experiences of centuries into a few days."

Dream of Scientists Comes True Today

HOUSTON (AP) — At long last the moment has arrived.

So long tantalized by the moon, scientists today realize a dream—a close-up look at rocks stolen from the moon and brought home to earth.

The drama begins when an aluminum box the size of a small suitcase is opened inside a vacuum chamber, in the lunar receiving laboratory at the Manned Spacecraft Center.

The box weighs 33 1-3 pounds, total. Inside are about 20 pounds of priceless treasure—probably more than 15 pounds of rocks from the moon, two tubes containing moon stuff dug up by coring five inches or so down and into the moon's surface, and an aluminum wrench-like tool that captured particles of the sun's eternal, atomic solar wind.

When the box is opened, scientists looking through a glass window, will for the first time see close up rocks from the moon. They were picked from the moon's surface at Tranquility Base by Neil A. Armstrong and Edwin E. Aldrin Jr., the first men to walk on the moon.

The careful process of exposing them to initial view is scheduled to begin when a crews of technicians comes on duty at the lunar receiving laboratory.

Actual opening of the box will come later but the time is not precise because no one has ever before had any experience with handling lunar rocks, Dr. Persa P. Bell of the laboratory said.

For scientists, the rocks will begin speaking the true story of how the moon was born, what has happened to it through billions of years, what may be happening to it now.

Through their factual story, the rocks will add more solid knowledge, not otherwise obtainable, about the earth, the sun, the solar system. They are bound to add something—whether a footnote or a new chapter to man's knowledge of his universe.

Rescue Workers Seek To Free Trapped Miners

WARSAW (Reuters) — Warsaw radio said rescue efforts continued around the clock but gave no fresh information about the incident. The official news agency PAP also gave no details.

A total of 119 miners were caught by a sudden surge of water, mud and sand from sediment ponds on the surface into underground shafts at the Gen. Alexander Zawadzki mine at Dabrowa Gornicza.

Miners from another section freed 37 men shortly after the accident. A PAP report said some of these men were injured but did not give details.

China Re-activates Diplomats

LONDON (AP) — China is resuming normal diplomatic activity around the world for the first time since it called home envoys for the cultural revolution two years ago, sources said today.

The Informants said the Chinese are re-appointing ambassadors to a number of capitals and relaxing some restrictions on foreign diplomats in Peking.

One reason for the change, they said, was the relative success of Soviet diplomats in explaining their side of Russia's dispute with China in countries where China was virtually unrepresented. Strengthened Chinese missions abroad are expected to try to counter this.

A new charge d'affaires is expected in London later this year, the sources said. He would be the first senior ranking Chinese diplomat in London since February, 1967.

China's mission here in recent months has been headed by Ma Chia Chun, who holds the relatively low rank of counsellor.

A new Chinese commercial counsellor, Chang Chien Hue, arrived in London Thursday to re-open China's commercial office for the first time since 1967. Chinese efforts to encourage more trade with Britain, as part of a modest improvement in relations between the two countries, are expected to follow.

At the same time, Western diplomats in Peking have reported better working conditions there and access to more senior officials in the Chinese foreign office.

John Denson, Britain's charge d'affaires in Peking, was allowed last month to visit Shanghai, Hankow and other Chinese cities. He was the first British chief of mission permitted to travel outside Peking in two years.

Scandinavian diplomats in Peking also have been allowed to travel to other Chinese cities, informants said.

THE WEATHER

Synopsis: Thunderstorm activity continued throughout southern Ontario during the night with unofficial estimates of about half an inch of rain to add to amounts received early Friday. A low pressure area covering most of the province is expected to result in more scattered storms today. A new storm centre over Saskatchewan and Dakota will move into the Great Lakes region Sunday with more showers and thunderstorms.

Hostess for Belleville

Chris Haig, 18, employee at the Belleville Chamber of Commerce to reply to inquiries by tourists and visitors, stands in the Bishop Parkette on West Moira street overlooking the Moira River and the mid-section of the city.

Not All Local

Chamber Kept Busy with Enquiries

There won't be any tourists visiting Belleville getting lost this year if the Chamber of Commerce has anything to say about it.

Chamber secretary-manager, O. F. Bradley and Chris Haig, an attractive student hired by the chamber for the summer to answer tourist calls are receiving 40 inquiries a day.

And the inquiries are varied — questions about Canada, the United States, Ontario and Belleville itself.

Mr. Bradley explained that there are two basic types of inquiries received by himself and Miss Haig.

"They either want to know what to do locally or they want to find out how to carry on," he said.

The Chamber of Commerce keeps a record of all inquiries concerning tourists whom they've been able to help.

A group of tourists from South America were assisted recently by the chamber. With the help of Mr. Bradley and Miss Haig, the visitors planned a route throughout Ontario and sections of the United States.

"They rented a car here for their entire trip," Mr. Bradley said.

Visitors here want to know attractions for their children throughout the province and the country.

And they are interested in Belleville as well. Places most mentioned by tourists are the Hastings County Museum and beaches in the surrounding area.

They frequently ask for information on Riverside Park, Corby Park and Zwick's Island.

And there is a personal assistance, Mr. Bradley cited a case where tourists were looking for relatives in the area and the chamber was able to locate them.

"These are the things that people appreciate," he said.

Most tourists are impressed by the large selection of pamphlets and written material available at the Belleville chamber office.

The material covers practically all of Canada and many sections of the United States — maps and brochures.

Consequently Mr. Bradley and Miss Haig receive inquiries about attractions in a much larger area than the province itself.

The Marilimes are frequently a topic of inquiry.

"I've been surprised at the infrequence of questions about Montreal and Man and His World," Mr. Bradley mentioned.

In most cases tourists come to the chamber for assistance, but there's usually an average of 12 telephone calls per day.

"There's 25 letters a week requesting information on the area itself and other parts of the province."

But it's Miss Haig who comes into more direct contact with the tourists.

Many, she said, want places to stay.

"I've had quite a few come in looking for the LCBO. They also want maps of the city," she said.

The Outlet Park is a constant source of comment and inquiry.

"A couple from Switzerland commented on the Outlet, saying it was wonderful and that the people were very friendly.

Many Americans go to the chamber office to find out about their own country.

"There are many comments on the improvement of Zwick's Island. They've been here before. People that have lived here before and are coming back to visit friends comment on the growth of the city."

And tourist growth is exactly what it is.

Employment News

By J. R. STAVELEY,
Manpower Counsellor

The labor demand in the Belleville area slackened off during the past week which is normal for this area at this time of year due to industrial plants being closed for summer holiday shut-downs

But, indicative of the area's increased economy is the fact that temporary summer employment has been provided by local employers for 50 per cent more students than was the case in the summer of 1968.

The Belleville General Hospital and Northern Electric took the lead in hiring summer students.

A larger number of persons living elsewhere in Canada, and especially from the Metropolitan area, are interested in living and working in the Quinte area than in recent years.

Also there is a steady influx of recently landed immigrants coming to this area initially seeking suitable employment in order to make this district their home.

The following employment opportunities are now available at this office.

In the female division, there are job openings for qualified cooks and experienced, mature waitresses.

There is an attractive position as yet unfilled for a physiotherapist. This position calls for the planning and supervision of construction play programs for young children.

Another opening calls for an experienced bookkeeper on a regular part time basis. In constant demand are experienced cashiers. The provincial government has a number of positions calling for typists and stenographers for work in various government departments in the city of Toronto.

An industrial plant located in South Fenelon is seeking a stenographer who will work for the general manager and sales manager. This position calls for experience with a Grade XII commercial preferred. The typing speed should be 60 words per minute.

The following unfilled positions are available for men seeking employment. Experienced automatic screw machine operators, radio and TV repairmen, licensed automobile repair mechanic, a mature service station attendant for the night shift and an experienced automobile radiator repairman, manager trainees for the banking, retail and financial fields and an electronic technician who must possess experience in sound engineering. Other local vacancies call for a party chief for legal surveying work and a plant superintendent and salesmen for door-to-door sales.

In neighboring towns, there is a demand for all position welders and by the Trenton Canada Manpower Centre, 72 Front St. Trenton, there is a requirement for a business machine repairman.

Anyone interested in these positions, seeking employment or re-entering the labor market should contact the Canada Manpower Centre at 324 Church St., Belleville.

al Arts Centre and have other friends of the prime minister been appointed?"

Mr. Trudeau said he doesn't intend to answer any questions by Mr. MacInnis because the Breton member "isn't a gentleman."

Mr. MacInnis replied that at least the prime minister doesn't kick him.

"He only kicks children," chimed in Jack Bigg (PC—Prembina), referring to a remment in Mr. Trudeau's recent western tour.

After the Trudeau speech, Stanley Knowles (NDP—Winnipeg North Centre) said any hope of agreement on anything had evaporated.

The House spent a full five hours of purgative name-calling and went into private members hour without agreement on adjournment.

Then, with 20 minutes left in the day's sitting, back-room negotiation produced an agreement, the Conservative motion was defeated on a voice vote, and the House agreed to adjourn.

The cabinet meanwhile will spend the next few weeks beating out policy, then vacation while officials draft legislation and return in September to look at the drafts before the House reassembles.

A cabinet shuffle may also be forthcoming. Speculation centres about Government House Leader Donald S. Macdonald, who was given the task a year ago of revising the rules.

His job ended with the time-allocation rule and it is expected he will be given another portfolio.

The session which ended Friday, began last September and was marked by co-operation, until the July rule debate, and productivity.

Earl Luck, Farley avenue, holds 13-pound pickerel caught by Mr. and Mrs. Frank Wilson of Belleville during successful fishing trip north of Sturgeon Falls.

Long Drive North Pays Off in Fish

A 325-mile drive to Northern Ontario for a fishing trip is a long way to go, but two Belleville couples feel it is worth the effort — especially when you get your limit.

The two couples, Frank and Evelyn Wilson, 19 Highland Ave., and Earl and Lois Luck, 240 Farley Ave., caught their trip limit of lake trout.

But it was the feminine side of the two-couple fishing party which took the honors.

Mrs. Luck caught exactly one half of the 20 fish limit.

Mrs. Wilson caught five lake trout and also hooked the prize finny beauty of the entire fishing trip.

Mrs. Wilson's husband helped her land the 13-lb. pickerel.

Mr. and Mrs. Luck returned home to Belleville Thursday night with the catch.

There was no suggestion that landing the 13-pound pickerel caused the ill effects but the Wilsons had to remain at Sturgeon Falls where Mrs. Wilson was taken to hospital with stomach cramps.

Deer Rock Dam to Begin

Construction of the long-talked about Deer Rock Lake Dam on Partridge Creek on the upper reaches of the Skootamatta River will get underway this summer.

Tenders for the construction of the dam were opened yesterday by the Moira River Conservation Authority with the low tender submitted by Tatham Construction of Belleville, being for $120,500. Subject to approval by engineers and by the department of energy and resources, the low tender will be accepted.

Completion date for the dam structure is Nov. 1.

Ellery Thompson of Kaladar has the contract"for clearing of the lands which will be flooded when the Deer Rock Lake dam goes into operation. The clearing contract was for $152,000.

Although the dam is scheduled to be completed by Nov. 1, the structure will not go into operation until all clearing has been done.

The purpose of the dam is to increase the reservoir capacity of Deer Rock Lake, the water to be released during the summer period to increase summer flow on the Moira.

Rat Action Awaits Return of MOH

County health unit investigators will take another look into the complaint of rats at a Foster Ave. residence.

But nothing can be done until the return of Medical Officer of Health Dr. C. R. Lenk, who is now on holidays.

"Something will be done — but we'll have to wait until Dr. Lenk returns from holidays," stated sanitary inspector Robert Westlake.

The request for some kind of action to rid a Foster ward home of rodents was made to council early this week by Mrs. Mary McLaughlin representing the Belleville Furniture Exchange.

Mrs. McLaughlin said the rats had chewed through the connecting cables servicing an electric range and several refrigerators supplied by her organization to a welfare family.

She asked that a pest exterminator be authorized to go into the home and also called for a minimum standard housing by law to be passed by the city.

Council turned the rat complaint back to the health department indicating it would support any action taken, any action taken.

Heavy Rain, Hail Hits Tweed Area

TWEED (Special) — Up to an inch of rain and a liberal coating of hail fell in the Tweed area early this morning as a sharp electrical storm swept through the district.

The storm struck the area shortly after 7 o'clock and hail stones were still lying in the grass and on verandahs two hours later.

As result of the storm the temperature dropped suddenly to 54 degrees.

The rainfall at Tweed village was one half inch but a full inch fell at Stevens and .84 inch at Bancroft and Dacre.

Belleville escaped the heavy rain with only .16 inch being reported since yesterday morning.

Aid Given All Year

Miss Lynn Pinder, staff nurse at the Belleville branch of the VON, discusses aspects of the organization's visiting program with Mrs. Eleanor Sisson, chairman of the United Appeal's commercial committee. The Belleville branch is one of 107 VON branches throughout Canada helping patients help themselves.

First in A Series

VON's Continued Service Depends on Fund Assistance

When sickness strikes, the patient usually finds himself under the expert surveillance of hospital staff.

But the curbing of the illness is only half the battle — recuperation in the home is nother major undertaking.

That is where the VON, one of the organizations receiving aid from the United Appeal donations comes into focus.

Established in 1897, the organization is a nationally recognized visiting service, with 107 branches throughout Canada. The VON provides its services at the request of family or patient, as well as on a referral program from hospitals and doctors to ensure continuity of nursing care for convalescents.

"We do all nursing care," explained Miss Pinder, staff nurse at the Belleville branch. "We have equipment for everything short of an operation."

Medical and surgical patients requiring dressings and injections as ordered by the physician, make up the majority of daily cases. Patients are responsible for their own medication and the VON provides the nursing service."

Cost of the visits is set at $5 but this fee is flexible. "We don't deny anyone the services," stressed Miss Pinder. "Payment is on a sliding scale."

This "non-obligatory" fee system operates according to the financial status of the patient. Persons who have absolutely no funds to meet the treatment costs are given the help they require at no charge.

It is in cses like this that the VON depends on funds from charitable organizations. Donations from the United Appeal are one way the VON is recompensed for its free services. In 1968, United Community Services granted the VON an allocation of $6775.

"The number of patients has really increased in the last few months," commented Miss Pinder.

In addition to the daily visits on the VON's agenda, the organization offers pre-natal and post-natal services to area residents. The VON nurse will help set up the baby's schedule and aid the mother in preparation of the formula. This is a free service, usually administered at doctor's request.

The Victorian Order of Nurses is designed to "help the patient help himself". With the aid of donations from the United Appeal, the organization is able to continue its services to serve the community.

Canoe Trip To Mazinaw Ends Series

A group of young adventurers left the Belleville Family YMCA last night for a weekend of fishing, camping and canoeing.

The journey is the last in a series sponsored by the YMCA for young people 13 years and over.

During the weekend the young people will travel to Sheldrake Lake near Mazinaw.

The canoeing journeys have involved young people of all ages and have been co-educational. Last night's final expedition will return Sunday afternoon.

The group uses canoes donated to the YMCA by the Y's Men's Club.

This is the first year for this type of expedition and Glen Manthorne, program director at the Y, hopes it will continue next year.

"It's nothing but wilderness and wildlife," he said. "We hope to get in some fishing and some swimming."

Sanitary Sewer Approved

The city of Belleville has received the go-ahead word from the Ontario Municipal Board for the construction of a stretch of sanitary sewer in Foster Ward to which Liquifuels Ltd. had filed objection.

City Manager J. R. Reynolds said the OMB had ruled against the Liquifuels' objection and that the sewer construction would now go ahead.

Liquifuels' objection to the proposed sewer was that its property was already served by another line. Total cost of the sewer is estimated at about $7,000 of which the objecting company would be assessed a share under local improvements.

Art Show Ends Parks Course

PICTON — "Projects for children, by children," the motto of Picton Recreation Parks Arts and Crafts, sprang to life in a colorful art show in Benson Hall Friday afternoon.

Arts and Crafts instructor Chris Seeley welcomed visitors to the show while three young students guides pointed out noteworthy displays. Chris a student at PECI has been involved in Picton's summer recreational program for the past three years. For two seasons he was a playground leader. This summer he instructs children from all five Picton play schools in programs of arts and crafts geared to junior and senior age groups.

Chris is conducting three courses this summer. The first began on July 15 and ended yesterday with the art show. The second one will begin on July 29, and the third on August 12. Each child pays 25 cents for every course he takes. Classes are open to youngsters from 5 to 15 years of age.

Senior students in the course are introduced to oil painting, as they have already received the fundamentals of art in their art classes at school.

Among the original and attractive displays at the show were merry-go-rounds crafted from plastic bottles, paper mache animals, a rabbit designed from cardboard tubes, and a special "Indian display," peace pipe included.

A number of parents, playground students, and interested passers-by stopped to see the craft exhibits.

Political Power

The danger of political power being concentrated in the hands of a few is one that is recognized by all who are close to politics and are concerned about the public becoming truly involved in the democratic process.

Deseronto councillor Dorothy McCullough raised the issue at the recent conference in Belleville attended by Ontario Premier Robarts and other members of the Legislature.

Certainly it is a pressing subject in these days of concentration of political power at the county education level for example. And it calls for renewed public interest in this and all other matters affecting the public at whatever level of government.

A related issue was Bancroft deputy reeve Earl Hawley's question whether elected representatives or civil servants were running the government. The premier answered by expressing his awareness of this matter and assured Mr. Hawley "we are doing everything in our power to see the elected representative holds the position to which he is entitled and which his responsibility demands that he have."

The situation has a parallel in Ottawa. There Prime Minister Trudeau is reported to be making sure his own ministers and not the civil service "mandarins" are fully responsible for policy-making.

Meetings such as the one in Belleville in themselves are an excellent manifestation of the democratic process, enabling the public to question leading political figures on the questions of the day. The Quinte area has had a number of these of late and that is all to the good.

Mrs. Nixon's Guest

Pat Nixon, wife of the U.S. president, is a quiet first lady. For the present at least she appears to be shunning the limelight.

Nevertheless a glimpse of the kind of duties expected of the President's wife was afforded by Mrs. Nixon at the height of the excitement over the Apollo moon flight. At the White House Mrs., Nixon entertained eighth-year-old Dawn Martin of West Palm Beach, Florida, who is the poster child of the Epilepsy Foundation of America.

Epilepsy is a disease of the nervous system as old as man himself and although no cure has yet been found it has in many cases been brought under control by drugs. Thousands of epileptics lead normal, happy lives in this way, holding jobs and raising families.

For years epilepsy has been regarded by the unsophisticated as something akin to being possessed by the devil — a concept going back to early times which has largely been eradicated. Nevertheless, there is some lingering prejudice against victims both at the public and administrative level.

Take this country. Would-be emigrants to Canada who are epileptics are permitted to enter Canada only with a special permit. That is, if they are admitted at all, for the fact is some have difficulty. Even then they are not eligible for Canadian citizenship and the permit must be renewed annually. It is a situation that might have amused Julius Caesar, himself an epileptic, were he alive today and in a conquering mood.

An epileptic seizure occurs when the natural energy of the brain somehow gets out of kilter, perhaps due to brain damage at birth. With some it can occur later in life, say during pregnancy where women are concerned. Fortunately the public at large is more familiar with the disease and its symptoms than in the past and with how to aid sufferers — like ensuring they come to no physical harm during a seizure and, where possible, are allowed to sleep afterwards.

What They Earn

Astronaut Neil Armstrong we understand earns something like $27,000 a year.

Less than some of our county education directions in Ontario are earning.

Lesser space fliers, those still at the rookie stage and groundlings as yet, get considerably less — something like $15,000.

Another interesting comparison is the big money pilots of the big Boeing jumbo jets will make. Trans World Airlines has signed an agreement with the Air Line Pilots Association providing for a pay scale of more than $50,000 a year for senior pilots. Other airlines are expected to conclude similar agreements.

Airline officials say the average pilot of a 747 (jumbo jet) would have eight years of jet flying experience and perhaps 20 years of prop-plane time.

Guatemala Aids Victims

Refugees, Savage Terrain, Feature of Latin Conflict

An AP News Analysis

By CHARLES GREEN

SANTA ROSA, Honduras (AP) — The bitter war between Honduras and El Salvador has poisoned the air over Central America.

Salvadoreans and Hondurans are similar in speech, dress, habits and passion. But after a week of war, hatred has gone deep. A shaky ceasefire is being maintained.

Resentment has been fanned into hatred by huge propaganda campaigns. Hondurans are convinced El Salvador seeks the permanent takeover of some Honduran territory. Salvadoreans are convinced Hondurans intend to find the "final solution" for an estimated 300,000 Salvadoreans who reside in Honduras.

Nearby countries watch nervously lest they become involved. So far Guatemala, Nicaragua, Costa Rica and Panama have remained neutral. Guatemala has become a sort of Switzerland of this war by opening her borders and Red Cross facilities to thousands of refugees.

There are many atrocity stories—most difficult to prove. Honduran peasants and soldiers near the battle zone in the northwestern frontier are convinced that Salvadorean troops who invaded the area have murdered women and children.

El Salvador is a small and overcrowded country. In the past Salvadoreans moved into underpopulated areas of larger Honduras. El Salvador charged before the outbreak of hostilities and during them that these people were being persecuted.

Many fled Honduras.

Fidel Sanchez, president of El Salvador, as a condition for peace, demands that the Honduran government guarantees the safety and welfare of those remaining.

This demand makes it difficult to foresee a peaceful solution because the guarantee would be almost impossible to enforce.

The Honduran area between Nueva Ocotepeque and Santa Rosa is so rugged and so isolated that even the warring armies could not maintain reliable contact with frontline troops. Orders for a ceasefire last Friday night had to be relayed by hand to Honduran troops because military commanders had no contact with the front.

The remoteness of this area and another farther south called the "central front" make enforcement of safety for Salvadorean settlers in Honduras difficult in the extreme.

The governments' propaganda machines have built hatred to such a pitch that even if the Honduran government could put its army adequately, it would have difficulty controlling reprisals.

Hondurans in this area is populated by uneducated peasants. They are a rough people to whom violent death is no stranger. Disputes are settled locally and quickly. Almost every male over the age of 10 carries a machete—a tool and a weapon.

"In your case I'd say it would be at least $10!"

Improving the Quality of Wool

BBC London Letter

The International Wool Secretariat — a world-wide organization for promoting the uses of wool — has opened a new Technical Centre at Ilkley in Yorkshire, home of the British woollen industry.

In a talk broadcast by the BBC, George Short said this new Technical Centre would be described by most industries as a research centre. The International Wool Secretariat has called it a Technical Centre to distinguish between the applied research which it carries out, and the pure research which goes on in other more academic establishments. Wool sales have been under pressure for years from synthetic fibres, and this Technical Centre is intended to spearhead the counter-attack. It aims to improve woollen products, to reduce manufacturing costs, to find new uses for wool, and in general to act as a bridge between pure scientific research and its application in the factories. The international aspect of the parent organization is certainly carried through into the Technical Centre. It draws on knowledge, experts and material from all over the world, and answers queries from Wool Secretariat technical teams in more than twenty countries.

Giving extra softness to woollen carpets is one problem with which the Centre is concerned. The Technical Centre is also developing ways of giving brighter colours to woollens, and improving the process of shrinkproofing.

Cotton and rayon, textiles can be dyed with bright fast colours. In comparison, wool textiles have always tended to be rather dull, or their colours have been less fast. This state of affairs is now coming to an end as better ways of dyeing wool are developed. The International Wool Secretariat has discovered how to use the same dyes as the cotton and rayon industry, even under mass production conditions. This is by no means a simple problem, because wool is quite different chemically from the other textiles, and previous attempts to use these dyes have been thwarted by patchy results and a tendency for the wool to turn yellow during the operation.

Woollens which can stand up to the harsh treatment, meted out by the average washing machine can be bought already. But they do not have the same warm soft feel as ordinary ones. The Technical Centre has been working on a new process to make woollens shrink-proof without sacrificing their woolliness.

Success Story of A 'Small' Businessman

CBC Times

There are a number of self-made, aggressive, native-born businessmen with million-dollar organizations who are doing a lot for the Canadian economy, but hardly anyone outside their immediate business and social circles has ever heard of them.

Such a man is D'Arcy McConvey and his family of Toronto.

McConvey was born in Canada 50 years ago, graduated as a chemical engineer and started working for a chemical industry. He decided that Toronto would be the best place to settle and raise a family, so he and his wife, who hails from North Bay and once worked at a radio station, put down roots and began to prosper. They have two children, Carla, 20, who studied designing at Ryerson, and Patrick, 16, who works part-time for his father, and hopes to graduate in business administration and later take over the business.

McConvey first branched out on his own when the company he worked for decided to sell part of its heavy industrial machinery and chemical business. He didn't like what they were proposing to do, so the boss said well, then, why don't you buy it yourself? McConvey stomped back to his office, thinking of resigning. Then he decided to take the suggestion, and begged and borrowed $50,000, a little here, a little there, and before long the business mushroomed. The first day on the job he hadn't a chair to sit on, received a $10,000 order. Then he heard that the parent company was going to sell Mrs. Arnott's part of its business, and he managed to arrange a 'chance meeting' with her to buy it, and the deal was soon clinched. Then he was offered the distribution of a big automotive product, and later a snowmobile; then he bought out an outboard motor manufacturing company, and now he's manufacturing a trailer to carry the snowmobile and boats, and is thinking of branching into hovercraft.

With the approach of a much shorter work week and more leisure, he's hoping his outdoor equipment will be in even greater demand. He has dealerships in Malta and Saudi Arabia and plans to have more.

The Spanish 'Monarchy'

Windsor Star

Spain is to restore a monarchy on the retirement or death of Generalissimo Francisco Franco. The dictator has named as his successor Prince Juan Carlos who, at the appropriate time, will fill the vacant throne.

The Spanish monarchy won't be a democratic one in the British sense. The Prince will assume the dictatorial powers possessed by Franco for the 31 years since the Civil War in that country.

Spain has a Cortes (legislature) but it has been the puppet of Franco. It is likely to continue in this lowly state under Juan Carlos. It is improbable there will be any spate of reforms.

The choice of Juan Carlos was deliberate and designed to retain the status quo after Franco. The dictator ignored Prince Don Juan, the legitimate pretender a dictorial prince succeeds a to the throne, and the father of Juan Carlos. Franco hand-picked and groomed the younger man as his successor.

Conditions in Spain cry out for reforms. The rich are extra rich, living in luxury, and the masses are very poor, living in misery. There are some liberal forces at work, in the unions and the universities. There even are some liberal clergy. In a country where the Roman Catholic Church has been ultra conservative.

But the liberalism has had little chance to exert itself, Franco keeping the lid on the discontent. Whether Juan Carlos will be able to do so is for the future to reveal.

It is quite improbable that freedom will reign where Juan Carlos rules. The Spanish people will get more of the same when a dictatorial prince succeeds a dictatorial chief of state.

UK Exports Pick Up

Regina Leader-Post

Leading British newspapers are heartened by the fact that in June the country's export od goods and services had reached the rate of a million pounds sterling per hour.

The Financial Times noted that the trade figures, if one overlooks the inevitable month to month fluctuations, do seem to be moving in the right direction. The newspaper said:

"It is when one looks back over the past year as a whole across the Atlantic Ocean most impressive. The fact that exports have apparently eased off while exports are rising steadily does not necessarily imply that the balance of payments is improving fast enough to hit the latest target, a surplus of 300 million pounds ... but we are making progress although there is still a good way to go."

The Financial Times said that, as a trading nation, Britain is now paying its way in the world but a trading surplus, as opposed to a mere balance, is needed

Some Thoughts About the Moon

Ottawa Journal

How quibbling and small-minded seem the arguments that the cost was too great or the science vague. Who could have doubted the rightness of this venture when Neil Armstrong said it's ordinary qualities lingered over lunch, that "Eagle is in safe orbit."?

Irrelevant too is the criticism which President Nixon has received for speaking to the men while they walked on the moon. Perhaps it did take up a couple of minutes of valuable moon time. But it was a natural, understandable gesture of the man who was President at the time of this achievement. Nixon can't be held responsible for not being in office when the Apollo program was started!

* * *

Peterborough Examiner

President Richard Nixon added a quiet calm and dignity to the occasion with his sincere congratulations and pledge of the prayers of his fellow citizens.

The mission had so far been successful but it was too early to assess its meaning.

In a sea of unrestrained enthusiasm, Bertrand Russell offers a small, however unpleasant, taste of realism. "For my part, I should wish to see a little more wisdom in the conduct of affairs on Earth before we extend our strident and deadly disputes to other parts. It is for us to grow to the stature of the cosmos, not to degrade the cosmos to the level of our futile squabbles."

Curiosity, ambition, prestige, adventure and opportunism have dominated the American space programme. All of these motivations are necessary and some of them even have a touch of nobility.

Briton Rows Atlantic

Brockville Recorder and Times

It was an interesting co-incidence that British adventurer John Fairfax completed his solo row across the Atlantic Ocean a day before the astronauts landed on the moon.

Fairfax covered 4,000 miles of water in 180 days, compared to the astronauts' 240 miles of space in three and a half days. But the distance, time and mode of travel are incidental. It's the spirit that counts.

The 32-year-old Briton's willingness to risk the dangers and hardships of an ocean crossing in a 22-foot rowboat, "because it was a challenge" can be disregarded as sheer dare-devilry but his courage cannot be questioned. His ordeal accomplished something beyond showing that such a feat is possible, but Mr. Fairfax, like the astronauts, is a special breed of man

Anglican Church Will Study Its Attitude Toward Indians

SUDBURY, Ont. (CP) — The attitude of the church towards Canadian Indians is one of the major topics expected to come before the 26th general synod of the Anglican Church of Canada.

Challenging reports and recommendations involving the church's responsibility in regard to national social issues, Christian unity and theological education are scheduled for discussion, making the synod one of the important in the church's history.

The biennial synod, the church's highest legislative body, will be held at Laurentian University here Aug. 18-26. More than 250 delegates, representing clergy and laity of 28 dioceses, will meet. Most Rev. Howard H. Clark, Archbishop of Rupert's Land and Primate of Canada.

In the field of social action, the church has intensified research into its policy and attitudes toward Canada's native peoples and Indians in particular.

Based largely on a report by Prof. Charles E. Hendry, director of the school of social work at the University of Toronto, the general synod's program committee recommends the establishment, in consultation with the native peoples, of a program of development on the national level in line with their proposals for self-determination and recognition of their rights as Canadians.

Dr. Hendry's report, embodied in his book, Beyond Trap Lines, which was commissioned by the Anglicans Church, urges among other things a redefinition of the and Eskimos, clarification of its intentions and redeployment of its resources. Synod will be asked to approve the creation of a national development fund calling for a financial commitment by all Anglicans in Canada.

The fund will also be used to implement proposals arising out of the Montreal Conference on Christian Concern and Poverty held a year ago. Representatives of nine Christian churches are developing a practical strategy for unified action in dealing with community problems by ecumenical co-operation.

Other resolutions to come before the delegates deal with immigration, particularly the need for legislation to help refugees qualify as landed immigrants, pollution, human rights, and the need for Christian political involvement.

A marked advance in negotiations looking to organic union with the United Church of Canada will be made if general synod concurs in a resolution to be presented by its Committee on Christian Unity. Delegates will be asked to recommend that Anglican bishops may give permission for reciprocal acts or services of intercommunion on occasions such as gatherings officially sponsored and held to promote unity.

Revision of present ecclesiastical discipline to allow reciprocal intercommunion in the years prior to the attainment of organic union was urged a year ago by the General Communion on Union composed of 40 members equally divided between the negotiating churches.

Plans for a radical new approach to theological education are proposed in a report made by a three-man commission after a two-year study.

It recommends that training for the priesthood should be carried out in three regional centres located in Vancouver, Toronto and Halifax. There are 10 colleges scattered throughout the country now. These could be maintained for continuing education for the clergy and also for lay training. The plan stresses that theological education should be an ecumenical process wherever possible.

After years of controversy, clarification of the role of the primate, the highest office in the Anglican Church of Canada, is likely to be made here.

Proposals of a commission, appointed in 1967, call for the election of a primate from among the church's bishops who would be the presiding bishop. He would become the church's senior metropolitan with the title of archbishop, holding office until he resigns or reaches the age of 70.

While the primate would have no specific diocesan responsibilities as at present, he will have a pastoral relationship to the whole Canadian church, in the name of which he may speak after consultation with the national executive council or the general synod. He would operate from national headquarters, at present in Toronto, and become the chief executive officer of the national staff.

Beekeeper Monk Finds Demand for Paintings

WOODSTOCK, Ont. (CP) — The beekeeper monk at the Studie monastery here keeps as busy as he does he tends with his artistic sideline, but still can't meet the demand for his religious paintings.

Rev. Diaken Filotay Kstor, 65, came to Woodstock in 1951 as a founding member of the monastery after years as a painter and art teacher in European monasteries.

He paints only religious works, and not for private collectors. The demand is so great that he can't fill all the orders from Ukrainian and Greek Catholic churches in Canada and the United States, and they have first call.

It's a labor of love. All his work is the property of the monastery, and he never knows the sale prices. The monastery negotiates the sales to churches, with proceeds going to its building fund.

His paintings, distinguished by rich, glowing colors on gold backgrounds, hang in numerous churches throughout Europe. He says he has one "too many to count."

He has done several large works since coming here, the most elaborate of which are in a Ukrainian Catholic church in Prince Albert, Sask., and the Greek Catholic Church of St. Nicholas in Victoria, B.C. His present projects are Easter and Good Friday scenes for churches in Detroit and Chicago.

Brother Kstoz begins each work with a pencil sketch, then spends several hours painting in a relatively elaborate studio at the monastery.

But that's in addition to his full shift as one of seven monks conducting the farming operation on the 100-acre site. He gets a few hours during the summer, but does most of his painting in winter when the bees are dormant.

Scharie

SCOHARIE — Mr. and Mrs. David White and Robin, Moosonee spent Friday night and Saturday with her grandmother, Mrs. Ben Payne. They are in Kingston for the summer where Mr. White is taking a course at Queen's University. They will return to Moosonee in the fall where he teaches.

Mr. and Mrs. Steve Wilson, Bay Ridges spent a few days with their mother, Mrs. Bessie Leavitt.

Mr. and Mrs. Burton Norton, Connie and Linda entertained about 60 former Junior Farmers and their wives and families at their home. A potluck dinner was also enjoyed.

Very Fashionable Children Will Enjoy School This Fall

Children's back-to-school wear for fall '69 has broken with tradition. Gone is the simple little dress, sweater or skirt for the returning schoolgirl.

This year everything comes with something else: sweaters and dresses come in matching or co-ordinated pants, jumpers have pants or their own patterned blouses and leotards, and the return of the suit-look means skirts are frequently teamed with matching or co-ordinated jackets.

One of the top new ideas for fall is the tunic pant suit. The tunic, which is mini-length may be worn alone as a dress or with the matching pants for a pant ensemble look. Both may be worn to class where pants are allowed and the dress may be worn alone to class where pants are restricted, teaming up again with the pants after school.

Colors are so varied every schoolgirl can do her own thing and express her own emerging personality in the colors and shades she chooses to put together. Although the tones are soft, they have clarity without brightness.

Red, white and blue are seen frequently either alone or in combination. Yellow, beige, green and brown are next in importance and while is used additionally for accent touches with other colors.

Fall clothes for school and after-four in soft, clear colors present few care problems for mothers. In single and double knits of "Orlon" acrylic fibre as well as bonded knits and woven fabrics of "Orlon", these clothes can easily keep up their original sparkling, crisp look.

The unisex syndrome, which has reached a high in the adult fashion world, is being offered to youngsters in one-piece jumpsuits of stretch Du Pont nylon. As well as being on the fashion scene, these items are easy to care for by mikhers of the swinging younger set.

Leading silhouette and fabric trends in fall adult fashion are interpreted for children's fall garments. These ideas are not merely being cut down to size for the smaller wearers but have been completely re-designed for the smaller, more youthful fashion set.

Checks and tweeds, argyles and herringbones, all highly touted in adult fall fashions, are scattered throughout children's wear collections but again, all reduced to the proper scale.

Peasant and gypsy looks are interpreted with embroidery, wide bands of intarsia design on otherwise solid colored items, and flounced skirts and pants.

Pleats are everywhere, with all-round box pleats and the single, skirt-front inverted pleat leading the fall fashion class.

THE LONG, LONG SWEATER — reilly swings for back-to-school as it grows into a sweater-dress which may be worn alone or with co-ordinated pants. This interpretation in "Orlon" acrylic fibre is by Zephyr of Montreal and features a cable stitch look.

YOU CAN'T PLAY GOLF WITH A SHOVEL! — warns older sister, but younger sister is intent on doing her own thing. Both are expressing their emerging personalities in their back-to-fall jumpsuits with co-ordinated striped sweaters in 100 per cent stretch Du Pont nylon. The easy-wear easy-care ensembles are by Young At Heart, Montreal.

LONGER JACKETS WITH SKIRT OR PANTS — offer every returning school girl a choice of ensemble. She may wear her jacket with matching skirt as the older sister does here, while her kindergarten-age sister opts for the pants. These two items for back-to-school are by Tres Chic, Montreal, in bonded knits of "Orlon" acrylic fibre.

The Sea Probed

OTTAWA (CP) — There's no dirt under Catherine Nigrini's carpet—it's all under her microscope.

The young Ottawa micropaleontologist, who spent two months on board a deep-sea drilling ship, studies minute one-celled animals called radiolaria.

Mrs. Nigrini and her husband, Andrew, a geologist, moved to the capital from Chicago in January. Both are native Canadians but had been working and studying in the United States.

And now she can't find a job. She says she's over-qualified for anything available.

Mrs. Nigrini holds a doctor's degree in her field, was one of two women on board a drilling ship making a voyage from New York to Dakar, West Africa. The crew of 70 included some 20 scientists.

Sponsored by the National Science Foundation in the U.S., the project was organized by Scripps Institution of Oceanography.

The drilling ship carries scientists on jaunts to pre-charted spots for drilling in order to gather information about the age and development of the ocean basins.

The scientists found evidence to substantiate the concept that the continents are drifting away from one another.

"No problems of transatlantic fares increasing, though," said Mrs. Nigrini. "Europe and North America are moving apart at the rate of one centimetre per 100 years."

She won't be making another voyage for a while—at least until after September, when she expects her first child.

"I want to go back to work after I have the baby.

"There must be a awful lot of woman power going to waste.

Kenojuak Journeys to Japan's Expo

OTTAWA (CP) — Kenojuak Is a petite Eskimo woman who has just completed a work of art many times her size.

Tiny, modest, and friendly, she and her husband, Johnniebo, 54, recently returned to their home at the art co-operative in Cape Dorset, N.W.T., on the southern tip of Baffin Island.

They had been in Ottawa with three of their five children working on a project for the Canadian pavilion at Expo 70 in Osaka, Japan.

While the couple stayed in the capital, their two little girls—Pee, 4, and Padlo, 3—attended nursery school and Adamee, 9, went to public school.

It wasn't Kenojuak's first visit to Ottawa. She and her husband were here late in 1967 when they had a joint exhibition of prints at the national library. At that time Kenojuak received the medal of service of the Order of Canada.

"I like it here," she said in an interview through an interpreter before leaving. "And being with three of my children, I am not too lonesome."

But the couple were looking forward to returning home to see their other two children, an 11-year-old and an infant. And Johnniebo was itching to get back to hunting caribou and seal and fishing.

Kenojuak said she did not delve into art as a child.

It wasn't until James Houston, northern affairs area administrator at Cape Dorset a decade ago, introduced the community to stone cutting and carving that Kenojuak began her career.

"Four of us in Cape Dorset started at about the same time, although I was the last," Johnniebou said. "I'm not a real artist. I'm a hunter."

But the hunter has had his share in creating the enormous 23-panel plaster work which will climax the Canadian pavilion at the world's fair.

The panel now is complete and will be shipped to Japan in the summer.

"We each did about half," Kenojuak said. But the panel designs are all hers.

70 to Mosaic an Owl for Canada

Kenojuak, who says the owl is her favorite subject, has dedicated the central section of the huge green-and-white mosaic to this bird.

The owl symbolizes the cheery optimism with which Kenojuak seems to face life.

She says: "In the beginning the world was black and only the raven lived. Then came the owl and with him light, and things moved and men walked upright."

Alongside the owl, the couple has done symbolic interpretations of the sun, acknowledging the powers of northern daily life—the polar bear, igloo and dog sled.

At a construction commission building where they worked, the couple discovered colored felt pens. With them, they have created a world of unearthly spirits in vivid colors.

Kenojuak has turned from her early graphic art to soapstone carvings in the last two years. "I like to do both," she said.

She has never done portraits or representative art because she prefers depicting a magical world.

"Everything comes from my head," she said with a laugh, pointing to it. "I don't tell a story in my art."

When invited to come to Ottawa to do the panels, she complied on condition that she and her husband be accorded privacy.

So the couple was settled in an apartment. Each morning they set off to the study to work a long day, voluntarily separated from the rest of the exhibition commission.

With only a radio intruding from the outside world, Kenojuak created her designs on paper, cut them out and then —with her husband's help— carved around them onto the panels.

Kenojuak and Johnniebou have been invited to go to Osaka to join other Eskimos who will demonstrate the art of soapstone carving in the pavilion.

Association for the Retired

By DORIS CLARK

Dear Doris: I read your article on the American Association of Retired Persons. I wonder if you know that we have something of the sort in Canada? It is the Starrock Pioneer Tours, Ltd., and they operate out of Vancouver, although they also have a representative in Eastern Canada.

It all began in 1956 when Mr. Starrock, a Canadian Pacific pensioner, and his wife, took a group of fellow pensioners to the British Isles on a tour. From that small beginning their business expanded and now they are incorporated and have a full-time manager. Mr. Starrock is now 85 years of age but certainly does not look the part nor act it.

Their tours are geared financially and otherwise to the needs of senior citizens. A courier from here goes along with all tours and then when we land we have another one as well to help with the language problems, etc. My husband and I have travelled with them many times and we always have a good time.

They have just completed a very successful tour to Alaska when they chartered the Princess Patricia and took about 300 passengers on a seven-day cruise. One dear soul said to me: "I am on the old age supplement but I can save! I saved for this trip and I am going right home to save up for the next." These trips have opened up a whole new world for older people and I think everybody should know about them. — Mrs. B. B. H.

Dear Mrs. S. B. H.: And so they should. The supply further details to anyone writing in.

* * *

Dear Doris: I should appreciate it if you would administer a rebuke, however gentle, to those who refer to this Country as "home"! I am proud to have been born a Scotsman in Scotland, but I am equally proud to call myself a Canadian.

A very large percentage who come from Great Britain still seem to regard themselves as Britishers first and Canadians second, if at all! Why did they come to Canada? Probably on account of our vastness, of scenery, but more than likely it was to have a chance and get rid of living and better opportunities to develop their respective talents.

It is high time that such persons came to realize that Canada is not a colony but an independent country, and that to be a Canadian is a very great privilege; all of which is by no means knocking the Old Country. — A New Canadian.

Dear Mr. Canadian: Check and double check!

Kitchen Tested Recipes

Bran Biscuits Complement A Meal

By MARY MOORE

QUESTION: . . . I used to have a friend, an old lady, who made the nicest bran biscuits but whenever anybody asked for the recipe she declared she had none. She died a few years ago and I acquired one of her recipe books and there was her recipe for Bran Biscuits . . . It is very incomplete . . . I tried making them but they spread all over the pan . . . I thought you might be interested in trying them . . . Mrs. L. H. M.

ANSWER: I adjusted your recipe and made successful bran biscuits for our dinner last night..

BRAN BISCUITS (twenty 2")

2 cups sifted bit not sifted all purpose flour
4 tsps. baking powder
½ tsp. cream of tartar
½ tsp. salt
2 tsps. sugar
1 cup all bran or natural bran
½ cup shortening or lard or butter or chicken fat
¾ cup plus 1 tbsp. milk

Sift together into a mixing bowl the flour, baking powder, cream of tartar, salt and sugar. Add bran to sifted dry ingredients and cut in shortening with pastry blender until size of peas. Stir in milk until dry ingredients are moistened. shape into ball between palms and pat out to 2-3" thickness on lightly floured board. Cut out with 2" cutter and bake on ungreased baking sheet at 450 deg. Fahr. for 10 min.

Thank you for bringing Bran Biscuits to my attention.

QUESTIONS: Would you please send me the recipe for rhubarb jam made with strawberry jello? — Louise C.

5 cups rhubarb cut finely
5 cups sugar
One 20-oz. can crushed pineapple

Left Hand Shake Best Ann Advises Sufferer

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My husband has arthritis in his right hand. When he meets people they invariably grab his hand and pump away. I have seen him nearly faint from the pain.

How can he let them know he can't shake hands without seeming unfriendly or ungracious? — J's WIFE

ANN LANDERS

DEAR WIFE: Your husband should quickly grab the other fellow's right hand with his left and say, "Sorry, I've got arthritis in the other one . . . No one will be offended.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am engaged to be married in the fall. My fiance's aunt wants to give a huge kitchen and linen shower for me. Her plans are making me sick and I don't know what to do about it.

Yesterday Aunt V. handed me the guest list — about 70 women. At least half the names are of people I have never heard of. She asked me if I'd like to add anyone. I told her no, that I'd like to take about 10 names off the list. She yelled, "Every woman on that list owes me something. I've been going to showers for twenty years and this is the only chance I will have to get even." When I tried to tell her gifts don't mean that much to me, she screamed, "Shut up and don't be a fool. This shower will save you at least $400."

My mother refuses to get involved. She says it's between me and Aunt V. Your advice would be appreciated. — CAUGHT IN THE SWITCHES.

DEAR CAUGHT: Ask your Aunt V. to remove from the guest list the names of the women you don't know. She can "get even" some other way. If she refuses, insist that she cancel the shower The whole thing smells like an unclaimed shipment of mackerel.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Settle an argument, please. My husband won't believe me, but if he sees it in your column it might make a difference.

I love plants and keep two beautiful ficus pandorea in our living room. My husband insists that plants absorb the oxygen and rob us of healthy air. He is forever nagging me to get rid of the plants for the sake of our health.

I say the reverse is true — that the plants absorb the carbon dioxide thereby contributing to our good health. Who is right? And while you're at it, please tell me if cut flowers do the same thing. — GREEN THUMB.

DEAR G.: My authorities on botany say you are closer to being right than your husband. Actually plants use up carbon dioxide but the infinitesimal amounts of oxygen they give off wouldn't contribute much to anyone's good health.

Cut flowers do nothing, one way or the other.

"Fancy" Chair Styles Originated with Hitchcock

Picture Credit: Dundurn Castle, Hamilton

The chair illustrated is known as a Hitchcock. The name is derived from Lambert Hitchcock who manufactured this type of chair in Connecticut from 1821 to 1843. Hitchcock was a maker of "fancy" chairs and the particular one shown was known as a "pillow-back".

Although Hitchcock gave his name to the style almost every other chair maker in Eastern Canada and the New England States made and advertised fancy chairs. Some are exact copies and reproductions of these chairs continues to this day.

The turned legs and the turning on the top back rail, (the pillow), and the ball feet terminating the front legs are characteristic of the style. The flat back cross splat is usually decorated with a gold stencil of fruit or flowers. Chairs are usually painted black or red-brown in imitation of mahogany or rosewood. Later chairs are sometimes painted yellow with a stencilled landscape or even a painted scene. Fancy chairs are invariably decorated although the original design may now be buried under layers of paint, like the one illustrated.

Early fancy chairs had rush seats capped at the front and sides by a molding to prevent the rush from wearing at the edge. Later chairs were made with cane. The original rush seats have been since delegated. If not replaced with rush, seats were redone with twine, cane, split bark or even animal gut. In this century they have been repaired with a standard plywood seat with a pierced design.

In 1811 G. P. Walters opened a "Cabinet Factory" in Bowmanville, Ontario where he made all sorts of furniture. The firm title implied that the work was done by cabinet makers, rather than that cabinets were made. His principal business, as advertised as the manufacture of painted cane-seat chairs, "which have hitherto been imported in large quantities from the United States." They made "a greater variety of fancy chairs is made elsewhere in Canada, prices for this class of goods are as low as they are sold in the United States, thereby saving the import duty of 20 per cent. All chairs are stamped with the name of the firm".

In 1869 the Bowmanville Steam Cabinet Factory was advertising that the company made the furnishings for Trafalgar Castle, Whitby, Ontario, still extant, and the contractor and fittings for the Bank of Ontario in Toronto. These success stories were the inducement illustrated in The Canadian Illustrated News of January 17, 1863.

A two storey building was devoted to finishing and chair painting alone. Volume was sufficient to obtain special low freight rates with the Grand Trunk.

By the 1860's styles had changed somewhat although fancy chairs of this period are not as desirable to the collector. Hitchcock chairs of the early period in good condition are worth $80 each (a few may be identified "Lambert Hitchcock, Unionville, Conn."). Current reproductions are about half this price. The most desirable old chairs retain their stencils. Seats, if damaged, can usually be replaced by one from the Canadian National Institute for the Blind. If they cannot undertake the work themselves they can usually advise who will make rush or cane seats.

Morden Foster acted as Chairman for a brief programme. Miss Eullie Taylor played hymns while Mrs. Ben Chapman sang. Readers for Mr. Leonard gave suitable readings. Pauline Pearce rendered a piano solo.

Mrs. Harry Foster read an address to the young couple and many lovely gifts were presented. The couple expressed their deep appreciation for the gifts and being remembered and invited all to visit them in their new apartment in Belleville.

Everyone was seated at tables and a delicious lunch was served by several of the women.

WITH PERIL AS PARTNER

(A.S.S. ATHENIA SURVIVOR'S ACCOUNT)

"Oh," I said, "There's a tiny star. She's flirting with us." At once they cried, "The Morse Code!", and all let up a shout. — Edna Campbell.

* * *

The letter written by a survivor of the S.S. Athenia sunk September 3rd ,1939, to her close and dear friend Mrs. M. E. Branscombe, 64 Queen Street, continues:

"I shouted, 'Where is Number Five?'

"Here,' said a sailor's voice and I was soon twisting this way and that, trying to that voice. It was all done so hurriedly. I seemed to be running. I stumbled over something, stooped and put it on; an old dirty Mackintosh. It kept me warm.

"I got quickly in line and was soon lifted by the sailor and stood on the small. There, Jones' young leg around and go down,' he said. On the ladder in a jiff. A woman above stepped on my hand. I screamed to her to stop . . . Soon she did, and I stepped off the ladder mated to the boat to the ladder loose and wet at water line.

"When she swings in (over life boat) jump backward and I'll catch you," he said.

"I can't, I cried.

"Well, clear yourself then. I did and he caught me and flung me full length on the life boat, two broken ankles and ribs: they bothered me for weeks. I could scarcely turn. Perhaps they were broken.

The next woman got aboard. The second one fell between the Athenia and the dashing life boat. It took five men to rescue her and we all held on to her as she was pulled her over the gunwale, breaking her arm in their efforts. Oh, she suffered all night — a big fat woman. I was glad to be small and thin: one got along better, that awful night at sea.

"Shortly after quickly getting clear of the Athenia (and haste seemed main object, sailor thought we'd be sucked under) the first alarm was, the life boat leaked. Water began to rise. The woman cried to be taken back to the Athenia.

"For God's Sakes, people, bail or we'll go down,' cried the sailor. Only one tin could be found in the dark. There was mutiny on our boat; everybody rebelled. We found our tin in a corner. All old crew had gone to war. Two dining stewards, who confessed they were to study at night. One man, who was a deep-sea fisherman, declared he was in charge and the fear of God in us all. He gave directions all night.

"Shift,' he would say, and we shifted. They didn't know where the light was, the flares, the oil, the drinking wafer, but by degrees and much effort all were found. By morning we'd thrown mass overboard and all useless tackle. They bailed frantically every moment. We didn't know enough to bail with our shoes, but all the others in this did which all leaked. Some capsized.

"The wind, the awful wind got up and blew all night; we were in gray valleys and up on high crests. The two sailors calling excitedly, 'Here we go, Buddy,' — and 'Hurry.' It was difficult facing the boat the right way. A woman next to me kept saying 'This is our end.' About 20 minutes to 2 a.m. we saw the first light and tried for over two hours to get near her, but never made our rescue owing to the high seas.

But I knew our sailors, for some mysterious reason, did not want to do it, and found afterwards the Norwegian vessel was an oil tanker. Just as well we missed her for one life boat got under her propeller, a stewardess was cut in two, a whole boat cut in two and only about seven people saved. She wouldn't stop her ship engines.

Now one destroyer had all steam off. We in dread nearly gave up the ghost when we saw the two ships receding.

Along between 4 and 5 a.m. (I had no watch, but asked time of survivors and by ship's fainlight in bottom of boat we saw). I saw a tiny twinkling star. I saw every thing having had eyes. I never wear glasses you know. 'Oh,' I said, 'there's a tiny star. She's flirting with us.' At once they cried, 'The Morse Code!' and all let up a shout. We'd yelled all night."

War Not What Arabs Really Want

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — Belle Barnes, who spent seven months in an Israeli kibbutz, says she felt sorrow for the Arab areas of the country, but doesn't think the ordinary Arab wants war.

"They are a curious people and their curiosity about foreigners their distrust," said the 22-year-old Newfoundlander who plans to work at the University of Toronto's teaching hospital.

Miss Barnes said in an interview hat she first became interested in Israel by reading about the country and its people in books from her father's library. Her father, Rev. Harold Barnes, a United Church minister, now lives in Saskatchewan.

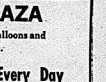
Sabotage was an ever-present threat in Israel, she says, and cautious officials searched newcomers' baggage.

She arrived in Israel in September, 1968, as a member of Sherut Le'Am—Volunteers in Israeli program—and spent most of her time at Afek, a northern kibbutz where she did tasks as signed her by the work organizer. The work included feeding cows, washing dishes, pruning fruit trees, digging ditches and plucking chickens.

She said her bachelor of nursing degree came in handy when she was required to work in the baby house, where kibbutz children go as soon as they are born.

While kibbutz children are raised by the community as a whole, they still have a strong parental relationship with real or adopted parents, she said.

Miss Barnes said her meagre knowledge of the Hebrew language and her Christian religion did not present barriers between her and the Israeli workers.



"You are accepted on the basis of whether or not you know how to work," she said.

Conflict with the Arabs is accepted as a fact of life, and a common reaction when war threatened the kibbutz was, "I won't be able to wash my hair tonight."

WIDELY CONDEMNED

SASKATOON (CP) — A report on student sex says in a report commissioned by the University of Saskatchewan that student newspapers have a predilection for "booze and sex" which upsets parents, businessmen, faculty, administration and many students. The firm says student newspapers are "widely condemned as irresponsible journalism."

Canadian Volleyball Squad Trains for 1970 Tournament

WATERLOO, Ont. (CP) — "See that guy out there . . . Fred McMurray? He's by far the best spiker in Canada. But compared to players from other countries, he's just average."

The comments came from Don Smyth of Victoria, B.C., one of the coaches attempting to mould Canadian men's and women's volleyball teams into the form that will be needed to get them to the 1970 world championships in Bulgaria.

The players, who have just finished a two-week training camp here, were selected during the 1969 Canadian championships in Fredericton, last March.

The first step in the trek to the world championships begins in Puerto Rico Aug. 3-9, where the Canadian teams will attempt to qualify in the North, Central American and Caribbean zone championships. Winner and possibly the runner-up from the Aug. 9 August tournament will qualify for the world championships in Bulgaria.

The problem, Smyth says, is mainly of conditioning and polishing.

"We haven't the jumping ability that other countries have," he says. "Our kids just don't get the jumping training. Our vertical height will hurt us more than anything else."

Another of the problems is assembling the players from across the country for the camps.

"There was a concentration of players in Calgary and Edmonton," he says. "But it was difficult for those who come from isolated spots."

Currently picked up 18 players in each of the men's and women's camps. These will be cut to 12 players for each team.

The members of the men's camp are Robert Ireland and McMurray, both of Vancouver, Kit Lefroy of Calgary, Eroll Miller of Edmonton, Robert Harrison of Winnipeg, Walt Rosocha, Bill Seto, Andrew Szabo and Robert Wright, all of Ottawa, Jean-Paul Delisle, Rein Otson and Jean Pierre Roy, all of Ottawa, and Claude Haile, Jean Letendre, Pierre Marcoux and Michel Roy, all of Montreal.

The members of the women's camp are Jennifer Jeffrey of Victoria, Carole Bishop, Maureen Fishleigh, Wendy Grant, Mary Prade, Gale Savage and Rose Marie Voakes, all of Vancouver, Mavis King, Carol Lane, Therese Maxwell and June Willms, all of Calgary, Mary Drakiel, Marg Harvey, Lois Kennedy and Pauline Selkirk, all of Toronto, and Nicole Paradis of Montreal.

Smith and Mel Holick of Toronto, one of the men's coaches, believe that Mexico and Cuba will present the stiffest opposition. The United States qualified for the world championship during the Pan-Am Games at Winnipeg and (the consensus is that it will not) send its best team to Puerto Rico.

"If they do send their best, there's no one will beat them," Smyth said.

Holick feels that the Canadians must finish ahead of Mexico.

"Since the U.S. has already qualified, we must beat Mexico. Cuba will likely win it, and there is talk of the first two teams going to Bulgaria."

British Cricketer Is Heavily Penalized for Sin

LONDON (CP) — Cricketer Tom Graveney earned himself a half year's pay cut Friday and was promptly penalized heavily by the game's bosses.

But his defiant action has brought calls for an upheaval in yet another of the stodgy customs of the ruling Marylebone Cricket Club, which only in recent years has been grudgingly and gradually acknowledging the attitudes of 20th century.

Graveney, a member of the national team playing the West Indies in a test series, committed the sin of playing in a benefit game for himself on a Sunday during one of the test matches. There is no test cricket on Sundays. But members of the British team are barred from playing elsewhere on that day on the grounds they might get hurt.

Graveney picked up £1,000 ($2,600)—about half a normal season's salary—for the afternoon's work. Nearing the end of his top-earnings span, he decided to take a chance with the MCC.

Its reply was to suspend him for three matches, which effectively cut, at the remainder of the West Indies Test and the first game of a three-match series with New Zealand in August. Because of his age and the MCC displeasure, he may never appear again in a Test.

Graveney's ban came as a surprise. Most observers had expected a stiff fine at the most for his open disobedience. His three missed matches will cost him a total of £20 in pay. It still leaves him £60 better off than he would have been if he had turned down the chance of making the extra cash.

Fellow cricketer Bobby Simpson, who captained the rival team in Graveney's benefit match and has a regular column in The Toronto Star, said, wrote 'it should not have been Graveney who was put on trial, but the system."

"Professional cricketers, in respect of their drawing power, are the worst paid sportsmen in the world."

Despite falling attendances, test matches against popular visitors like the West Indians still draw big crowds. Gate money for the first second match of the five-game series against the Caribbean team totalled £50,000.

But the 12 players on each team get only £120 each—a total of £2,640.

"If a private entrepreneur could stage a successful promotion on such a low budget, he would think he was in clover," said Simpson.

And J. L. Manning in The Daily Mail commented: "It has taken a silly action to highlight a darn silly situation."

U. S. Housewife Becomes Umpire

NEW YORK (AP) — A Long Island housewife won a three-year fight with organized baseball Friday and got a job as an umpire.

Bernice Gera, 37, of Jackson Heights, N.Y., said she received notice to report Aug. 1 to the Class A New York-Pennsylvania League.

"I am thrilled," she said. "Now I must go out and prove myself. I see no reason why women shouldn't be able to umpire baseball as well as men."

Thwarted at every turn in efforts to break into a profession which had been restricted to men, Mrs. Gera filed a suit against the NY-Penn League charging discrimination.

The suit never came to the courts. The league capitulated before the matter could be determined legally.

"I am sure some day we will have women umpires in the big leagues—and I hope to be the first," Bernice said.

Mrs. Gera first got a diploma from an umpiring school in West Palm Beach, Fla., the first woman ever to do so —and then did some umpiring in the National Baseball Congress while applying for a chance in organized ball.

She wrote every league in the minors and received a reply from only one, the Florida-Georgia League. She got an application—and got only dead silence.

Then she went after the New York—Pennsylvania League, because it was closest to home.

Mrs. Gera, whose husband is a photographer, said her letter of application brought from league president Vincent McNamara.

Previously, she said, Mc-Namara sent her a letter explaining that the league headquarters in most of the ball parks were not fit for a lady and neither was the language of the players.

"Tempers sometimes reach a boiling point and there is language of a nature that one would not relish having one's mother and sister or any lady exposed to."

"I've umpired a lot of games," Bernice countered, "and I don't think I could hear anything new."

Wife Cause of Concern For Tigers' McLain

DETROIT (AP) — Detroit Tiger pitcher Denny McLain says he will quit baseball if his wife loses the child she is expecting.

McLain, who upped his record to 15-5 with a 3-0 shutout over Kansas City Friday night, said his wife lost two previous children in a pregnancy because of the strain and tension of watching him play.

"She's lost two kids over baseball already," McLain said. "She's pregnant now and if she loses another one I'll quit."

McLain's wife is Sharyn Boudreau, daughter of Lou Boudreau, former shortstop and manager of the Cleveland Indians. The McLain's have also adopted children, Kristin Dawn, 3, and Dennis Louis, 1.

"Each time we lost a child we adopted one," McLain said.

He dded that his wife "hates me to be playing baseball, but she loves the game."

McLarens Challenged

EDMONTON (CP) — Observers see a Ferrari 612 as the only serious challenge to Bruce McLaren's domination of the Lucrative Canadian-American Cup motor race here Sunday.

The Italian car was introduced to the Can-Am series July 13 at Watkins Glen, N.Y., finishing 30 seconds behind the McLaren despite an ailing engine.

Ferrari mechanics rebuilt the engine this week and expect better results in its second Can-Am appearance. New Zealander Chris Amon will drive the Ferrari in the 80-lap race, which is pursuit of a share in a $45,000-purse.

The McLarens will be driven by Peter McLaren and Bruce McLaren, also both New Zealanders, over the 2.53-mile speedway park road course.

By the time championship season fund and manufacturers contingency monies are added, the purse should be well over $75,000 for the race. Total prize money for the 11-race series, richest in the history of racing, is expected to be about $1,000,000 when the Can-Am ends with the Stardust Grand Prix at Las Vegas in November.

Trap Shooting Is Year-round Sport

By TOM DONOGUE

Every Wednesday evening and Sunday afternoon a group of dedicated men head out to the third concession of Sidney to a 14-acre plot of land. What do they do? They shoot trap for the Quinte Trap and Gun Club.

The season for these men is the full 12 months of the year. "When the road to our own club is clogged with snow in winter we move to Picton or Cobourg to shoot," says Doug Johnston, secretary-treasurer of the Club.

After 13 years in operation the club boasts 85 members and with each year the membership continues to grow averagering 15 to 18 new members per year at the current rate.

The main difference between Trap and Skeet rests in the direction of the clay "bird". In Skeet there are two towers of different heights from which the birds are ejected. Each time the bird is sent into the air it travels in the same direction whereas in Trap there is only one tower and the bird can be sent out at any direction unknown to the shooter.

The bird itself is approximately four and one half inches in diameter and travels at 85 feet per second when the machine propels it on its way.

The guns used at the club are usually 12 gauge shotguns which sends the shot at 1,000 to 1,200 feet per second. The guns themselves may cost anywhere from $25 to $3,500 for a custom made gun.

The fees for the Club are $6 for the first year and $3 for every year after that. This does not include the cost of shells and birds used when at the club.

There are four other clubs in the Quinte area - Cobourg, Picton, Madoc and Peterborough — all of whom compete in meets throughout the province. Four members of the Belleville club will be going to the Canadian National Trap Shooting championships in Calgary later this year.

The youngest member of the club is 12-year-old Wayne Bales while the rest of the membership are older hunters many of whom who are seeking practise.

On each round there are five shooters who take up their positions behind the tower. Each man will shoot five shots in turn and then all five will shift one position until the whole squad has shot five rounds in each position. The shooting positions are located 20-to-26 yards behind the tower.

"Its good clean fun," says Mr. Johnston. "Most of the members are hunters and those who just like to shoot".

An evening of shooting can see 750 to 2,000 clay birds used by the club when the members are shooting well.

The club has scheduled a post season shoot for August 10 to which all are invited to attend as either spectators or participants. Mr. Johnston said that anyone is welcome to come out to the club and shoot at member rates and discover for themselves that trap shooting is not as hard as it looks.

Pull . . . .

A. W. Pringle waits with finger on the trigger for the clay bird to be released as he practises at the Quinte Trap and Gun Club. The club uses from 750 to 2,000 birds when they gather Wednesday nights and Sundays to practise their shooting.

In Age-versus-youth Battle

Snead Halfway to Open Title

MONTREAL (CP)— A straight age versus-youth battle appears in the making for the climax to this year's Canadian open golf championship.

Entering today's third round, the field has been cut to 79 from the original 152 starters, with 17 Canadians among those who had two-round totals of 148 or less to survive Friday's cut.

A pair of seasoned veterans who between them have won some 270 tournaments are battling it out with two newcomers young enough to be their sons in the $125,000 annual.

Slammin' Sammy Snead, who admits to 57 years and 131 tournament wins, continues to lead the way after firing his second consecutive sub-par round. He slipped one stroke to a four-under-par 68 from his opening round, but still wound up on top Friday with a nine-under total of 135 for the two days.

That was one stroke better than Roberto de Vicenzo, the jocular Argentine, who at 46, claims he's lost count of his tournament wins, but contends a 140 figure wouldn't be far wrong.

However, the two elder statesmen found themselves challenged by a couple of relative unknowns, both seeking their first tournament win and the $25,000 first prize that goes with victory.

Lee Peterson of Riverside, Calif., a 28-year-old who graduated from the PGA's qualifier school last January, trails Snead by three strokes after rounds of 70 and 68. So far as pro, Peterson has won only $3,000 at his new line of work.

Vaughan Trapp of Victoria, B.C., also remained within reach of his first big pay day. Trapp, a pro for nine of his tender 25 years, Friday fired a two-under 70 to go with his first-day 69 to put him four strikes back at 139.

Trapp says he has not been intimidated by his sudden surge to prominence. He has yet to win a tournament and had won only $450 this year on the Canadian tour. Last year, the same adventure "cost me $1,500."

Asked if he could keep the night "choke" on the late rounds, Trapp proved equal to the question.

"I don't want the turtle neck sweater) to get too tight," he quipped. "So I'd better wear an open-neck shirt tomorrow."

Peterson also was undaunted by his sudden thrust into the limelight.

He said he hadn't been "psyched" into any special effort by the fact most of the big names had bypassed the Canadian in favor of the American Classic at Akron, Ohio, which is running concurrently with the Open.

"No, I think most of the younger players just want to get out there and play well," Peterson said.

"I hope this type of thing will keep up and more satellite tournaments will develop. It's very hard to keep up for every weekend if you don't make Monday's qualifying round."

Three assorted golfers were bunched at 140 behind Trapp.

Toronto's Al Balding put together a pair of 70s for his total, while England's Tony Jacklin, this year's British Open champ, notched a one-under 71 to go with his opening round 69.

Japan's Takaaki Kono fired a second-round 68 that included an eagle-three on the par-five, 466-yard 18th to go with his first-round par-72 for his 140.

Kono missed a double eagle on the 18th by a scant 18 inches.

Seven golfers were bunched at 141 including Jerry Stevens of Wichita, Kan., Jim Grant of Atlanta, Ga., Bruce Twiss of Bakersfield, Calif., Jim Jamieson of Moline, Ill., Jim Day of Laurel, Miss., and two veterans of the pro tour—Doug Sanders and Tommy Aaron.

Chick Evans of Northbridge, Mass., who earned second spot Thursday with a 68, went two-over for a 73 Friday. He was bunched with three others at 142.

The 1967 Canadian Open champion, Billy Casper, George Knudson of Toronto and Montreal's Jack Bissegger all wound up in the 143 category.

New Zeland's Bob Charles, defending Canadian champion, was among a group of 14 golfers counting a par-144 for the two rounds.

The two leaders hit the interview room together for the post-tournament.

The first thing deVicenzo said was that he was tired and perhaps they should play nine holes each day "and have eight days in the week."

Snead said he'd like to have Roberto's last three holes for his round, and deVicenzo shot back that it was all right with him "but give me your first - 15."

Sports On All Fronts

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (AP) — The top-seeded singles players in the national clay court tennis championships — Arthur Ashe and Nancy Richey — dropped their first sets Friday before coming back for victories at the Woodstock Club, Ashe defeated Mike Belkin of Montreals 2-6, 7-5, 6-2 in the men's quarter-finals and Miss Richey advanced to the women's semi-finals with a 2-6, 6-0, 6-2 victory over Kerry Harris of Austfialia. Charlie Pasarell of Puerto Rico, No. 7 ranged U.S. player, upset third-ranked Stan Smith 2-6, 7-5, 6-2.

KIAMESHA LAKE, N.Y. (AP) — Susie Berning continued her blistering pace with a 72 for 142 Friday and a one-shot lead after the second round of the $36,000 Ladies' Professional Golfers Association championship. Mrs. Berning, who shared the first-round lead with Carol Mann after a 70 Thursday, her husband's birthday, shot birdie putts of five to 20 feet over the lucky, 6,306-yard par-73 Concord Hotel golf course and stood at four under par.

GALT (CP) — Bill Wylie has resigned as coach of the Allan Cup champion Galt Hornet. He gave no reason for the resignation. "It's just that I don't want to do it anymore," he said in an interview Thursday,. During the 1968-69 season the Hornets won the Ontario Hockey Association Senior A series title. Wylie, a native of Galt, was voted first team OHA all-star coach the last two seasons and was a member of Galt Terriers when they won the Allan Cup in 1961.

TORONTO (CP) — Tricky winds marked the first match Friday of 24 to select the Canadian yacht to defend the Canada's Cup in September against a United States challenger from the Cleveland Yachting Club. In the first day's racing over the 1014-mile course, True North beat Bagatelle in the morning, and Manitou beat True North in the afternoon. The remaining 23 matches will be sailed before Aug. 17, and a winner will be named by the Royal Canadian Yacht Club's selection committee later in August.

* * *

CALGARY (CP) — If the number of entries is any indication, British Columbia and Ontario should have little trouble dominating the Canadian age group attack-and-field championships during the weekend. The event has attracted 270 competitors with 133 from Ontario, 90 from B.C. and 45 from Alberta. The remainder will come from Manitoba and Saskatchewan with 35 each, Quebec with 20 and Prince Edward Island with one — Adelle Marchbank.

With 536 Homers Behind Him Aaron Hopes There's More Left

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

It was a beautiful night for Hank Aaron, but a bleak one for Atlanta Braves.

Aaron reached two important career plateaus Friday, but couldn't prevent the Braves from bowing to Montreal Expos' 8-7.

His first-inning double was the 2,900th hit of his career, leaving him 100 short of his goal of 3,000. Then Aaron tagged his 536th homer, tying Mickey Mantle for third place on the all-time list. Only Babe Ruth with 714 and Willie Mays with 599 have hit more than the Atlanta slugger.

Aaron, who started this season with 510 career homers has moved past Mel Ott (511), Eddie Mathews (512), Ted Williams (521) and Jimmy Foxx (534) this season, jumping from eighth place.

"Those homers are all behind me," he said. "I hope there's a lot more left."

Elsewhere in the National League, New York Mets trimmed Cincinnati Reds 4-3, Los Angeles Dodgers clipped Chicago Cubs 4-2, Philadelphia Phillies ripped Houston Astros 7-3, San Diego Padres edged Pittsburgh Pirates 3-2 and St. Louis Cardinals squeezed past San Francisco Giants 2-1 in 13 innings.

All Aaron's hitting couldn't wipe out four-run lead which the Expos built in the first inning against Atlanta ace Phil Niekro on consecutive homers by Bob Bailey and Coco Laboy.

Bailey connected after Adolfo Phillips and Mack Jones had singled and then Laboy tagged a solo shot. Later Rusty Staub added a two-run homer, giving Montreal an 8-2 edge.

J. C. Martin's two-out, two-run homer in the eighth inning climaxed a New York rally that pushed the Mets past Cincinnati.

The Reds were leading 3-1 when reliever Clay Carroll hit Cleon Jones with a pitch opening the eighth. Art Shamsky followed with a double and after two infield outs had delivered one run, Martin's fourth homer of the season put the Mets on top. Tony Perez homered for the Reds.

Andy Kosco ripped a pinch two-run double that pulled the Dodgers past Chicago after Ferguson Jenkins was struck by a line drive and forced to leave the game.

Maury Wills had singled with one out in the third and then Willie Crawford ripped a liner that hit Jenkins on his pitching thumb and forced him to leave the game. Hank Aguirre relieved and after Willie Davis forced Crawford, Kosco batted for Leo Gabrielson and doubled home a run home.

Jenkins is not expected to miss any pitching turns.

Frank Jackson scattered seven hits and snapped a personal four-game losing streak, pitching Philadelphia past Houston. It was only the second victory in the last 12 games for the Phillies.

San Diego pushed across a pair of unearned runs in the sixth inning and Joe Niekro made them stand up to beat Pittsburgh.

Richie Hebner, who had homered for the Pirates earlier, went wild on Van Kelly's grounder, allowing one run to score and setting up another.

On Basis of Pitching Feats

McLain in Spotlight Again

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

With caps on his teeth, his plane in the hangar and reacquired friend Mickey Lolich in the dugout, Denny McLain proved again he is as predictable on the field as he is unpredictable off it.

The Detroit right-hander, pitching like the 31-game winner he was last year, became the American League's first 15-game winner this season with another steady show Friday night as he hurled the Tigers by Kansas City Royals 3-0.

His six-hit shutout, matching his six shutouts of 1968, came after a typical off-the-field week for the controversial McLain.

It began when he missed the starting assignment in the all-star game Wednesday because his flight was late from Detroit. Where he had some teeth capped.

Then came a feud with teammate Lolich over a plane ride home from the game that Lolich expected and never got, and finally McLain's grounding by the Tigers flying his own plane.

Dave McNally, Reggie Jackson and Andy Messersmith, who lead more subdued private lives, also is running of their steady winning performances.

McNally, with relief help, ran his record to 14-0 as Baltimore Orioles beat Chicago White Sox 4-2. Jackson's eighth 380th homer with a man on to give Oakland Athletics a 4-3 decision over Washington Senators and Messersmith pitched a two-hitter in California Angels' 6-0 triumph over New York Yankees. .

In other games, Minnesota Twins went 16 innings for a 4-2 victory over Cleveland Indians and Boston Red Sox trimmed Seattle Pilots 7-6.

McLain, who settled his differences with Lolich Thursday before Lolich beat Kansas City Royals 3-1 for a 14-2 record, raised his record to 15-5 while taking the league lead in shutouts.

McLain struck out eight and walked only one. Al Kaline's sacrifice fly in the fifth inning off loser Roger Nelson was enough, but Mickey Stanley singled in another and scored on an error in the seventh as the Tigers won their seventh game in eight starts.

Russ Gibson's pinch-hit, three-run homer in the eighth inning overcame a 4-0 deficit for Boston after Greg Goossen had put Seattle ahead with his first homer in the seventh.

Nicklaus Snaps Six Month Slump

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — Jack Nicklaus had his game in gear and appeared ready to again assume his position as the dominant figure in golf today going into the third round of the American golf classic.

But, the defending Ohio native was not pleased, even after a pair of 66s for a course record 132 on the 7,180-yard, par-70 Firestone Country Club.

"I could have played better" said Nicklaus, who is fighting his way out of a slump that has lasted almost six months.

"And I could have scored better. It's not all back yet. I'm sure I can play better than this."

He held a one-stroke lead over Bobby Mitchell, 36, who is trying for his first victory in 3½ years on the pro tour. Mitchell, who turned pro as a club assistant at the age of 15 in Danville, Va., shot 68 Friday and set the 36-hole course record at 133, which stood only until Nicklaus completed his round.

Frank Beard, 67, and Ray Floyd, 68, were tied at 153 with Gene Littler, 69, at 137.

29 Seek Jobs As CFL Teams Cut Rosters

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Fullback Lovell Coleman, 31, is looking for a job today along with 28 others after seven of the nine Canadian Football League teams Friday cut their rosters.

Coleman was among five players released by Montreal Alouettes of the Eastern Conference.

He played nine seasons in Canada, eight of them with Calgary Stampeders of the Western Conference. Traded to Ottawa Rough Riders for linebacker Mike Blum and offensive halfback Dave Cranmer in 1968, he saw little action with the defending Grey Cup champions because of damaged knees.

At Calgary, Coleman gained, more than 1,000 yards for three years in a row and picked up 238 yards in a single against Hamilton Tiger-Cats in 1964. He was a league and conference all-star in 1963 to 1965 and was selected Canada's outstanding player in 1964.

Dick Cohee, a veteran offensive halfback who was a running threat with Saskatchewan Roughriders and Hamilton Tiger-Cats, was among eight players released by Toronto Argonauts.

Others cut by Argos head coach Leo Cahill were Ken Corbin, linebacker for whom Argos had great hopes last season, Linebackers Ed Aru and Milt Ballum, defensive tackle Rudy Sims, offensive end Dave Washington, defensive halfbacks Grant McKee and John McKillop were also released.

Centre John Viluvac, once used by Toronto as a field goal kicker, was released by Saskatchewan Roughriders along with another Canadian, rookie end Rod Smith from the Regina Junior Rams. The Western Conference team also cut three Americans, tackle Jack Rusk, guards Alex Dess and Carl Holman.

Schartman's A Back Seat Driver

It's too short for a dragster and it's got a body similar to that of a conventional car.

What is it?

It's Eddy Schartman's "Cougar Funny Car" which will compete in a special match race Sunday at the Quinte Dragway against Don Prudhomme's "AA" Fuel Dragster.

The "Funny Car's" 427-cubic inch Ford cammer engine is situated in the middle; thus the Cleveland, Ohio native is in effect a back seat driver when he pilots his machine down the quarter-mile drag strip.

The match race is a handicap affair and because of his slower performances previously, Schartman will get a one sec; ond head start.

He may well need it for Prudhomme's 20-foot long "AA" Fuel Dragster is propelled by a 426-cubic inch Plymouth power plant and generates over 2,000 horsepower.

In fact, Prudhomme has reached a speed of 220 miles per hour in just six seconds, and he registered the fastest qualifying time — 6.8 seconds for the quarter mile — in the U.S. Spring Nationals, before he was forced to withdraw because of mechanical difficulties.

In addition to the featured match race, the combined Super and Competition Eliminator class will offer a return of $400 — $200 for first place, $100 for second, $75 for third and $25 for fourth.

The Street Eliminator class will offer a total prize money of $200, the Super Stock class a total of $200 and the Pure Stock class a total of $100.

Wrestlers Draw 1600

The initial Belleville appearance of midget women wrestlers helped attract nearly 1,600 spectators to the Memorial Arena Friday.

Dazzling Dagmar and Diane and Lil — whose combined heights and weights are eight feet three and 178 pounds — paired up in 20 minutes of rough-and-tumble wrestling in the third of four bouts.

Much to the fans' liking, Darling Dagmar got in the best licks — many of them in the rousing finish — as the two midget women battled to a 20-minute stalemate.

Another villain, Chris Tolos, drew the fans' wrath while trying to disassemble the popular Whipper Billy Watson in the feature bout. Tolos displayd a multitude of rough-house tactics in scoring the first pin in the best two-out-of-three bout.

Watson came back to win the second fall and was awarded the decision by the referee when he pinned Watson and manhandled the referee.

Dick "the Bulldog" Brower was the unusual position in his second bout match with Waldo Van Eric — for once the fans were on Brower's side and he went on to win when Von Eric was counted out of the ring in the third fall after the pair won one fall each.

Naughty! Naughty!

Waldo Von Eric tugs on "Bulldog" Brower's tights and gets set to punch Brower in the stomach during their best two-out-of-three wrestling match Friday night at the Memorial Arena.

Brower recovered to win this bout — one of four on the card — when Von Eric was counted out of the ring after the pair had split the first two pinfalls.

Away We Go!

Scott Shettell, the third leading scorer in Mosquito House League play with nine goals in 11 games, turns on the speed and starts upfield with the ball. Robbie Goodfellow gives pursuit during the initial practice session of the Belleville Minor Soccer Association Mosquito all-star squad Thursday night at Moira Secondary School.

A Win Over Toronto Would Be Helpful

The Belleville Joyces thumped the Kingston Lakeview Centennials 10-2 Wednesday night at the Fairgrounds to take over sole possession of first place in the Eastern Ontario Baseball Association, but they'll have to beat a tough club Sunday evening to ensure they remain alone on top of the league.

Leaside Maple Leafs, members of the Halton County League who play a partial schedule with the EOBA league, will be in town Sunday evening for an 8 p.m. game at the Fairgrounds.

Meanwhile Kingston, who are only a game behind the Joyces, will take on the Prescott Beavers Sunday. A Kingston win and a Belleville loss would leave the arch-rivals deadlocked for first place in the EOBA league.

Toronto's arrival comes just after the Joyces registered their only win — Wednesday's slaughter of Kingston — in the month of July.

The Joyces have two other reasons to beat the Maple Leafs and both of them are spelled Revenge.

On Saturday, May 31st, the Maple Leafs handed the Joyces their initial loss of the season — the score was a lopsided 11 — and a month later, on Saturday, June 28th, the Leaside club defeated the Joyces 9-5 in the opening round of the Peterborough senior baseball tournament.

A trio of players, two of whom played on a part-time basis previously and the third who has just joined the club, have injected some wallop into the Joyces' batting attack in the last two games.

Terry Wellesley, a part-timer previously, has stroked six hits in the last two outings against Kingston, while Bill Barberstock and newcomer Jack Elliott have collected five hits each over the same span.

Belleville will be short two regulars for Sunday's game. Outfielder Ralph Plane is still under indefinite suspension by the EOBA for a fracas with an umpire in the Peterborough tournament and Carl Boomhower will be sitting out an automatic one-game suspension for being ejected from Wednesday's contest with Kingston. A decision on Plane's status is expected at an EOBA meeting Tuesday night in Port Hope.

A win Sunday would be particularly sweet for the Joyces, as it would exact a measure of sweet revenge from Leaside and ensure the Joyces of at least a two-point lead with just two games remaining in the 16-game EOBA schedule.

Prescott Beavers, with whom the Joyces have split four games this year, will be the Joyces opposition in the remaining pair of games — one home and one away.

Minor Soccer Plans All-star Competition

After only two years of operation and tournaments in bantam, six peewee, and nine, the Belleville Minor Soccer Association is planning yet another advance in its program.

Fred Jones, the president of the Belleville Minor Soccer Association, hopes that all-star teams will be set up in the area for the 1969 season with the idea of inter-city com-

At the moment there are six mosquito teams active in the association. Each of the teams in being asked to select a number of players to try out for the all-star squads.

Teams in Kingston, Peterborough, Lindsay, Trenton and Oshawa have been informed of the pilot project and it is hoped that they will all participate.

Officials hope that all-star teams will be organized so that games can be played at the end of August and in early September to test the plan and see if it can work in this area.

Mr. Jones expressed the hope that minor soccer will spread to other parts of the province with the all-star system increasing the quality of the soccer played.

Nothing to It!

Kite flying is a spectacular and sometimes dangerous sport, but to a master such as Mike Church—who placed fourth in the U.S. National Championships in each of the past two years—there's nothing to it. Mike does a little one-legged skiing before taking off into the air (far left), While airborne he shifts hands to maintain the stability of the kite as it veers sharply to one side (left); then exhibits a double-V with his legs up and arms down (above). Finally he reaches out from under his kite and makes his way towards shore after touching down. Mike is seen while practising in Picton harbor for the 1969 U.S. Nationals in which he is competing today and tomorrow.

Airborne Kite Flyers Perform Gymnastic Tricks

By MALCOLM JOHNSTON
Staff Sportswriter

What's that in the sky?

It's a bird! It's a plane! No. It's a kite flier!

Actually kite fliers don't fly quite as high as birds or planes often do, but nevertheless kite flying is a breath-taking sport which is not without its dangers.

Kite fliers commonly travel through the air 39-50 feet above the surface of the water while being pulled by a boat which is travelling at speeds varying from 30-50 miles per hour.

"It's an exhilarating, spectacular sport which is relatively easy to learn but very very difficult to master," said Mike Church of Deseronto, a kite flier for the past six years.

Most nylon kites are 14 feet by 12 feet. They have an aluminum frame and styrofoam floats to keep the kite afloat when it hits the water. The total weight of the kite is approximately 60 pounds.

A tow rope — usually 120 feet long — connects the kite to the motor boat pulling it. The rope fastens to a pylon in the centre of the boat and the pylon is equipped with a flicker-type release to free the flier in case of a crash, thus preventing the boat from dragging him through the water.

A harness supports each of the flier's legs and is fastened to the kite's hand bar by a seat belt release, allowing the flier to take his hands off the hand bar.

"Most tricks entail the flier to take his hands off the bar and perform an upside - down type act," Mike Church added. "In fact you can do almost anything that you can do on a gymnasium high bar."

Mike Church is one of those who can perform like a gymnast while kite flying. Mike placed fourth overall in the United States National Kite Flying Championships in each of the last two years and today and tomorrow he'll be trying to improve on that performance in the 1969 U.S. Nationals at Bridgeport, Texas.

Church is one of four area kite fliers who will compete in Texas this weekend. The others are Linda Duczak, a secretary from Napanee and Sharon Kimmett, a Belleville hairdresser who will both compete in the Women's Class, and Rollie Bonneau of Brighton, a competitor in the Senior Men's Class.

All are members of the Canadian Kite Flyers Association, 20 of whose members left for Texas Wednesday on a chartered bus.

Church will compete in the trick flying and slalom flying competitions at Bridgeport and thus have a chance to place high in the overall competition if he does well in each of the individual events.

The 1400-foot slalom course is 100 feet wide. Each flier is required to go down the middle and zig-zag from side-to-side going around six buoys—three on each side located 100 feet apart.

A 115-foot tow rope will be used by the competitors the first time around and they'll travel at speeds of over 42 miles per hour. A flier is eliminated when he fails to turn in a perfect run — that is doing in and out between all of the buoys.

Then the tow ropes are shortened to 100 feet and the process is repeated. The elimination continues with the length of the tow rope being shortened to 85 and then 70 feet to increase the difficulty of the feat. If a winner is not declared after the run with 70 foot tow ropes the length is decreased by five feet until a winner emerges.

The trick flying competition requires each flier to do as many tricks as he can within 35 seconds. Each trick has a certain point value and the competitor with the highest number of points wins the event.

"My father operates Quinte Marina and I always water skied," explained Church, who works in the sales department at Ideal Vendors' Deseronto plant, "then Rollie Bonneau, the kite manufacturer from Brighton, who will compete in the Veterans category at Texas, came along one day and convinced me to try kite flying.

"I've been hooked on kite flying ever since," Church added. "It's dangerous, but if proper safety precautions are observed the risk is minimized."

"This is the first year I've ever practised before a tournament and I'd like to do better than I have in the past," the 29 year-old veteran of the kite flying wars added.

The Hospital of Saint John in Bruges, Belgium, has been in continuous operation since 1188.

Funaloat with Stan Davies

The United States Coast Guard has introduced a new distress signal for American small craft, and as has been the custom in the past the signal ultimately will be used in Canada and probably officially accepted.

The signal is a flag — in that brilliant fluorescent color called "International Orange" — waved steadily from side to side in front of the person signalling.

Already several states are considering, or even passing, laws to compel small boats to carry such a flag. Undoubtedly the trend to the use of this distress signal will gain momentum, because it is really a very good idea.

However, boaters should not forget that there are other distress signals. One that is still very good, is that of slowly and repeatedly raising and lowering the arms outstretched at each side — like a bird flapping its wings.

Only once since this signal was devised about three years ago have I had the opportunity to see it used in a real emergency. It is certainly very effective.

It's a gesture that can't possibly be misinterpreted as a greeting, the major fault of previous arm-waving distress signals. People on two other boats besides the one I was on observed the signal and reacted very quickly.

It is now reasonable to assume that all experienced boatmen know the signal. Only beginners and novices need to be educated.

One thing about it, to be as effective as possible, the signal should be given by a person standing on the highest and most conspicuous vantage point. And if he is trying to attract the attention of more then one boat he should turn and face each direction in turn.

There are 12 other recognized distress signals and each is described carefully in Safety Afloat, the government's free booklet, which every boat owner should have. Many of them are designed for large mercantile ships but every boater should learn them just in case a time comes when he can be of help.

One thing mentioned only briefly in Safety Afloat is the smoke flare designed for boats that venture into remote or semi-wilderness areas.

These are now readily available in kits manufactured by several of the ammunition companies. They are excellent as distress signals. The kits contain a sort of fireworks-display that shoot off red flames for night signalling and orange smoke for day use.

Be sure to have plenty of the smoke signals, they are much more effective in dry-light than the red flares. An acquaintance of mine, once stranded aground on a rocky shoal in a 32 foot shop, fired 14 red flares at passing craft all within visible range.

None of the flares attracted attention. Yet the first time he fired the orange smoke bomb, it was seen. He was very lucky because it was his last flare and the only one with smoke he had.

Another distress signalling device small craft might have aboard, is the one consisting of a bright orange sheet about six feet by four, with a black circle and square stitched on it. This signal was introduced last year and when spread out on the ground or deck of a boat is extremely visible to searching aircraft.

The most recent model of this device coting about $5 is made by the firm which makes sportsmen's blankets from the same super-insulation as is used in the Apollo space craft. The blanket-signal also has a metallized surface which if hung up, is radar reflective.

Only 400 Miles Open to Public

FREDERICTON (CP) — With salmon stocks dwindling and good trout streams becoming fewer, the pressure has been building in New Brunswick for the government to free the large percentage of provincial waterways currently controlled by private lease and riparian deed holders.

Roughly three-quarters of the province's 1,090 miles of suitable salmon fishing waters are off bounds to the average angler because of private leases and riparian deeds, most of them ancient, which give holders a control over stretches of water in the same manner as land deeds and leases.

The government, which hailed its policy of leasing waters several years ago, has been attempting to buy back privately held waterways but "it's a difficult situation." Resources Minister W. R. Duffie says.

"The department has no legal right to take riparian deeds away from holders if they don't want to sell."

Mr. Duffie says the department has spent $143,000 during the last three years to reclaim rights and open more areas to fishermen but the process is "slow at best" although everything possible is being done to speed the process.

He says the purchase cost of rights is usually calculated at a rate ranging from $1.30 to $5 per foot of waterway, a price based on the estimates of biologists.

Complaints are coming not only from frustrated salmon anglers but from trout fishermen as well who have access to only about half of the estimated 870 miles of major trout streams and rivers in the province.

Proposed cures have included suggestions that the government expropriate all riparian rights or pass legislation prohibiting private ownership of waters.

Golf made easy by Al Balding

Tall players sometimes feel longer shafts will help their game. But that's not always so. Regardless of height, most people's fingertips are the same distance from the ground. So a standard shaft is normally best. But like the various lies on a hockey stick, it may be that your club should be made more upright or flatter.

Fish the Dark Spots

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Taking your son fishing?

Try one of Ontario's little brooks where the water is clear. Use about six feet of line with a plain hook and a little worm for bait.

The department of lands and forests reports that fishing for most species gets slow in mid-summer.

However close to your home is a brook where there are speckled trout, as many as there were in the spring — the trouble is to find them.

Tell your son to walk softly on the bank of the creek, because the trout can hear the footsteps. And when he drops his line in the water, tell him to look for the dark water underneath branches or underwater objects.

Fish the dark spots.

Here is the report from the department's Eastern district:

TWEED — Speckled trout good in Parks and Squires creeks and fair in other waters. Rainbow trout, fair in Graphite and Cashel lakes, fair in other waters. Pickerel good in Trent River, Calabogie, Paudash, Baptiste and Moira lakes. Bass good in Dog, Limerick, Weslemkoon, Beaver, Little Salmon and Polluxy lakes. Muskellunge, fair in Weistone and Baptiste lakes and Beaver Creek. Panfish good throughout the district.

Two Scares Greet Nixon at Bangkok

Asians Wary Of U.S. Policy

"I'm afraid he's wet . . . try India, Indonesia, Thailand, Pakistan or Rumania.'

TOKYO (AP) — Non-Communist Asia reacted cautiously to President Nixon's call for Asians to play a bigger role in their own defence, and warned the United States against hasty military reductions.

President Ferdinand E. Marcos of the Philippines said he had been reassured that the U.S. has no intention "to abandon Asia." But in Bangkok, one of Nixon's next stops, the Thais received Nixon's statement with "mixed feelings," the newspaper Bangkok World reported.

Several non-Communist newspapers in Hong Kong saw merit in Nixon's call and ran "explanatory" editorials that Nixon did not mean the United States was pulling out of Asia or abandoning it to Communist aggression.

The Bangkok World said Chinese Foreign Minister Chan Yi had made the same point to Thailand is Peking's next target.

"When there is a lull in action in South Vietnam," it said, "Communists always step up their activities in Thailand. . . .

"There has been criticism about the unclear American policy and attitude toward Thailand in the last few years and officials expect a clearout answer on this."

In Hong Kong, colonial officials followed the normal policy of letting London do the talking. But a few individual Britons in high places said they generally understood America's desire to unload some of the Asian burden it has been carrying while hoping the United States would do it gradually and maintain an Asian defence role for many years.

The anti-Communist Chinese-language newspaper Wah Kiu said Nixon should have included South Vietnam in his Asian tour to "boost morale of the anti-Communist South Vietnamese government, troops and people and show them that America is not going to abandon them to communism."

Bottle Is Thrown By Demented Man

BANGKOK (CP) — President Nixon's visit to Thailand got off to an uneasy start today with two security scares after a rain-soaked arrival.

One man threw what appeared to be an empty bottle at Nixon and the king of Thailand. Police arrested him and said he was mentally disturbed, with a previous record.

Another man was arrested nearby with a pistol in his belt. But he turned out to be an army officer on leave from southern Thailand. He was released.

The bottle thrower was about 30 yards from Nixon and the king as they arrived in downtown Bangkok for the president to receive the keys to the city. Neither Nixon nor the king seemed aware of the incident.

The army officer was arrested across the street after Nixon and the king entered the pavilion.

Nixon showed no sign of concern as he went through the ceremonies and extended to Thailand reassurance about his recent account on self-help as a necessity for Asian states.

"The United States will stand proudly with Thailand against those who might threaten from abroad or within," Nixon told his hosts.

Nixon flew from Jakarta, where he told Indonesian President Suharto that he intends to maintain a hands-off approach toward the Indian policy of non-alignment.

Despite torrential rains, thousands of schoolchildren welcomed the Nixons to the Thai capital, where they will spend three days.

King Bhumibol Adulyadej and Queen Sirikit of Thailand braved the downpour to greet the president and Mrs. Nixon on the runway beside the presidential plane, Air Force One.

The downpour failed to dampen the enthusiasm of the welcoming crowds who cheered and waved.

In a message published today, Prime Minister Thanom Kittikachorn expressed the hope for full and frank discussions with the U.S. leader.

Observers here see the talks centring on post-Vietnam war aims and the "no more Vietnams" posture set down by Nixon at Guam during a stop-

Moon Rock Photographed

This is the first lunar sample that was photographed in detail in the lunar receiving laboratory, Manned Spacecraft Centre, Houston, Tex. The photo shows a granular, fine-grained mafic (iron magnesium rich) rock. At this early stage of the examination, the rock appears similar to several ingeneous rock types found on earth. The scale is printed backwards due to the photographic configuration in the vacuum chamber. (For story, see Page 16.)

They Just Wanted To Shoot Police

MEDICINE HAT, Alta. (CP) — Constable Roy Funk, 33, was recovering in hospital today after emergency surgery Sunday. He was shot twice Saturday by one of two men as he was held hostage, one of five policemen and six civilians so held.

"The policeman was just standing there and the guy came up, pointed the gun at his head, and shot him," said Grant Fox, 17, one of the civilian hostages. "About 10 minutes later, he shot the policeman again."

Bill Jussila, another hostage, said the two robbers held "guns on us all the time - - - they told us they didn't want to hurt us, and said they just wanted to shoot some policemen."

The robbers subsequently released the civilian hostages unharmed.

One robber, Victor Roeder, 25, of Medicine Hat, was killed. Another man surrendered to police.

UN Observer Is Killed As Suez War Intensified

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Israeli artillery fire was blamed today for the death of the first UN observer killed in the Suez Canal fighting.

The observer, Swedish Maj. Bo Finne, 37, was killed Sunday during a heavy artillery duel between Israeli and Egyptian forces near Port Suez, at the southern end of the canal.

Finne was one of 47 observers on the Egyptian side, and it was assumed that an Israeli shell killed him.

A UN spokesman said Secretary-General U Thant viewed the observer's death "very seriously" but had not decided yet whether to recommend withdrawal of the 91 other observers, stationed at eight posts on each side of the 103-mile waterway.

Thant said three weeks ago that the observers had become "defenceless targets in a shooting gallery." He said that if fighting continued along the canal he might be forced to withdraw them.

Egypt meanwhile flexed its renewed air might by striking Sunday at Israeli positions near the northern end of the canal.

It was the first time since the 1967 war that the Egyptian planes struck first, instead of responding to Israeli attack as they did twice last week.

An Israeli spokesman said the Egyptians hit three positions, killing one Israeli soldier and wounding six. He gave no explanation why the Israeli jets did not challenge the Egyptians.

Egyptian spokesmen said the planes, believed to be Soviet-built Sukhoi-7 single-seat fighters, hit Israeli positions from Ismailia, at the midpoint of the canal, to the Mediterranean coast and 16 miles into the Sinai Desert. No Egyptian losses were reported.

Both sides have made conflicting claims on recent air losses. The Egyptians claim they downed 32 Israeli jets last week. Israel said it shot down 12 Egyptian planes, and produced aerial photographs and a captured Egyptian pilot to prove it. Each side denied the other's claim.

Although the Israeli Air Force stayed out of Egypt on Sunday, a Jordanian spokesman said several formations of Israeli jet fighters made a heavy raid on Jordanian military positions in the Irbid area of north Jordan Sunday night.

The raid lasted 86 minutes, despite heavy anti-aircraft fire, the spokesman said. He reported three Jordanian soldiers killed, 12 wounded and six military vehicles damaged.

Another Nude Body Found At Ypsilanti in Michigan

YPSILANTI, Mich. (AP) — Authorities today hunted the strangler of an 18-year-old co-ed whose beaten, nude body was found in the area where six other young women have been slain.

"All I know is I've got seven unsolved murders," said Sheriff Douglas J. Harvey of Washtenaw County.

He said the killing of Karen Sue Beineman, a freshman at Eastern Michigan University, bore "many similarities" to six other slayings in Ypsilanti and the neighboring college town of Ann Arbor within the last two years.

But authorities reported "no hot leads" toward the killer—or killers.

Dr. Robert Hendrix, rated the foremost pathologist in the area, was called back from a northern Michigan trip Sunday to examine the body of Miss Beineman.

He reported that the pretty brown-haired girl was strangled and beaten "sometime Wednesday."

He said a full autopsy would be conducted later to determine whether she had been sexually assaulted and to establish a more precise time of death.

Prosecutor William Delhey of Washtenaw County said the slaying of Miss Beineman "would appear to be sexually motivated."

A man and wife walking from their home to their mailbox Saturday evening found Miss Beineman's body lying face down in a wooded ravine just off a small dirt road at the northeastern outskirts of Ann Arbor. Harvey said she apparently had been thrown or dumped from a car.

She last was reported seen Wednesday afternoon. Two clerks in a wig shop said she bought a wig and left on a motorcycle with a young man wearing a green and yellow striped T-shirt.

A sketch of the young man closely resembled a composite drawing made in 1968 of one of three youths in a red car, with whom another co-ed accepted a ride before being killed.

Rifleman Subdued With Gas

MONTREAL (CP) — Suburb Laval police used tear gas Sunday to flush out a man who barricaded himself in his home with his wife and two children and started firing a .30-.30 rifle into the street.

A police spokesman said no passers-by were injured during the hour-long battle but the man's brother was wounded accidentally in the shoulder and a policeman was injured when a tear gas grenade exploded in his face.

Police were questioning the man Sunday night but had not laid any charges.

Cut with Beer Bottle, Eyes May Never Close

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — James Gautreau, a 19-year-old London high school student, may never be able to smile or close his eyes again after being attacked with a beer bottle early Saturday, his father says.

N. G. Gautreau said Sunday his son may never smile or use the muscles in his face if the nerve damage is permanent, and if the wounds do not heal properly he "might not be able to close his eyes."

James said police he was walking home after a date when one of four youths he passed hit him on the head and cut his throat and face with a beer bottle.

Police said the attack was "unprovoked."

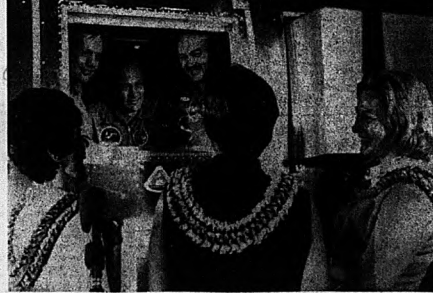
U.S. Base In Thailand Attacked

BANGKOK (Reuters) — An American airman was wounded and two aircraft damaged today as Communist guerrillas attacked a big United States air base in Thailand only hours before the arrival of U.S. President Richard M. Nixon.

An American spokesman said an air force guard was slightly wounded when the raiders opened fire as he challenged them. Explosive charges detonated shortly afterward, damaging two DC-3 transport aircraft parked at the Ubon base, about 435 miles northeast of Bangkok.

American officials declined to speculate that the raid was deliberately timed to coincide with Nixon's arrival but observers noted it was only the second attack since American bases were established in Thailand five years ago.



Irishman Rows Home From St. John's, Nfld.

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — A Dublin-born paratrooper landed back in Ireland Sunday, 72 days after he set out from here in his 20-foot rowboat Super Silver.

About 50 persons lined s St. John's dock May 17 and a small flotilla of boats accompanied Thomas McCleon who he headed out of the narrows on his transatlantic row.

McCleon was carrying scrap rations for 140 days, but said he hoped to make the crossing in 80 days if he had favorable winds and weather.

McCleon, who strode up to a lighthouse on the west coast of Ireland Sunday and told an astonished lighthkeeper he had rowed the Atlantic, had planned to keep a detailed log and take numerous pictures en route. A British newspaper has bought the rights to the log.

Commercial Area Proposed North of City

By HARRY MULHALL
(Staff Reporter)

A big commercial area is being contemplated by developers immediately north of Belleville in Thurlow township.

The project under scrutiny was confirmed today by Pickton mayor Harvey McFarland — the man who owns the property being viewed as a possible site.

If the scheme were realized Mayor McFarland estimated the project could cost between $2,000,000 and $3,000,000.

While there has been "negotiation and talking and discussion" the mayor emphasized no definite decision has yet been reached.

"Nothing has come down to a head whereby we can say yes or no," he said.

The site under investigation is a choice location — flanked by the Macdonald-Cartier Freeway and the Moira River east of Highway 14.

Mayor McFarland says he owns 20 acres in the land bloc — adjacent to a quarry and ready-mix cement plant operated for years by his H. J. McFarland Construction Co. Ltd.

Mayor McFarland said discussions had been under way between himself and developers for about three months.

The negotiations also included the possibilities of him leasing the centre on "a long-term basis."

Mayor McFarland said he believed he already had a building permit issued to him by the township.

"But that doesn't necessarily mean we're going to build," he stressed.

The area has no municipal water or sewage services.

However, Mayor McFarland expressed no concern about water supply.

"We figure there's lots of water there if necessary," he said.

Diamond drilling some years ago revealed a good natural water supply in the vicinity, he added.

The development, if it progresses closer to realization, would be the second such scheme contemplated near the city-township municipal boundaries.

The first, a $3,000,000 shopping plaza in the North Front Street area, compounded into a public controversy when the Ontario Municipal Board refused city-requested rezoning to permit the development.

The OMB decision is scheduled for a cabinet-ordered review — but no date has yet been set.

Simultaneously, the OMB must also consider its permission granted Thurlow for similar commercial zoning on the opposite side of the Freeway.

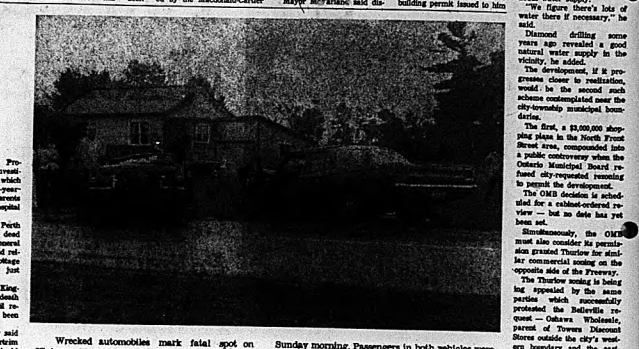
The Thurlow zoning is being appealed by the same parties which successfully protested the Belleville request — Oshawa Wholesale, parent of Towers Discount Stores outside the city's western boundary and the east-end Belleville Plaza.

Child Dies From Gas

SHARBOT LAKE — Provincial police are still investigating circumstances which took the life of a three-year-old girl and sent her parents and younger sister to hospital unconscious Saturday.

Nancy Bertelsen, of Perth Road, was pronounced dead on arrival at Kingston General Hospital after friends and relatives broke into the cottage at Little Dance Lake, just south of here.

Coroner H. G. Day of Kingston said the cause of death will not be released until results of an autopsy have been studied.



Hospital officials today said Mr. and Mrs. Claude Bertelsen and their eight-month-old daughter Ann Marie were being treated for gas inhalation. They said both parents were in satisfactory condition but the child was still in a precarious into this morning.

The incident was discovered when Mr. Bertelsen, a brother and a Kingston couple called on them from an adjoining cottage Saturday morning.

After receiving no reply to their knocking, and hearing heavy breathing inside the cottage, they broke in to find the family still in bed.

The cottage is equipped with a propane gas refrigerator and the scene yesterday was surveyed by department of energy and resources officials, say police.

No further details were released.

Chef's Trade No Easy Task

By DONALD WILCOX
Staff Reporter

TRENTON — From a butcher's helper to a master chef is a big step; one that has taken 31 years. Antoine Sidebois, the new chef at the Redwood Hotel, started as a helper to his father, in the family butcher shop, in Rotterdam, Holland at the age of 12. Thirty-one years later he is a master chef and has shown his talent to people around the world.

Chef Antoine is easy to spot in a crowd for two reasons. The first and outstanding characteristic is his height, six foot, nine inches, making him the tallest known chef in Canada. The second is his three children follow this trademark. Antoine Junior, at the age of 18, is six foot four. His 17-year-old daughter, Linda, is also very tall while Sylvia, at the age of 14, follows in the footsteps of her mother, Cecile.

The second trademark of the newcomer to the Trenton area is the red bandana that he wears. Sports fans may have seen the bandana without even knowing it. Pro-race driver, Jackie Stewart, always wears one when he races. Sidebois presented it to him in the hope it would become a good luck charm.

Holland, Switzerland, France, Germany, the British Isles, West Indies, and the Virgin Islands have all tasted the fine foods prepared by the winner of over 30 awards.

"I like working with fresh food, the fresher the better. Right in this area you have the best pickerel in America," said Antoine.

Asked the difference between a cook and a chef, the tall Hollander was quick to answer. "Anyone can cook; a chef must be able to run a kitchen, serve good food, and make a profit. If you can do that then you are a chef."

He went on to explain that it takes years of schooling. Antoine served his apprenticeship with the Ritz Hotel chain in Europe.

"I like personal contact with people and if anyone is planning a party or would like help in his own cooking I am always happy to help," offered the master.

Sidebois has catered to many heads of state and top sports people in his time. One name mentioned was the Prime Minister of Newfoundland, Joey Smallwood.

The six foot nine chef has also won many favorites in the three weeks he has been cooking in Trenton. One was Mayor James MacDonald. "It was the finest meal I have ever had," the mayor informed Antoine.

Dam Work Studied

TWEED — The Cataraqui Region Conservation Authority has been granted a $6,000 provincial grant for an engineering study to determine the feasibility of reconstructing the Marsh Bridge Dam in the Township of Front of Yonge.

The Authority requested the grant under the Provincial Water Supply Program.

All member municipalities have been designed as benefiting and will be levied a share of the cost.

Tourists Visit Tweed

TWEED — The warm sunny weather has lured tourists to Tweed and district in ever increasing numbers.

A check with the register at the tourist information booth in North America's Smallest Hillbroke, on South Victoria Street, showed 21 pages of the guest register have been filled with the names of visitors since June 28th to July 20th, for the current season.

Visitors are coming from all across Canada and the United States and also Europe. So far the person coming the greatest distance who signed the register has been J. P. S. Jansen of Apeldoorn, Holland, who visited the booth on July 12th.

Miss Dianne Gunning, Hastings County's Dairy Princess for 1968, is in charge of the information booth each morning, with Miss Brenda Jones and Miss Linda Canteloh taking charge on alternate afternoons.

Concrete Piers Poured

Pouring of concrete for the first of five mid-stream piers for the new Dundas Street Moira River bridge got underway this morning.

"Things are commencing to move now," commented Ron Fralo, project engineer for consultants Damas and Smith who designed the structure. "Within a month it will begin to look like a bridge.

Pouring of concrete for the first pier was expected to be completed by mid-afternoon today.

Work will then proceed with the erection of forms for the other piers to be erected inside the coffer dam. Forms for the bridge abutment on the east side of the river is about completed.

Three mid-stream piers and the east side of the river are poured following which the coffer dam will be extended to the west side of the river to allow construction of the two remaining piers and west side abutment.

Nixon Starts Bangkok Visit

over at the start of his Asian tour.

The situation in Laos and recent Communist military successes bringing North Vietnamese forces closer to the Thai border—are likely to be high on the agenda of the Thai-American talks.

They also are expected to figure prominently in Nixon's meeting with top officials of the Southeast Asia Treaty Organization here Tuesday.

During his three days in Bangkok, Nixon will talk with Ellsworth Bunker, the U.S. ambassador to South Vietnam, and Gen. Creighton W. Abrams, commander of U.S. forces in Vietnam, as well as with Thai officials.

At a news conference on Guam Friday, Nixon indicated the conferences with Bunker and Abrams would influence his thinking on further U.S. troop withdrawals and his assessment of the current lull in fighting.

Before his return home August 3, Nixon also will visit India, Pakistan, Romania and Britain.

Nixon flew to Bangkok after 22 hours in Jakarta during which he and President Suharto talked about U.S. economic aid for the island nation's development as well as the likely situation in Southeast Asia after the Vietnam war.

It was on the flight from Manila to Jakarta Sunday that Nixon hinted from while his administration will try to avoid future military involvement in any Asian conflicts, all pacts would be off in the event of a nuclear war.

He said the United States is closely involved when one talks about nuclear matters. While declining to state specifically that Indonesia would be covered by an American "nuclear umbrella" should China attack it with such weapons, he stated that certain facts of international life are self-evident.

Nixon told Suharto the U.S. would not try to sway Indonesia from its policy of non-alignment and invited Suharto to visit the U.S.

Suharto said in reply that Nixon's visit had given the U.S. president a clearer picture of Indonesian ideals, its views on world problems in general and on current issues.

Suharto also said he would honor Nixon's invitation at an appropriate time.

"You choose your own way . . . you choose your own political," Nixon told Suharto in an airport address.

Car Tires Are Slashed

Belleville city police are investigating a weekend incident of malicious damage which resulted in the slashing of some tires.

According to Chief Douglas Crosbie, three cars were parked in the driveway of George Parkhurst of Maple Drive.

Tires on all three cars were discovered slashed by Mr. Parkhurst at 2:45 a.m. Sunday morning.

Police believe the slashing took place sometime between 1 p.m. Saturday and the time of discovery.

Damage in the tires has been estimated at $100.

Covered Rink Possible On Coleman Flats Site

City council will make a Coleman Flats site available to the Quinte Action Centre committee as the location for their proposed recreational building.

Council has agreed to set aside a site adjacent to the Wallbridge Crescent public works yards and this location has been approved by the Quinte Action Centre committee. The site faces the extension of Fahey street north of Harriett.

Construction of an arena type structure for year round recreational activity is proposed by the committee which is shortly to embark on a fund raising drive. The first money raising activity will be a walkathon tentatively scheduled for September.

The Quinte Action Centre committee favors the construction of a covered rink type structure rather than provision of an open air artificial ice pad which they claim is not suitable in this climate.

In making their choice Coleman Flats site available to the action centre committee council inserted as a condition that any construction plans be submitted for parks board approval and that any facilities erected will be under the control and operation of the city recreational and arena committee.

Hail and Rain Turn Weekend Into Worst of Summer

By BARRY GRILLS
Staff Reporter

Changeable weather conditions, thunderstorms and hailstorms in the Quinte area over the weekend resulted in power breakdowns, damaged properties and numerous traffic accidents.

Climatological officials at Tweed reported that in some areas rainfall was recorded at more than three inches in 24-hour periods.

Indeed, almost all of southern Ontario was plagued by lightning storms and heavy rainfall.

And according to the duty forecaster at CFB Trenton, the storm activity will not be over until sometime Tuesday when it moves out of the area.

Friday saw the stage set for the weekend's bad weather as .20 inches of rainfall fell in the Belleville area.

Saturday morning two areas in the Quinte district were struck by a freak hailstorm which damaged corn crops and left ice pellets larger than mothballs lying on the ground.

One of the areas struck by hail was Smoke's Point near Weller's Bay where panes of glass were broken and the roof of a patio smashed.

The hail also cut a narrow swath across Centre Hastings ranging from south of Marmora to east of Tweed.

Accompanying rain washed the hail into ditches with depths of up to 22 inches being reported in roadside ditches south of Tweed.

Provincial police reported nine automobile mishaps in the Belleville area during the storms.

On Highway 14 at Thurlow Township's fourth concession, 17-year-old Stewart Wales, of Morven, suffered head contusions and a back injury when the automobile in which he was a passenger was involved in an accident.

The river, William Perrin, 21, of R.R. 2 Cornwall, and his wife, Elaine, were released from Belleville General Hospital after emergency treatment.

Large amounts of rainfall were recorded all over the area with Belleville receiving .15 inches of rain Saturday and 1.16 inches on Sunday.

Winds were gusting to 23 miles per hour, the duty forecaster said. There were other reports of gusts up to 40 miles per hour.

Belleville and Prince Edward County were relatively free of motor vehicle accidents despite heavy storm activity.

Lightning storms yesterday told the story for employees of the Ontario Hydro Commission who were kept working all night in rural areas near Picton, Frankford and Tweed.

According to Norman Manning, public relations officer for the commission, standby crews were kept busy throughout both nights in the weekend and Saturday's and one crew was called in near Picton to handle power breakdowns.

However, the breakdowns were not of a serious nature lasting usually only for moments.

"It kept the men hopping to keep the breakdowns to a minimum," Mr. Manning said. "They worked long hours."

Provincially, Windsor was the hardest hit by Dundee storms which caused flood damage and power failures.

Rainfall figures across southern Ontario all measured over one inch in 24-hour periods.

Late Sunday, weather officials in Toronto and Detroit were tracking a small tornado near Sarnia.

Tweed reported that from July 24 to this morning rainfall had surpassed the normal figure for the whole month of July.

Normal in the area for July is 2.33 inches. Tweed has received 2.97 inches since July 24 bringing the monthly total to 3.31 inches.

Tweed also reported eight lightning storms since July 24.

In the last 24 hours White Lake has reported 3.32 inches of rainfall, Fievna .62 inches and Bancroft 1.01 inches of rainfall.

School Not Out for Teachers

K. W. Gould, guidance counsellor at a public school in London, Ontario, conducts one of the group work guidance courses offered by the department of education in Belleville this summer.

A group of 142 teachers from the immediate and surrounding areas is enrolled in the first of a four-part program leading to a guidance certificate.

Teachers on Summer Course Learning Guidance Techniques

By JUDY SCHREIBER

"Help the student help himself" is an appropriate expression to describe the aim of a guidance counselor, according to J. H. Parker, principal of the guidance course set up in Belleville this summer.

Housed in Centennial Secondary School, the course is the core of a five-week guidance course being offered for qualified elementary and secondary school teachers with at least one year's teaching experience.

"Each year certain areas are chosen to make the opportunity of summer guidance courses available to teachers," explained Mr. Parker.

There are six centres set up throughout the province this year. The Belleville branch of the Ontario Department of Education's guidance program ended only with the intermediary course, the first of a four-part course leading to a guidance certificate.

"The whole course embodies five different areas," commented Mr. Parker.

Counselling courses are designed to familiarize teachers with the interview situation.

The group work the teachers participate in also ties in with the department's program to help the teachers gain insight into various working situations.

"Part of the group work is industrial tours," Mr. Parker explained. "The teachers discover the opportunities available and the qualifications necessary in particular industries. With the help of personnel people, they gain more insight and background knowledge.

"Guidance is one of the co-ordinating services to help students at all levels," explained the guidance principal.

With the advent of the un-graded system, facets of guidance counselling are broadening.

Vocational guidance is only a small portion of the guidance participants in also ties in with the department's program to help the teachers gain insight into various working situations.

Two of the courses offered by the department are extremely valuable to teachers who will find themselves in student interview situations.

Statistics and tests and measurement courses are designed to familiarize teachers with evaluation and interpretation of tests which students write.

"Teachers find out exactly what tests are used, as well as actually trying the tests," said Mr. Parker.

This practical aspect of the course is dominant in the program. Local as tours of local industries, representatives of local organizations have spoken on different groups of summer students.

"The teachers are responsible for contacting speakers and arranging the talks," Mr. Parker explained. "Again, this is an attempt to familiarize the teachers with different situations."

The program, which ends Aug. 8, is designed to help the teachers "provide greater service for the students, parents and teachers with whom they work."

School Budget for L-A Up by 17.8 Per Cent

NAPANEE — Lennox and Addington County School Board's budget holds a 17.8 per cent increase over the 1968 budget.

The first budget under the new system is set at $5,304,846 an increase of $771,600 over last year's budget, set under the old system.

The increase is caused by expanded facilities, including larger staffs and higher salaries. Academic supervision, formerly paid by the Ontario Department of Education through the district inspector system is another cause for the increase. Business administration costs are approximately the same as the total cost under the old system.

Municipalities face a levy of $1,628,943.

A total of $2,741,200 is necessary for teachers' salaries. Elementary teachers will receive a total of $1,321,500; secondary school teachers a total of $1,238,000. The remainder is to be used for special education.

Napanee's levy for education in 1968 was $255,326. The 1969 levy is $301,135, an increase of $45,810. The proposed mill rate for education will be presented to council August 5.

Tax bills are expected to reach the public later that month, calling for payment with the third and fourth installments, September and November, according to Clerk-Treasurer Carson Graham.

Airliner Sale Bribe Alleged

NEW DELHI (Reuters) — An official investigation has been ordered into the alleged offer of a $75,000 bribe for each airliner bought from the Douglas Aircraft Corp., Parliament was told today.

Aviation Minister Karan Singh said the central bureau of investigation was doing the alleged bribe offer to an Indian airlines official and anonymous complaints and allegations were received.

The matter was first raised in Parliament a week ago when the figure for the alleged bribe offer was said to be $15,000 a plane. Douglas officials in the U.S. declined comment.

Singh said at that time that a letter containing the bribe offer from a representative of Douglas Aircraft had been passed to the government "with the compliments of the Boeing Co." But in Parliament today, Singh said the letter was forwarded by an official of the Pillman Aircraft Co.

The letter allegedly was sent to an Indian airlines official by the Indamer Co. of Bombay, representatives of the Douglas firm in India, Singh said.

The Indian government currently is considering the purchase of new jetliners to replace its fleet of French-built Caravelles. The Indian airlines committee has recommended five Douglas DC-9s be purchased.

Provincial police said the car left the road on a curve at a railway overpass, struck the bridge and then careened into the lake.

Fair Area Being Fenced

Fence erection crews are busy at the Belleville fair grounds working to block off a section of the grounds where "fence jumpers" have proved troublesome during the past couple of years.

A new chain link fence is being erected around the grounds at the corner of Yeomans and Catherine Streets to enclose the area on which the former parks superintendent's residence and park board greenhouse were located.

The fence erection is being carried out by the parks board in conjunction with the fair board which will pay up to $1,000 toward the cost.

The fenced area will be used as parking for cattle exhibitors and possibly also as parking for lawn bowling club members who currently leave their cars on Yeomans Street.

Exhibition Finances

Although there is talk of further discussions on the issue, for the time being at least the Quinte Exhibition (formerly the Belleville Fair) is not going to have its rental fee of $750 from the parks board waived.

Nor is it going to receive the customary $750 fair grant from the city, and exhibition administrators are understandably concerned.

In the circumstances perhaps it is time to get back to the idea of free enterprise upon which this nation was founded, before the advent of the welfare state whereby we are all being subsidized in one way or another. Perhaps it is time to match the fair's new status as the Quinte Exhibition with an extra effort, superior performance and a fresh effort to inject further life into the annual attraction.

Belleville's population has grown since last year and we need constantly changing ideas to attract not only those who attend year after year but those who are new to the Quinte area. If it means charging more to see this year's exhibits well and good, but let quality and diversity of interest be prime considerations too.

Rodent Problem

That there is a rodent problem in some areas of Belleville was made clear in a letter to this newspaper last week from Mrs. Mary McLaughlin who arranges for conversion of furniture to needy families in the city.

It goes without saying that the property she cited is not the only one where rats have gnawed through electrical wiring, rendering appliances useless and turning them into potential fire hazards, as well as chewing through clothing and helping themselves to food.

The problem is one Council and the Health Department should tackle without delay. Not only is there a health hazard but there is the risk of fire already mentioned. For any number of reasons it is a situation that can not be tolerated.

An example of what can be done is the Port of Montreal which has virtually eliminated the rat population around the docks. This was accomplished by a concerted extermination program and it is the kind of action that may be needed here.

Let's not wait for a fire to do the job or for some child to get bitten. It should be tackled at once. It is a task incidentally in which the fire department could co-operate in the course of its home inspection work.

He's A Baronet

Canada has always been at pains to present no overt signs of aristocracy in its national life. Alone among the Commonwealth nations it has dispensed with the cult of knighthoods, New Year honors from the Queen and so on.

But every now and again the presence of the British aristocracy turns up in the most unlikely places. There was the Saskatchewan railroader for example — a Mr. Williams as we recall — who succeeded to a British title a few years ago.

And just recently there was the announcement that Derek Hart Dyke, 44, who works for Steico's production planning department in Hamilton, and lives in a $15 a week bed sitting-room, is now Sir Derek Hart Dyke. The twice-married former RAF flight engineer emigrated to Canada in 1948 and succeeded to the 17th century baronetcy on the death of his father.

The ninth baronet, Sir Derek says he will not use the title. He has also left what remains of the former 1,000-acre estate in all the (including a manor house) in possession of his stepmother and younger brother. Title or not (and admittedly it would be difficult to tout such a title around in Canada, and in industrial Steico of all places) Sir Derek, or plain Mr. Dyke, has the look of a man of good stock and good breeding which after all are qualities of which any man can be proud.

One More Cross

By turn eloquent and poignant, Senator Edward Kennedy's remarkable account of his recent ordeal in Chappaquiddick commands respect. Even though his statement does not answer all the questions that arose in the wake of the mishap in which a young woman friend of the Kennedy family drowned, no one can doubt the honesty and sincerity of his words or the integrity of the senator. If his political career is in jeopardy the family honor is not, in the light of this statement. For Edward Kennedy personally, though, the tragic accident is one more cross of many he and his family have been called upon to bear over the years.

Monetary Fund Meets in September

World Trade May Benefit from Injection of Credit

By HAROLD MORRISON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

A major move to inject a huge new flow of credit in finance expansion of world trade is gradually edging towards fulfilment, reducing the threat of another international currency crisis and probably producing a gloomy future for gold speculators.

Some hurdles still remain, but it now appears likely that when the International Monetary Fund governors meet in September, they'll give final approval to a process which likely will add more than $10,000,000,000 to the so-called liquidity pool during the next three years.

The name of the game is Special Drawing Rights, a subject long debated and negotiated in the monetary fund whereby member countries can obtain additional credit almost automatically when their own reserves of dollars and gold are down.

For months there have been questions of whether this special expansion program would ever get off the ground and whether the amounts involved will be sufficiently large and accessible to help a country fight off currency attacks during periods when foreign bills against a country are large and the home treasury is low.

Now it appears most of the fine points have been approved by the 10 leading industrial countries at a Paris meeting of deputy governors or ministers, virtually assuring that national governments will convey their approval at the monetary fund conference.

Co-operation between Europe and North America expressed by this agreement is strengthened by indications the new French government—unlike the former de Gaulle regime—has hinted at a willingness to participate or at least not to throw up barriers that could wreck the program.

Experts predict that as a result of the Paris meeting there soon may be a great new era of transatlantic understanding that may lead to other fields of co-operation, including an end to the rocky period of competition in raising natural bank interest rates.

While this transatlantic lineup is becoming increasingly apparent, there are features in this understanding which suggest Europe will play a prominent and even a dominant role in activating the new line of credit.

In effect, Common Market countries will have veto power, with the approval of these countries required each time there is a major drawing of the new credit. But since it is likely that France will need this credit as much as Britain and since France still has great influence on Common Market affairs, there is little likelihood of much opposition from France to using the liquidity pool is tapped.

MAN IN THE MOONGLOW

The P.M., Wheat and Subsidies

Winnipeg Free Press

Prime Minister Trudeau has the right idea about subsidies. On the last leg of his Western tour the prime minister said that Canadians cannot subsidize each other and prosper, the government did not want to take over the agricultural economy eternal subsidies. He claimed and rightly — that some farmers now work uneconomic units and will have to leave the land. By the same token some workers may have to be taken out of the textile industry in Canada as developing countries produce more and cheaper textiles.

This is fine in theory and it is to be hoped that Mr. Trudeau can make his ideas work in practice. He is, of course, bucking all Canadian history, inasmuch as this country's manufacturing industry was founded on and has ever since, been assisted, by tariffs — which is a form of subsidy to the manufacturer. Other industries — gold mining, the dairy industry and so on — are all recipients of subsidies. And the cry today is ever for higher tariffs and greater subsidies.

The one person who has not had the advantage of protection of this kind is the grain farmer. Indeed, he has had all the disadvantages of protection, none of the advantages. Protected industries have meant higher prices for the things the farmer has to buy. Yet he has had no support price or subsidy for his product, and today he finds himself unable to deliver it, or, when he does, he finds that the price has fallen and his return diminished.

No one would welcome the implementation of Mr. Trudeau's ideas about subsidies more than the western farmer. But until such time as they are put into practice and present inequities eliminated, the farmer continues to look to Ottawa for some kind of solution to his present financial woes. Well — meaning talk about dislike of subsidies is not the immediate answer.

TODAY IN HISTORY

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

July 28, 1909 . . .

Austria declared war on Serbia 55 years ago today—in 1914—and the house of cards of European diplomacy collapsed into general war within a few days. The revival of Serbia as a Balkan power was feared by the Austro-Hungarian empire, since many of its subjects were Slavs, as were the Serbs, and resented imperial foreign rule. Serbia was backed by Russia, the traditional protector of the small Serb states, and Austria was backed by the German empire. Although Germany had an army and planned to attack France, the French declared war first because of its treaty obligations to Russia.

Appeal for Donors

Blood Supply Low in Summer

Ottawa Journal

The summer blood crisis is here again. The Red Cross finds it increasingly difficult from mid-July to mid-August to supply 33 Eastern Ontario and West Quebec hospitals with enough blood to fill the need. Each summer it reaches a point, as it did last week, where an emergency appeal must be made for blood donors just to keep pace.

Hospitals require as much, and sometimes a bit more, blood in the summer as they do the rest of the year. But blood donors go on holidays or just haven't time to give during the golf and swimming season. Even Red Cross telephone call volunteers, whose job it is to remind regular donors of the need, shirk duties during the summer. The Red Cross must rely on the good spirit of Bell Canada operators and service representatives who give of their own time to fill the telephone soliciting gap. Donors drop 20 to 25 per cent in summer; the Red Cross provided 5,200 pints of blood in April, and July's supply is expected to be somewhere near last July's count of 4,028 pints, yet the need doesn't vary.

There is no pat solution to the problem. The Red Cross will stockpile a bit more through the summers, scaring up donors via the telephone and counting on the generous community spirit of people like the Bell people. But a little more of that community spirit from the rest of us would make the job that much easier. Accidents and emergency operations know no holiday; everyone should a sense of compassion for our fellow man.

U.S. Stage Pornography Upsets Soviet Critics

Detroit News

For once we must agree with a point made by Soviet propagandists.

The theatrical production, "Oh Calcutta!", which the Soviets presented in part and criticized on a Russian television show, cannot be excused for defending.

We could point out, of course, that neither the "Oh Calcutta!" scenes nor the other nude shots presented to the Russian television viewers would get past the censors of American TV productions. Such material is not thrust upon the American viewer in his living room. To see it he must of his own choice go and buy a theatre ticket.

We might also note that "Oh! Calcutta!" is not inherently an American creation, having been originated and produced by Kenneth Tynan, a British dramatic critic.

But of course that merely means that the British share American depravity.

We question whether that depravity is as widespread as the Soviet propagandists would have their audience believe. Still, there's no getting around the fact that "Oh! Calcutta!" is one of the most blatant pieces of pornography ever presented on the American stage, and it enjoys sufficient patronage to stay on the boards.

What is the purpose of a full dress discussion of such smut except to excite prurient thought?

The Soviets offered the excuse as proof of evil processes in the theatre in this country. And the Soviets made their point.

Alberta's Lovely Waterton Park

Hamilton Spectator

Canada's most beautiful playground is undoubtedly Waterton Lakes National Park in southwest Alberta. It's a real gem, very much like a piece of Switzerland, and you'd be surprised how few Canadians have ever visited it.

The blame for Waterton's neglect is almost entirely the federal governments. It has never given that gorgeous little national park the publicity it deserves. Banff, with its over-rated Lake Louise, and Jasper, with its great areas of nothingness, are about the only parks in the country, with the possible exception of Nova Scotia's magnificent Cape Breton National Park, which are well-known to readers of travel literature.

It's a shame that smaller parks like Waterton aren't better known. The government should make a point next year of producing travel literature and advertisements that place far less emphasis on the big parks, which are already heavily publicised by the hugh railways that serve them, and more on this country's smaller beauty spots.

Public opinion played an important role in Britain. It has no such role to play in the Soviet Union, where the public has never been told of the hugest existence, of the state of Brooke's health or of conditions in the labor camps.

Numerous MP's and observers in Britain have called the exchange fantastic. They have asked whether a British tourist will be safe in future in the Soviet Union, if the Russians get a hostage to exchange for Soviet spies imprisoned abroad.

The answer seems to be that totally innocent tourists need have no fear. But foolhardy visitors like Brooke plainly stand a chance of becoming pawns in a game of pawns are not decently needed.

UK Backs Down

Soviet Diplomatic Squeeze Gets the Best of Spy Swap

By PETER BUCKLEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The case of Gerald Brooke, released from Soviet custody and flown to London, follows a pattern that is becoming all too familiar in "spy swaps" between East and West.

The actors involved change from drama to drama, but one constant factor appears to be the ability of the Soviet secret police to get the best of the deal.

In the Brooke affair, the Soviet Union forced the British government into a humiliating come-down over an issue on which Britain had sworn not to retreat.

As Foreign Secretary Michael Stewart told the House of Commons, Britain did not seem to have much choice. It got what other concessions it could from the Russians, but the exchange still seems lopsided.

There are numerous precedents of which two can serve as examples:

American U-2 pilot Francis Gary Powers, a technician who proved valueless to the U.S. after Soviet imprisonment, was traded for Col. Rudolph Abel, who has become a folk hero in Russia and an important KGB (secret police) instructor after his long sojourn as resident spy-master in the U.S.

British businessman Greville Wynne, a part-time British intelligence agent of necessarily limited effectiveness on his trips into the Soviet Union, was exchanged for a Russian resident spy known as Gordon Lonsdale, who can be presumed to be almost as useful to the Soviet Union now as Col. Abel.

Now Brooke is traded for Morris and Lola Cohen, alias Peter and Helen Kroger, 18-year-old Polish-Americans who joined Lonsdale in the Portland spy ring which sent British and NATO naval secrets to Russia and who had been implicated in Abel's American activities.

Brooke, on the other hand, was a 28-year-old Russian-language teacher who was arrested four years ago in Moscow bearing propaganda material from what Prime Minister Wilson has called a "silly and discreditable organization"—WPU, or Popular Labor Alliance, a continental group of emigres and professional anti-Soviets.

The Russians have been pressing all along for an exchange of Brooke for the Krogers. British education refused, on the grounds that their offence were not comparable —in fact, that Brooke would have been guilty of no offence in a democratic society.

So the Soviet Union increased the pressure. Brooke's health deteriorated in the sordid labor camp where he was imprisoned, and no attempt was made to keep it secret.

When that didn't work, the Soviets threatened to put him on trial again for even more serious "crimes." After first balking, the British government has had to give in on humanitarian grounds.

Trail Ride Set for Aug. 24

PICTON — The Hastings County Riders, a non-profit group promoting the use and development of horseback riding and trail riding in Ontario have appealed to Prince Edward County horsemen to "saddle up."

Said a club spokesman, "We believe that the best way to see Ontario and its beautiful forests with their lakes and streams is from the back of a horse".

On Aug. 24 members of the club will gather at Tweed Fairgrounds for their annual competitive trail ride. All Prince Edward County horsemen interested in "going along for the ride" are invited to take part. There is a fee of $5 for adult riders and $3 for children.

Object of this ride is to test the individual's horse on its ability to travel long distances and to test its abilities as a suitable trail mount. Prizes will be awarded to the top four horses in both junior and senior divisions.

Participants in the ride "range in age from 7 to 77," according to secretary-treasurer, Madeleine Macon.

Riders are instructed to bring their own equipment for overnight camping plus utensils for cooking. "Strickers" are considered a necessary part of the rider's gear as the horsemen move out rain or shine.

Jeane Dixon's Horoscope

Your birthday today: Productive effort comes naturally this year, particularly where musical or artistic enterprises happen to be your specialty. Romantic and sentimental attachments tend to become intense. Give your intuition the opening to guide you. Today's natives are idealists with an unconscious knack for self-protection.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): Your charm today is more important than any work you do. Make full use of it. The soft-spoken backstage works now. Romantic interests stir.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): Your occasional stress fighters. Humor hits right on the core of your problems of the last several days . . . Begin patching up differences.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): Strict observance of directions becomes essential in using tools and appliances today. If you're talking while working can spell something. Be patient with mate — it's worth it now.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): You may have to give definite answers to major proposals before you have all the facts or before you think them through. Go on your intuition. Expect an older person to involve himself and force some reconsideration.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): It does not do to let your feelings show outwardly today, nor to go out of your way to get involved in other people's complaints. Take things at face value.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): Follow your intuition through a mixed day; some people help while others go to some length to hinder. A new diet or beauty regime can be beneficial.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): You are in charge of your own welfare: anybody will let you do anything, whether it is safe or not. Special care and thought of what you are doing is appropriate today.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): Get busy with the month - end chores so that you will have full information over the coming weekend for long range studies and better planning. Trouble: some people are attracted to you now, and it may be difficult to escape.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): Last call to serve purchases of technical items, cosmetics and the like for a better day. Anything you buy now will be hardly used. Your own brittle mood stirs others to more of it than usual — keep a little distance.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): Stay on an even keel while people around you let go with their tensions. Look for home maintenance details and attend to them.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): Remain with the working power that has prevailed lately. Put in a day as nearly normal as you can manage; expect no special benefit or loss. Thrift continues to be a good idea.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): It's fun showing strangers the town. Friends are lucky today. Your feelings may lead you to go beyond reason. Reconsider when somebody suggests that you are overly enthusiastic.

Long Hours At Corner Store

TORONTO (CP) — In the age of supermarkets, a little corner store thrives in a Toronto suburb.

For 19 years the familiar figure of Olive Baker, 50, has been serving neighborhood families. She works a 10½-hour day, six days a week. Sunday she rests and goes to church.

She and her husband Frank virtually built the store themselves.

"Frank did the building and I helped with nailing some of the boards and pouring the concrete," she says. "We did everything except plastering, plumbing and heating."

Mrs. Baker developed the habit of hard work on her parents' Haliburton, Ont., farm where her mother had a mail route, raised three children and did the housework.

So the housewife's day in the store. Mrs. Baker and her husband worked six months to a lumber camp.

"Frank was boss and I cooked for 30 men. Between October and March I baked a ton of flour into bread and pies and cakes."

She taught her daughter, too.

The smiling proprietor has a way with kids and says she has had little trouble with those who come into her store.

Once when a few became troublesome "I showed them the door and continued to do so when they came back."

"I have no pilferage and when a youngster comes in with a $10 bill for candy I usually know the mother and telephone her. Usually I'm right in thinking it has been lifted from her purse."

Up to now the Baker store only closed for illness "and I'd always put a sign out in front to explain the customers so they'd know it wasn't for pleasure."

But this summer, after nearly two decades, the store will be closed "for pleasure." Mr. Baker is taking his wife of 32 years on her first holiday.

Corrupt Young

HONG KONG (AP) — The Hong Kong Star reported that a "powerful and dangerous Japanese sex drug" is being smuggled into Hong Kong to "corrupt our young and innocent girls." The paper said the drug, called "deep water bomb," costs $23 a bottle — enough to be dissolved in two drinks.

Sole Fillet Baked Under Cheese Sauce

By MARY MOORE

We want to keep up with the controversy over beef prices don't we? I gave you three methods of baking fish fillets last week. Whether we are really persuading the price of beef to come down I cannot tell.

But today I am still pounding away. This time I bought fish fillets which cost a little more than ocean perch but were only half the price of beef.

I had my daughter-in-law's parents from Rye in Sussex over for lunch, guests and figured English folk were a safe bet for a fish dinner. It turned out to be quite a success for the price of fish — sole in particular — is the British fales works out to be about twice as much as Canadian prices. So I made a lucky guess.

SOLE FILLETS BAKED UNDER CHEESE SAUCE
(Serves 3)

1 lb. fresh frozen sole fillets
SAUCE:
2 tbsps. butter or margarine
1½ tbsps. flour
1 cup milk
½ to 2-3 cup chopped Edam cheese

Arrange thawed sole fillets on shallow baking dish. If they overlap a little it will be fine. I used a deep Pyrex pie plate. Make sauce by melting butter, stirring in flour until blended, then stirring in milk and cheese until thickened and cheese is mostly melted.

Pour sauce evenly over sole fillets, sprinkle with paprika and bake at 400 deg. Fahr. until bubbly and tinged a rich gold — about 15 min. My guests and I thought this was a delicious fish dish.

NOTE: I have been receiving increasing numbers of requests for recipes from readers who own Ronson electric cook-blenders. So I made the same sauce in the Ronson cook-blender but tested of adding ingredients to a saucepan and blending as above I put all sauce ingredients in the cook blender, turned it on to the last setting at 200 deg. Fahr., turned it to the stir position and let it cook and buzz until thick and boiling — about 3 min. So there is one more use for you girls whose husbands have given you the handy new cook-blender.

Mrs. Nixon Receives Gifts

JAKARTA (AP) — "I'm going to send an extra piece to take all these home," Pat Nixon said jokingly as she left Jakarta today laden with gifts of Indonesian handwork.

One gift was a set of 22 miniature Javanese musical instruments in silver, enough for a full orchestra. It was given by President Sukarno's wife, Hon. 42.

The miniature instruments were patterned on those which had accompanied the Balinese and Javanese dancers at the state dinner for the Nixons Sunday night.

Mrs. Nixon tried out some of the tiny silver drums and gongs and called the gift "so wonderful." She said she had "a little Indonesian village of filigree" and would enjoy having the instruments on the shelf with it.

Another gift was a recipe for banana fritters being made at a workshop training school in handicrafts, cooking and other useful pursuits.

Mrs. Nixon also visited an orphanage.

Ann Landers

Institutionalizing Son Only Possible Answer

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Our retarded son, Al, is nearly 23. His mentality has been at the three year level for the past five years.

Al is large for his age and getting stronger all the time. I can't handle him as I once did. This past year he has beaten up his younger brothers several times. They are not permitted to strike him. My husband gets furious and hits Al with a belt. I can't bear to see this, yet I realize something must be done.

Three doctors have told us to institutionalize the boy but I can't bring myself to do it. My mother says God has sent us this child to test our Christian mettle and we must bear this cross and not seek easy answers.

I need your advice. — SLEEPLESS NIGHTS, TORTURED DAYS.

DEAR SLEEPLESS AND TORTURED: You have already gotten advice from three authorities who are much closer to the situation than I am. I hope you take it. And please tell your mother than institutionalizing a child is no "easy answer." It is a difficult move, but often the best solution for all concerned.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Six years ago I met a girl through mutual friends. The gang wanted to go to a movie I had already seen. The girl wasn't particularly interested in the movie and suggested that we just walk around town. We had a pleasant evening and ended up at a coffee house. When the check came it was $2.10. I was 50c short. I searched in every pocket, browbeat I wouldn't find any more money. Finally, the girl made a joke of it and said, "Let me treat you." I agreed.

I never saw her after that because we moved out of town a few months later. I've thought about her many time since and I'm sorry I didn't keep in touch. I know where she lives and I'd like to send her the $2.10 she paid for me but I'm afraid she'll get me down as a heel. What do you think? — DEBT UNPAID.

DEAR UN: Don't send money. Send, instead, a bouquet of flowers, a box of candy or a book. Attach a note thanking her for the coffee and apologize for being six years late.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Some time ago you printed a letter from a young man who was heartbroken because he and his girl friend had gone too far and he promised not let her get him again. The one sentence in his letter that I was struck by went something like this: "I'd give anything if I could live that part of my life over again. I would be perfectly content just to hold her hand."

I wish you'd reprint that letter, Ann. So many young girls today feel they must be sexually permissive in order to keep their boyfriends interested. The truth is the boys would gladly take "no" for an answer in fact they'd prefer it.

We have a lovely daughter who reads your column regularly and this notion is one which she and some of her girl friends need to get through their heads. Please? — CONCERNED MOTHER.

DEAR MOTHER: Your letter served the purpose. Thanks for writing.

Belleville Has Two Entries In Provincial Lawn Bowling

By CLAUDE TICE

In the singles Jerry Hyde won his first game, lost his second and won his third while Gordon Real of Brockville won his first two and lost to Ivy Foshay of Cobourg in the third game.

Hyde won the three-end playoff 4-1.

The Kingston rink skipped by Dick Edney won their first game in an extra end against Jim Grainger of Richmond Hill, lost their second to T. Foy.

The Kingston rink skipped by Dick Edney won their first game in an extra end against Jim Grainger of Richmond Hill, lost their second to T. Foy.

The Belleville rink of Lou Hemstock of Whitby in an extra end, and third game to Jerry Whitley of Ottawa, setting up a playoff between Ottawa and Richmond Hill. Grainger easily defeated the Ottawa rink 5-0 in the playoff.

In the Colts division Jim Dobson Sr. and son Jim Jr. and R. Genoli of Newmarket won all three games and qualified for the Ontario finals. The Belleville rink of Bob Semple, Owen Gray and skip Frank Morrell lost their first two games and won their third.

Some excellent bowling was seen throughout the day and which was followed by a large gallery. The bowlers enjoyed a delicious roast beef dinner after the first game. Rain interfered with the first draw but not enough to affect the green in any way.

If the Belleville entries win in London they will go to Victoria, B.C. for the Canadian finals to be held some time in September. The results of the draws follow.

Loss of Liske Eases Stamps Out of Favored Position

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Saskatchewan Roughriders are slight favorites to win the Western Football Conference title this year with question marks against the other four clubs.

Calgary Stampeders, Grey Cup finalists last year, have lost quarterback Peter Liske and how well Jerry Keeling will perform as his replacement will determine how well the club does this year.

Edmonton Eskimos, third-place finishers last year, fourth-place B.C. Lions and cellar-dwellers Winnipeg Blue Bombers also have quarterback problems.

The Roughriders have most of last year's first-place team returning. Ron Lancaster calling the plays adds up to a big plus for the club.

The WFC opens Tuesday with Winnipeg playing at home against the Eskimos.

The Lions and Calgary open Wednesday in Vancouver while Saskatchewan waits until Aug. 3 to play at home against the Lions.

Calgary has shown in pre-season play that the loss of Liske may not be as damaging as had been expected. The Eskimos also looked impressive with quarterback Corey Colehour leading them to a 2-2 record in exhibition play.

Nobody outside the B.C. camp seems to expect the Lions to take the league by storm unless quarterbacks Paul Brothers and Pete Ohler can generate a more potent offence.

Their biggest threat is Ted Gerela who can kick field goals with regularity from anywhere within the 50-yard line. Backfielders Jim Evenson and Jim Young always pose a threat.

Winnipeg elected to sink or swim with quarterback John Schneider. Some experts say the Bombers may be the most improved team this year with their recruiting and if Schneider matured under fire in 1968. The Bombers have given halfback Dave Rairney a running mate in Amos van Pelt, a speedster who looked good in the exhibition series.

But they may have problems on defence. During the exhibition swing in which they won one game, tied one and lost two, weakness showed against the pass.

The Roughriders have the personnel to be a winner in 1969. Lancaster has flanker Hugh Campbell—back in the fold after a year's absence—to throw to. The running of George Reed behind one of the finest offensive lines in the business, gives the Roughriders a powerhouse attack.

The Stampeders came out of the exhibition schedule with the best record of Western teams, winning two, tieing one and losing one.

Damp Day Threatens Delay In Snead-Aaron Encounter

Generation Gap At Canadian Open

MONTREAL (CP) — Sam Snead and Tommy Aaron have done their bit to set the scene, now it's up to a third party—the weatherman—to let them get on with the final act.

Snead, 57, and Aaron, 25 years his junior, are scheduled to meet today in an 18-hole playoff round to decide this year's winner of the Canadian Open golf championship and the Seagram's Gold Cup. Also at stake is a $25,000 purse to the winner and a lesser sum of $14,300 to the second-place finisher.

The two worked their way into today's showdown after a crushing finale to regulation play Sunday when both ended up with the same 72-hole totals of 275, 13 under par, at Pinegrove Golf Club.

Organizers, thrown into a tizzy for the second time in two years by the playoff situation, hastily announced the playoff round would start at 2:15 p.m. EDT. However, a late weather forecast called for scattered showers today.

Officials refused to even consider what course they will chart in the event of a rainout.

The last time the Open was held here was in 1967 when Billy Casper and Art Wall, Jr., were forced into a playoff. Casper won that one with a 65 to Wall's 69 over the Municipal layout. Both had wound up with 72-hole 279 totals.

Snead, who said he was "very tired" after shooting his two-under 70 Sunday, has won the title on three previous occasions—1938, 1949 and 1941—twice by the playoff route.

Aaron, who blistered the Pinegrove layout to a course record 64 Sunday, has never won a tournament in his 10 years on the trail. The previous record was 65, a mark equalled by Bob Rosburg Sunday.

Even Snead concedes "that the Aaron boy is due to win a big one soon."

Aaron had been a runner-up seven tournaments. This year he has won $70,000

Slammin' Sam appeared to have it stowed away going into Sunday's final round after consecutive rounds of 67, 68 and 70, six strokes better than Aaron's 71-70-70.

However, Aaron produced a tremendous surge as he marked up an eagle, seven birdies and was one-over-par on only one bole Sunday.

Behind the pair, Billy Casper wound up all alone in third spot with an eight-under 280 total and $8,850. Takaki Kono of Japan was fourth at 281, good for $5,850, while Al Balding of Toronto was top Canadian when he tied with New Zealand's Bob Charles, last year's champion, at 282 with both men grabbing fifth-place money of $4,821 each.

The next group included Toronto's George Knudson and U.S. pros Rosburg, Jack Ewing and John Jacobs, all lunched at 283, Each won $3,546.

Both Balding and Knudson fired 68s Sunday.

Snead started out like the money was in the bank going round the front nine in 33, three under par, with Aaron only able to whittle away one stroke over the same distance.

This, despite the fact he had three birdies and an eagle and only one over-par hole.

Down the back nine Snead began slipping, taking a six at the long 13th, and a four at the short 15th.

He missed a great chance on the 18th green when he carefully lined up a 35-footer for an eagle putt and saw it fall to drop by a foot. He did, however, get down with his birdie to create the tie.

Keep Going!

Veteran Sam Snead urges his putt on to the cup on the ninth green during Canadian Open golf championship in Montreal Sunday. The ball stopped short. Snead lost a six-stroke lead going into the fourth round and is tied with Tommy Aaron of Callaway Gardens, Fla., at 275 for the 72-hole route. An 18-hole playoff was to be held today.

Floyd Tops Classic Field Without Practice Rounds

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — "I didn't play any practice rounds here," Ray Floyd said Sunday after winning $25,000 top prize in the American Golf Classic.

"I gave an exhibition over in western Pennsylvania," he said. "After playing 18 holes I was giving a clinic and talking to the audience about rhythm and timing.

"While I was talking to them, I started thinking that's what had been my problem. I had a good feeling when I came here. I felt it had solved my problems," Floyd said.

"When people would ask me how I'm playing I'd say I was playing real good. I don't think they believed me. Maybe they'll believe me now."

Floyd shot a final-round 65 for 268, a record for the 7,180-yard par-70 south course at Firestone Country Club.

Host professional Bobby Nichols vaulted past Jack Nicklaus and Bobby Mitchell who started the final round in a tie with Floyd for the top spot, and took second place with a 67 for 272.

Tom Weiskopf was third with a 66 for 274, while Mitchell slipped to 73 and 276 and a tie with Gene Littler, 68.

Nicklaus finished with a 75 for 278, tied with Al Geiberger, 69.

Arnold Palmer had a 73 for 282 and U.S. Open champion Orville Moody went to a 75 for 284.

Scoring Error Caught

MONTREAL (CP) — A scoring mixup—a difference of one stroke on two different master boards—almost cost Japan's Kakaski Kono more than $1,000 Sunday at the Canadian Open golf championship at Pinegrove Golf Club.

The championship itself will be decided today when Sam Snead and Tommy Aaron engage in an 18-hole playoff for the $25,000 first-place and $14,300 second-place money. Both ended up with identical 13-under-par 275 totals.

Kono actually finished the regulation 72-hole tournament with 281, shooting a 71 for his final round. He was one stroke ahead of Toronto's Al Balding and New Zealand's Bob Charles who finished with 282.

However, when PGA tournament director George Walsh came to divvy up the $125,000 purse, he found a discrepancy between the board operated at the 18th and the one posted in the press tent—almost a city block distance from the green.

The press tent showed Kono with 72. A further check showed three other golfers—including Stan Homenuik of Dauphin, Man.—with scores that didn't jibe on the two boards.

North Bendale Bantams Plague SACO

By MALCOLM JOHNSTON
Staff Sportswriter

The abbreviation N.B. stands for North Bendale, a section of Scarborough, but to the Belleville SACO bantams 'N.B." means just one thing — flax.

That was the story again Saturday as North Bendale clobbered SACO 9-3 in the second round of the Belleville Minor Softball Association's eight team Bantam Tournament before going on to nip Alderwood 3-2 in the "A" division championship game.

North Bendale extended its domination of SACCO to three wins in their last four meetings.

Last year North Bendale defeated SACO 11-10 and 1-0 in the best two-out-of-three Ontario Bantam Softball championships and June 12, North Bendale walloped SACO 13-2 in the championship game of the North York bantam softball tournament. SACO's lone win over North Bendale in the last four outings came in the "A" title game of June's Port Perry bantam tournament.

* * *

Complete results of the tournament were:

First Round - Belleville SACO 16, Don Victoria 4; North Bendale 10, Brighton 2; Alderwood 6, Trenton 2; Unionville 4 Richmond Hill 3.

Second Round:
"A" or championship series - Belleville SACO 14, North Bendale 9; Alderwood 5 Unionville 0.
"B" or consolation series - Don Victoria 7 Brighton 2; Trenton 5 Richmond Hill 1.

Championship Round:
"A" title game - North Bendale 3, Alderwood 2.
"B" title game - Trenton 15 Don Victoria 9.

SACO's 14-4 slaughter of Don Victoria and North Bendale's 10-2 drubbing of Brighton set up the second-round encounter between the two powerhouses.

Righthander Tino Mangasaro — who fanned 32 batters in three complete-game efforts during North Bendale's march to the "A" championship and was voted the tournament's Most Valuable Player — scattered eight hits and threw third strikes past a dozen SACO batters.

While Mangasaro was limiting Belleville to single runs in the fourth and seventh frames his teammates took advantage of a single and four SACO errors to push across five runs in the third frame.

A grand-slam homer by North Bendale shortstop Thompson in the sixth frame was just icing on the cake for the winners, who managed just seven hits off SACO starter Ken Johnson and reliever John Sprackett.

North Bendale first sacker Don Jeanes keyed his club's championship game win over Alderwood with a run-producing single in the first inning and a run-scoring triple in the fifth frame.

Alderwood, who advanced to the "A" title game with a 4-2 first round win over Trenton and an 8-0 second round whitewashing of Unionville pushed across one run in the bottom of the seventh and final inning, but fell short when Mangasaro pitched his way out of a two-out runners on second and third jam.

Trenton rebounded from a first round loss to Alderwood to trounce Richmond Hill 8-1 in "B" or consolation series second-round game, before outlasting Don Victoria to capture the "B" series championship with a 15-9 win in the title game.

Steve Galloway and Steve McDonald split the pitching chores for Trenton and allowed ten hits while sharpstop Steve Keech paced the winners attack with four hits and four r.b.i.s.

Don Victoria had advanced to the "B" title game by trouncing Brighton 7-2 in the second round after dropping a 14-4 decision to SACO in the opening round of the tournament.

Safe!

Belleville third baseman Ken Vos has come in to cover home plate, but he can't hold onto the ball and North Bendale second sacker Marty Stab-slides safely home during the Scarborough club's five-run fifth inning outburst en route to their 9-2 win over Belleville SACO in Saturday's Belleville Minor Softball Association bantam tournament.

Judge Proves Convincing In Carling Harness Trial

STAFF — The Judge was holding court at Saturday's Carling Invitational Pace — featured race on the Quinte Riding and Driving Club's weekly harness card.

Driver "Tick" Muller held back Todd Judge, a four-year-old chestnut gelding from Kingston until the first turn the second time around the half-mile Fairgrounds track.

Then "the Judge" went to the outside and steadily worked his way up from fifth position, crossing the wire ahead of the seven-horse field to capture the $450 purse — single in the first inning and the local harness meet's largest of the season.

"He's not a front-runner; he likes to come from behind," said driver Muller, whose wife Jean owns the horse.

He held him back until the first turn the second time around the track and then let him have his head."

"We caught Len Way, whom I figured was the horse to beat, halfway down the stretch and I knew I had a lot of horse in my hands so I let him pace through the rest of the way," Muller added.

Muller did indeed have a lot of horse in his hands. Todd Judge paced the mile in 2:09.2 on a track made heavy and slow by heavy rains. The time was almost four seconds better than the night's previous best of 2:13 turned in by Tiger Jim in the fifth heat of the eight-heat card.

Todd Judge's win was his fourth in nine starts this season and the 2:09.2 his best winning time ever. His best time was 2:08.4 on Wednesday, July 16, when he ran second to Justa Lad in the feature race at Kingston.

Colborne Hess' Len Way held on to finish second while Hy Peter, Albert Defosse's five-year-old strawberry-roan stallion surprised with a third-place finish. Single De Best came in fourth and Granny Jack fifth, while two of the pre-race favorites — Cash Princess and Jesta Lad ran disappointing sixth and seven-place finishes.

Todd Judge returned $8.00, $5.10 and $3.20, while Len Way paid $10.40 and $5.30 and Hy Peter brought $11.30. The quinella of one-and-six paid $32.80.

But the closest race of the night in the third heat saw Shamrock Hill Ace driven by D. Sleacy and Nifty's Rebel (Ben Wemp) finish in a dead heat for third place.

The pair finished behind winner Phil Reed — a ten-year-old bay gelding racing regularly at Brockville but making his first season's start here — and Swak.

In all some 998 spectators pushed $18,727 through the pari-Mutuels during the eight-heat card.

Phil Reed paid off to the tune of $16.40, $10.00 and $7.20. Other horses that paid well were Tiger Jim who returned $12.00 for a win ticket in the fifth heat and Joanne's Gem who paid $14.20, $5.70 and $3.60 in the sixth heat.

Carty Continues Comeback By Launching Brave Barrage

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Gary Geiger has been through the medical mill and Rico Carty's health chart would make interesting reading for any doctor.

But Sunday they hardly resembled invalids as Philadelphia Phillies and Montreal Expos of the National League.

Geiger stroked the game-winning pinch hit in the 11th inning, giving Houston Astros a 3-2 decision over the Phillies.

Carty's two-run homer snapped a 1-1 tie and ignited a seven-run Atlanta explosion in the seventh inning that gave the Braves a 8-2 victory over the Expos.

In other NL games, Cincinnati Reds rapped New York Mets 6-3, Los Angeles Dodgers tripped Chicago Cubs 6-2, Pittsburgh Pirates clipped San Diego Padres 4-1 and St. Louis Cardinals dumped San Francisco Giants 8-2.

Saturday, Chicago edged Los Angeles 3-2 in 11 innings, New York beat Cincinnati 3-2, Montreal bounced Atlanta 7-4, San Fracisco nipped St. Louis 7-6, Houston downed Philadelphia 4-2 and Pittsburgh defeated San Diego 4-3 in 10 innings.

Geiger missed one season because of stomach ulcers and the better part of another because of a collapsed lung.

Joe Morgan opened the Astros' 11th inning with a pinch double and reached third base on two outs and a pair of intentional walks. Then Geiger won the game with a single.

It was only the 26th hit this season for Geiger, but he has made them count, driving in 16 runs and scoring 16.

Carty, who missed all last season because of tuberculosis, continued his comeback with his seventh homer of the year. Reduced to a part-time performer, Carty has batted .277 in 51 games for the Braves this season.

His shot against Montreal's Steve Renko jolted the rookie and the Braves went on to score five more runs in the inning to whip the Expos.

Until Carty connected, Renko and Atlanta's Jim Britton had matched two-hitters. Clete Boyer also homered for the Braves, who remained one game ahead of Los Angeles, two up on San Francisco and 3½ in front of Cincinnati in the Western Division.

The Dodgers beat Ferguson Jenkins for the second time in three days, dismissing the Cubs' ace pitcher in the fifth inning after tagging him for 10 hits. Jenkins also lost Friday's game when he was forced to leave after being struck on his pitching thumb by a line drive.

Bill Sudakis drove in two runs with a homer and sacrifice fly and added a key single as Don Drysdale, struggling with a sore shoulder, won his fifth game for the Dodgers. Ron Santo and Billy Williams homered for the Cubs.

The Giants lost ground with St. Louis winning its 15th in the last 20 starts. The Cardinals bunched five runs in the second inning and Mike Torrez coasted to the victory.

Vada Pinson drove in two of the runs with a double and extended his hitting streak to 18 games.

The Reds kept pace with the Braves by knocking off Don York. Tony Perez hammered his 25th homer and third in the last four days while Gerry Arrigo won his first game of the season.

Roberto Clemente ripped four straight singles, driving in one run and scoring two to lead Pittsburgh past San Diego. Willie Stargell walloped a triple and home run for the Pirates and Jim Bunning won his ninth game with late help from Bob Moose.

Angels' Bonus Baby Fulfills Some Potential

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Rick Reichardt, the former $175,000 bonus baby who has never fulfilled his slugging potential for the Angels, Sunday drove in all the California runs with a pair of homers in a 5-4 victory over New York Yankees.

His three-run wallop in the third inning was the first homer for California against New York pitching in 10 games this season. And his 10th homer of the year, a two-run shot in the fifth inning, marked the first time in 1969 an Angels' player has connected twice in one game.

Reichardt should be hitting 30 home runs a year," said Angels' manager Lefty Phillips. "He works awful hard, but he has a greater potential than he's shown.

"It's a question now of learning to handle various pitchers," said Reichardt, who hit 21 homers last year and leads the Angels' in batting this season with a .276 average. "I'm trying to get a little more elevation on the ball."

In other American League action, Baltimore Orioles went on a 20-hit rampage and crushed Chicago White Sox 17-5, Boston Red Sox struggled past Seattle Pilots 5-3 in a 20-inning marathon, longest game in the major leagues this season, Minnesota Twins topped Cleveland Indians 8-7; Oakland Athletics trimmed Washington Senators 7-2 and Kansas City Royals defeated Detroit Tigers 7-2 in other American League action Sunday.

Saturday, Baltimore edged Chicago 2-1, Washington beat Oakland 3-1 in 10 innings, Detroit trounced Kansas City 12-2, Cleveland stopped Minnesota 6-3, New York defeated California 3-1 and Seattle bounced Boston 8-5.

Rookie reliever Ken Tatum replaced Angels' starter George Brunet Sunday after Horace Clarke sent the Yankees ahead 2-0 with a second inning double and earned his third victory without a loss.

Bill Robinson's third inning homer was the first hit off Tatum in 21 appearances since the Angels recalled him from the minors May 28. He has recorded seven saves and has an 0.98 earned run average.

Frank Robinson drilled his 24th and 25th home runs of 1969 and knocked in five runs, leading the Orioles' barrage against four Chicago pitchers. Winner Jim Hardin who tossed a two-hitter, added a three-run homer.

Boog Powell homered and Mark Belanger rapped four hits for the runaway Eastern Division leaders.

Joe Lahoud's two run homer in the 20th inning cracked a 2-2 deadlock and the Red Sox added another run before the Pilots' Tommy Harper closed the gap with a homer in the bottom half of the 20th.

Jim Lonborg, the eighth Boston hurler, picked up his seventh victory in 10 decisions in his comeback. He lasted five hours and 52 minutes.

Leo Cardenas' three-run homer in the sixth wiped out a 5-2 Cleveland lead and Harmon Killebrew led a three-run seventh inning rally as Minnesota and the Twins outlasted the Indians.

Cleveland knocked out Dave Boswell in 2 innings for second inning burst and made it close on Chuck Hinton's two-run, pinch hit homer in the ninth.

Denny Cater slammed a two-run homer in the first inning and sent home two more runs with a fifth inning single, leading Oakland past the Senators.

Musial Gains Fame Today

COOPERSTOWN, N.Y. (AP) — Baseball's Hall of Fame will induct four more players today —Stan Musial, Roy Campanella, Waite Hoyt and Stan Coveleski.

Coveleski and Hoyt were pitchers, Musial a first baseman-outfielder and Campanella a catcher, whose career ended in 1958 when he was seriously injured in an automobile accident.

All four will be present to see the unveiling of their plaques in baseball commissioner Bowie Kuhn will induct the four former players.

The annual Hall of Fame game will match Minnesota Twins with Houston Astros.

The original Cincinnati Red Stockings of 1869 will be saluted as part of the baseball centennial celebration.

Musial took seven batting titles with St. Louis Cardinals. He had a career batting average of .331 and 475 home runs.

Campanella was with the old Brooklyn Dodgers from 1948 through 1957. He sat two records for a catcher in 1953, hitting 41 home runs and collecting 142 runs batted in.

Hoyt, who pitched in six World Series for New York Yankees starting in 1921, won 237 games between 1919 and 1938.

Coveleski was a right-hander who won 216 games and had 141 between 1912 and 1928, spending his greatest years with Cleveland Indians and winning three World Series games in 1920.

Hulme, Six Others Make Checkered Flag

EDMONTON (CP) — Denis Hulme of New Zealand, fighting off a challenge by Chris Amon, another New Zealander, Sunday won a gruelling Canadian-American Challenge Cup road race in which only seven of the 17 starters got the checkered flag.

The Klondike 200 for Group 7 race cars was 80 laps of the 2.537-mile Edmonton international circuit. Hulme drove his McLaren M8B the 202 miles in one hour, 56 minutes and 34.8 seconds for an average speed of 104.35 miles an hour.

Victory gave the 33-year-old Hulme $10,000 first prize money and 20 points for a firm hold with 79 points, in the Can-Am standings after four races. Team-mate Bruce McLaren has 56 points for second place.

Amon was second, winning $7,000 and 18 points. He led for 14 laps before his one-of-a-kind Ferrari developed a minor overheating problem and was forced to slow his pace.

George Eaton of Toronto, one of two Canadians to finish the race, completed 77 laps in his McLaren Mark 12 for $5,500 and 12 points.

Considered the best up-and-coming young driver in North America, Eaton finished third with a bare right rear wheel. The tire shredded after blowing early in the final lap.

STOP KILLING YOURSELF

Author of "The Doctor Looks At Life"
By Peter J. Steincrohn, M.D., F.A.C.P.

We Are All Hypochondriacs Differing Only in Degree

We are all hypochondriacs but differ only in degree. At some time in the past, present, or future each one of us will become apprehensive about his body.

It may range from a curiosity about what makes a finger feel numb right up to the top of the list — actual fear of death.

One can't escape it unless one is an unfortunate moron.

Fear of loss of health — in other words, of sickness or death — is at some time in his life the natural reaction of the normal man or woman. The man who says, "I don't care when I go," is infantile.

I have seen the breed of bragarts who quake in fear within themselves when illness or death shows its head. How they change their tune.

Don't be one of them. Admit your fears to yourself and to your doctor. There is nothing to be ashamed of in admitting that you're afraid.

Practical experience in the treatment of thousands of human beings has convinced me that no person, whatever his position, creed, occupation or color, is immune to hypochondria. At some time in our lives we get scared — good and scared. It's a normal reaction to threats against our health.

Yesterday I visited a fearful man who had suffered a coronary attack. Anyone could see he was anxious to come out of it alive. A month earlier when healthy, he was one of those who said to me "I don't have time to be sick."

We'll live longer if we choose honest appreciation rather than spurious fatalism.

* * *

For Mrs. S.: You are a wise young mother in being aware of the potential danger of a strep throat in your young ster. Diagnosed and treated early, rheumatic fever and rheumatic heart disease can be prevented.

Suspect any child or teenager who complains of sudden, severe sore throat and gets a high fever. Call your doctor. Guessing is out; taking a throat culture is a must.

* * *

If positive to hemolytic (Group A) streptococcus, penicillin is the drug of choice. However, if your child is allergic to penicillin, then erythromycin (or similar antibiotic) is suitable. It must be continued for at least 10 days — even though your child's temperature is down and he is comfortable.

* * *

For Mrs. J.: For the treatment of acute sinusitis it is true that results are often better after drainage; also, when the patient receives antibiotics.

* * *

For Mrs. G.: At times there is a simple way to prevent recurring attacks of urinary infection in the young female child (and in the adult woman, too).

Mothers should advise their daughters about after-defecation cleanliness: to wipe from forward - backward instead of from back-forward.

Using the latter apparently innocent technique, often forces bacteria up into the bladder — and later — into the kidneys. (I admit this is not a delectable discussion, but when is disease ever delectable?)

Eldorado

ELDORADO — Mrs. Eva Post of Marmora visited with Mrs. McKeen and Mrs. Clayton Blackburn.

Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Boyle motored to Kingston and visited Mrs. Ivan Sine who is a patient in Kingston Hospital.

Visitors from the area attended the Stevenson—Orke wedding in Madoc on the weekend.

Misses Barbara and Ann Boyle spent the weekend with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Boyle.

Mr. Keith McCann and Darral Graham of Toronto spent the weekend with George McCann.

Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Gatley and Brian of Toronto spent a day with friends and attended the Stevenson-Orke wedding.

Mr. and Mrs. Earl Wartman of Madoc visited Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Blackburn and Mrs. McCann.

Saturday's Puzzle Solved:

OFF THE RECORD — By Ed Read

Kennedy Puts Aside His Hopes For Presidential Nomination

HYANNIS PORT, Mass. (AP) — Senator Edward M. Kennedy is confining his political ambitions to the U.S. Senate—not the presidency—as he awaits what is shaping up as a vote of confidence by the people of Massachusetts, sources close to him say.

For the moment, these sources say, Kennedy has put out of his mind any ambitions he might have harbored for the 1972 Democratic presidential nomination.

As he remains in seclusion here, inundated by thousands of telegrams in response to Friday night's dramatic television-radio appeal, Kennedy is described by those who have seen him as irritated over press speculation about what the death of Mary Joe Kopechne and his actions following it mean to his presidential prospects.

These reports of Kennedy's mood are lent credibility by an interview last May in which he expressed serious doubts about whether to seek the presidency in 1972, or ever.

The senator pleaded guilty last Friday to a charge of leaving the scene of a fatal accident and received a suspended two-month sentence. He did not report the accident until more than nine hours after his car plunged off a bridge and Miss Kopechne was drowned.

Friday night, in a telecast and broadcast addressed to the people of Massachusetts, Senator Kennedy said: "I regard as indefensible the fact that I did not report the accident to the police immediately."

He asked his constituents to express their opinions, saying he would consider resigning from the Senate unless they convinced him he should stay in office.

So far, the response of Massachusetts residents is reported to be overwhelmingly in favor of his continuing as senator.

About 15 or 20 demonstrators carrying signs saying, "Can you buy justice?" and "Tell the truth Ted" staged a parade near his home Saturday and were pelted with eggs and firecrackers by a group of youngsters.

Police said the group sympathetic to Kennedy shouted obscenities at the demonstrators and yelled, "Go back where you came from" and "Get out of here, you bums."

Officers said the incident occurred after the demonstrators, some from out of state, completed a protest march about three blocks from the Kennedy residential compound. Some held up signs saying, "Youth for truth demand resignation" and "Goswin, don't run in '72."

In a state where the Kennedy name is political magic, which re-elected him by a margin of 1,200,000 votes in 1964, and in which no Republican opponent has yet surfaced for 1970, the telegrams stacked in the living room of his Squaw Island summer home have encouraged him.

But there was no word yet on when and how he would announce his decision—or even whether he would announce it at all. It was considered possible that simply by returning to Washington and casting a Senate vote on a key issue—such as the controversial Safeguard anti-missile deployment—he would signal his intent to stay on.

Sunday, Kennedy made his first public appearance since the broadcast. With his wife, Joan, and a friend, he attended mass in Hyannis.

He was greeted by about 200 persons outside St. Francis Xavier Roman Catholic Church. Some shouted, "We're with you Ted," and "don't give up, senator" as he moved toward his car after the mass. He nodded slightly in acknowledgement but kept his eyes downcast as the car pulled away.

Trudeau Has Three Months To Blueprint Just Society

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau's government has less than three months to prepare for its second parliamentary session and to unveil its program for Mr. Trudeau's "just society."

Mr. Trudeau said last week the government wants the three-month recess until Oct. 22, to plan its program for the fall session.

One of hard decisions face Canada's lawmakers and this was one of the reasons the government gave for wanting adoption of the controversial time-allocation rules for House debate, which requires, under the force of closure, voted early Friday to adopt the rule.

One question now is whether the rule will be used sparingly or frequently this fall. Another is what are the hard decisions the Commons will be asked to make, with or without debate guillotined available to the government under the new rules.

Opposition members have tried to smoke out details of these proposals, but made little progress before they scattered to the four corners of the country and abroad for summer vacations.

Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield, for instance, wanted to know whether Finance Minister Sharp's proposals for tax reform will include the imposition of Canada's first capital gains tax.

All Mr. Benson would say is that new tax law proposals to be introduced in the fall will affect both personal and corporation income taxes.

Without saying specifically whether it will or not, a new personal income tax law could include a 50 per cent gains tax—a tax on personal income that comes from the increased value of a capital investment in land or stock shares, for instance.

Another area in which some hard decisions may have to be made by Parliament in a new session this fall is in federal-provincial relations and in constitutional reform. A comparatively-mild form of constitutional reform was the government's Official Languages Act, which precipitated lengthy and acrimonious debate in this session.

What more difficult measure might be introduced this fall? The government has already served notice it intends to drop out of some shared-cost programs it initiated but not will leave to the provinces to carry.

John Diefenbaker, who has an uncanny ability to peer into the murky future of government affairs and make a political point with it, asked early in the rules debate about one such controversial possibility.

Remarking that State Secretary Gerard Pelletier once was identified with extreme nationalism, the former prime minister asked:

"Is the secretary of state now to be given the opportunity to push through a measure, a measure dealing with abolition of the monarchy? Is this what the government has in mind?

"There is no question the government could do this under the proposed rule."

There was no reply. The proposed rule was adopted, empowering the government to set specific time limits on parliamentary debate when opposition parties will not agree voluntarily to restrict debate.

Round-world Sailor Stayed in Atlantic

LONDON (AP) — Donald Crowhurst, a round-the-world yacht racer who vanished during his voyage, never left the Atlantic Ocean in his entire journey, a newspaper has announced.

The Sunday Times, which sponsored the race, said a detailed study of the ship's log disclosed Crowhurst never rounded Cape Horn as the impression he was actually sailing around the world.

Crowhurst was presumed dead when his 41-foot yacht Teignmouth Electron was found deserted earlier this month 700 miles west of the Azores. At the time he was considered favorite to win the £5,000 ($12,000) prize for the fastest time in the race.

Crowhurst, 36, sailed 4,500 miles in the 243 days he was afloat—the distance from Britain to Australia. But the Sunday Times said he followed only a "very erratic" course to South America.

The log entries suggested he was "under considerable mental strain towards the end of his voyage," the newspaper said.

"It has not been an easy decision to publish this information," the newspaper said in a statement. "The Sunday Times has been, in close consultation with Mrs. Crowhurst and she, too, has come to the conclusion that the story must be told."

The newspaper said it would continue an appeal for Crowhurst's widow and four children. It donated £5,000 to launch the fund.

Another contributor was race-winner Robin Knox-Johnston, who gave his £5,000 for the fastest time. He won another £5,000 for being the first to finish. Competitors set out at different intervals.

Searchers abandoned the hunt for Crowhurst July 12, assuming he had fallen overboard.

The mystery of his disappearance deepened when Lloyd's Shipping Exchange in London disclosed three other boats had been found apparently deserted in mid-Atlantic in the 12 days preceding Crowhurst's disappearance. All were drifting within a 250-mile radius southwest of the Azores.

Polish Miners Rescued After Four-day Burial

WARSAW (Reuters) — Seventy-nine miners who cheated death today were reunited with their families after a four-day burial in a Polish coal mine.

The trapped men were brought to the surface Sunday after about 4,000 rescue workers battled through mud, water and sand and rocks to end their ordeal.

Hundreds of fellow workers, wives, mothers and children thronged around the pithead, waiting anxiously for news. Tears of sorrow turned to tears of joy as the entombed men stumbled into daylight for the first time in almost 100 hours from the Gen. Aleksander Zawadzki mine at Dabrowa Gornicza near Katowice.

Rescuers opened up a narrow bore hole Sunday morning to pass the trapped men their first food, vitamins and medicine after they were engulfed by floods Thursday from a sediment pond on the surface, P.A.P. news agency said.

Thirty-nine other miners caught in the deluge were freed earlier in the rescue operations in which crews took part.

The 70-year-old colliery is one of the largest in the Upper Silesian basin, heart of the Polish coal fields.

Only one man was killed in the accident. His body was found Saturday.

Protest Songs Prominent At Mariposa Folk Festival

TORONTO (CP) — Protest songs were a dominant part of the Mariposa Folk Festival's concluding concert Sunday night when more than 8,000 devotees were on hand to hear one of the dedicated protest singers, Joan Baez.

For Miss Baez, her protest against the United States draft system and war in general is a personal campaign. Her husband, David Harris, is in prison because he refused induction into the U.S. armed services.

Her voice and features are weapons in what she has termed her "war with war."

Performing with Miss Baez, and making up what she called the Struggle Mountain Resistance Band, were two guitar-playing students of the draft identified only as Jeffry and Foodle.

Miss Baez wasn't the only performer to sing protest songs.

Vera Johnson of Vancouver, who got the concert off to a rousing start, offered one of her own protest compositions in a lighter vein. You Can't Get Your Hair Hang Down.

Oscar Brand, the Manitoba-born singer who is probably the best - known Canadian in his field, sang a song he finished writing just before the concert began. Kill for Peace.

Other performers included Ian Ritchie of Kentucky, McBride, Scottish-American songstress Jean Redpath and Michael Cooney, who combined humor with proficiency on a half-dozen different musical instruments. Ragtime numbers by the South Happiness Street Society Skiffle Band of Buffalo, N.Y. brought a standing ovation.

The three-day festival, held on Toronto Island, established a record for the nine-year-old event which began in Orillia, Ont. in 1958, when the festival was held for the first time in Toronto, the attendance reached 14,000. This year it was over 25,000.

Test on Word Distinctions

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

People evidently love to take a test, as long as nobody else scores them on it. In response to many requests, here is another word-test, this time involving the distinctions between words that seem similar:

1. How does a "riddle differ from a "conundrum"?

2. What is the sharp difference between "contradictory" and "contradictory" sets of statements?

3. Which is legally worse, "assault" or "battery"?

4. In the phrase, "fair to middling," what is "middling"?

5. Would you necessarily find "flotsam" in the same place you might find "jetsam?"

6. When a couple is said to be "billing and cooing," what does the "billing" consist of?

7. What is the difference between "alternate" and "alternative"?

8. If "enormousness" refers to size, what does "enormity" refer to?

9. How does "luxurious" differ from "luxuriant"?

10. Would you rather work for a man who was "masterful" or "masterly" in his job?

11. If something is "definite," is it therefore "definitive"?

12. Is the "protagonist" the hero of the story, as opposed to the "antagonist"?

13. If something is "possible," is it necessarily "feasible"?

14. If all dilemmas are difficulties, but not all difficulties are dilemmas, what is the real distinction between the two?

15. Is to "anticipate" an event somehow different from merely "expecting" it to happen?

16. What particular kind of response is a "reaction"?

17. How does a "mutual enemy" differ from a "common enemy"?

18. If an object is "immovable," what is a person who cannot be removed from an office or position?

19. When would a march be "triumphant" and when "triumphal"?

20. Would you rather be "depressed" or "depreciated" by someone?

21. Which word embraces more of the future, "fatal" or "fateful"?

22. Why was the South called the "Confederacy," and what is the essential difference between a "confederation" and a "federation" in political use?

23. What are the distinctions of meaning among "female," "feminine," "womanly," and among "male," "masculine," "manly," and "mannish"?

Mice Will Be Exposed to Moondust in Check for Bacteria

HOUSTON (AP) — A long series of tests begins today to determine whether a precious bit of soil dug from beneath the moon's surface contains any biologically harmful bacteria.

A few grains will be pulverized for exposure to germ-free mice. Other bits will be placed in a container and exposed to elements in the earth's atmosphere to determine any reaction.

The material was taken from one of two core sampling tubes that Edwin Aldrin pushed five inches deep in lunar soil while he and Neil Armstrong explored the moon July 20.

This sample was hurried to the bio-preparation section of an airtight lunar receiving laboratory here so experts can get an early reading on how it might affect the sterile mice.

The results will help determine whether Armstrong, Aldrin and their flying companion, Michael Collins, can be released from another part of the receiving lab on Aug. 11 as planned.

If the mice develop a disease, the quarantine could be extended.

Meanwhile, technicians, continued the methodical job of sealing in cans and labelling the 15 pounds of rocks received Saturday from one of two boxes the astronauts returned from the moon.

The second box, containing an estimated 37 pounds of moon treasure, will be opened in a day or two in the lab's vacuum chamber.

When the first box was opened Saturday, scientists were initially frustrated by a coating of black moon dust that covered the rocks, hiding their secrets.

But Sunday, they got a good look at one rock when the dust fell off as a technician, extending his hands through a glove-port in the vacuum chamber, lifted it for closer inspection under a microscope.

"It appears to be a fine grain igneous rock, with individual mineral grains visible on its surface," reported Dr. Elbert King, curator of the laboratory.

Igneous means a rock hardened from a molten mass. It might have been born in a volcano. Or such a rock, hardened beneath the surface, might have been ripped up by a meteorite impact.

King said there is evidence from small strips on the rocks that it had been peppered by micrometeorites.

The rock will be placed in a radiation counter to measure gamma rays, a kind of X-rays, that it may be releasing from reactions to cosmic ray bombardment. This could give a measure of how long it has lain on the moon's surface and perhaps tell something about the rock's composition, King said.

The rock is small, 3¾ inches long, about 1¾ inches wide and a little less than an inch thick.

One by one, all the rocks are being placed in small cans, sealed under vacuum, for later analysis and ultimate distribution in tiny pieces to 142 principal investigators around the world for full analyses.

The samples will remain in quarantine here about two months before they are released.

As the examination and canning continued, King said the moon dust covering the rocks certainly is not powdered graphite, but its composition still is not determined.

"I admitted it was wrong of me to be right. What more of an apology do you want?"

Astronauts Reach Houston Sunday

HOUSTON (AP) — Apollo 11's moon travellers spent their first few days in quarantine joking about purple rocks and discussing the perfection of their mission and the ease of working in the lunar environment.

That's the report of a Canadian doctor and an American engineer who stayed in the quarantine van with them on a trip from the Pacific to Houston via ship, plane and truck.

Dr. William Carpentier, a specialist in space medicine from Lake Cowichin, B.C., and engineer John Hirasaki also reported they and the astronauts made direct contact with black powdery moon dust that gathered on the spacemen's suits.

Astronauts Neil Armstrong, Edwin Aldrin and Michael Collins reached Houston early Sunday and immediately transferred from the van to quarantine quarters at the lunar receiving laboratory.

They are being treated as though they were contaminated by moon organisms, although scientists doubt that lunar germs exist.

With them are 14 other persons—doctors, technical experts, stewards and a cook.

They are scheduled for release Aug. 11 if they develop no illness and if study of the rocks they collected shows nothing harmful.

Carpentier and Hirasaki discussed the van trip with reporters Sunday night from behind a sealed window.

"In their conversations, Collins was especially impressed by the remarkable perfection of the whole mission—how well the machines worked . . ." Hirasaki said.

Hirasaki said Collins, who orbited the moon in the command ship while Armstrong and Aldrin walked the surface, asked his companions about the texture of the surface and some of the things they saw.

Carpentier said: "They discussed the colors, materials, and so forth. Their reaction to working in the one-sixth lunar gravity field was that it was very comfortable. They found they could get around more easily than in zero G."

Zero gravity is weightlessness, such as astronauts experience in orbit.

"They reported they had a better sense of direction in one-sixth G. On the moon objects would settle down and wouldn't float off as in zero G, so they wouldn't have to look around for them," Carpentier added.

Carpentier and Hirasaki said they touched the black moon powder when they opened a bag to take medical swabbings from the space suits. The astronauts also had touched the fine powder in packing the suits.

"We wiped it off and cleaned our hands," Hirasaki said.

Both men said it felt like talcum powder, but had a slight granularity.

Rocks returned by the astronauts also were coated with the powder. Tests are being conducted to determine its composition.

Pictures of Mars Are Due Tonight

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — Scientists expect to begin receiving tonight their best data ever on a centuries-old puzzle: Does life exist on Mars?

Mariner VI, one of two space craft zooming toward the mysterious red planet after a five-month journey, is to begin transmitting television pictures from 771,500 miles away just before midnight.

Mars is nearly 50,000,000 miles from earth.

By the time Mariner VI flies within 2,000 miles of Mars on Wednesday, scientists hope it will have sent up to 74 pictures, some detailed enough to pick out possible ruins, canals or geometric patterns.

Mariner VII, racing along a more equatorial Mars route, is to take the first of its 114 pictures Friday from 1,140,000 miles away and make a 2,000-mile pass Monday night, Aug. 4.

The closest pictures will show features as small as 900 feet across.

The Mars probes were sent off by the Jet Propulsion Laboratory here for the National Aeronautics and Space Administration.

Dr. Robert Leighton, California Institute of Technology physicist-astronomer and chief investigator for the project, said there was little chance of seeing earth-like features on Mars.

Photos taken on the Mariner IV flight in 1965 showed a bleak, crater-pocked surface resembling that of the moon. No mountain chains, ocean basins or continents appeared.

Dr. Norman Horowitz, another investigator, said that although the possibility of life on Mars is remote, there is a chance the planet is in a primitive form, comparable to earth millions of years ago.

"If there is life on Mars, it will almost certainly be carbon-based, just as it is on earth. If life is based on carbon and Mars' atmosphere is mostly carbon dioxide, it would be impossible for life not to inter-act with that atmosphere."

The Mariner pictures will be taken as the planet's southern hemisphere begins its spring season. Scientists hope to be able to determine whether the spring and summer darkening areas are vegetation, some form of algae, or only rocks that change color.

They also hope to determine whether there is volcanic and quake activity.

Thais Fear Nixon Policy

BANGKOK (Reuters)—President Nixon ran into strong opposition today in talks with Thai and Southeast Asia Treaty Organization officials to explain his decision to reduce American military involvement on the Asian mainland.

Informed sources reported that Nixon, here on the third leg of his five-nation Asian tour, was told the U.S. military presence must be shored up, not cut, to deter the Communists and prevent more Vietnams.

Fears that the U.S. might be exposing Thailand, a staunch ally of Washington, to Communist penetration and subversion if it withdrew all ground forces and relied on air and naval shield in the Pacific were expressed to Nixon when he conferred separately with Thai Prime Minister Thanon Kittikachorn and SEATO Secretary-General Jesus Vargas.

Their appraisal of the situation was that an American presence was required to stop the Communists, who otherwise would be expected to turn their sights on Thailand and other countries at the end of the Vietnam war.

The assessment ran counter to the thinking of Nixon, who, is acutely aware of the fears of the Thais that they will come under intensive pressure if the Vietnam war ends without a clear-cut allied victory and if the alleged military penetration of Laos by China and North Vietnam is allowed to go on unchecked.

But there was no sign that Nixon changed his mind.

"Curse you Ho Chi Minh!"

Nixon To Visit Vietnam

BANGKOK (AP) — United States President Richard Nixon will visit South Vietnam Wednesday and confer with President Nguyen Van Thieu, responsible sources in this capital of Thailand reported today.

Details of Nixon's visit to the war zone were shrouded in security precautions, and White House spokesmen would give no confirmation. But neither would they deny the report.

It was expected that the president would be in Vietnam only a few hours.

Meanwhile, Nixon's top military and diplomatic officials in Saigon flew to Bangkok today to review the situation in Vietnam with the president, who is on a three-day visit to Thailand.

Nixon was to review the war with U.S. Ambassador Ellsworth Bunker and Gen. Creighton Abrams jr., the commander of U.S. forces in Vietnam.

Nixon has said these talks would influence his thinking on further withdrawals of U.S. troops and his assessment of the significance of the battlefield lull in Vietnam, now in its sixth week.

Speculation centres on the future of External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp.

A possible successor is Trade Minister Jean-Luc Pepin.

Privy Council President Donald Macdonald is expected to be relieved of his duty as government House leader.

Nigeria Rejects Truce

Pope Is Linked To Peace Bid

Uganda Awaits Papal Visit

LAGOS (CP) — The Nigerian government today rejected a Biafran proposal for a temporary truce in the civil war while Pope Paul is in Africa this week.

An authorized spokesman, asked to comment on the truce plea by Biafran Leader Gen. Odumegwu Ojukwu, said: "This is a silly and stupid suggestion. We do not want to give it any thought at all."

But African sources in Kampala said intensive efforts to get a new round of peace talks started would be made in the Ugandan capital during the pontiff's visit there.

Pope Paul will arrive in Kampala Thursday for a three-day church conclave. He said Sunday his visit also has "an ardent and painful intention—that of peace," and he expressed willingness earlier to do anything he could to mediate between the Nigerians and Biafrans.

Gen. Odumegwu Ojukwu, the Biafran leader, said Monday that he was proposing the truce because "if Africa cannot have a permanent peace now," it should "respect the pontiff's presence and honor his lofty purpose by ensuring that peace reigns in Africa during his stay on the continent."

Kampala is throbbing with papal fever.

"You might say Uganda has gone on a pope-mania binge," said a local African prelate. "It's as if everyone was trying to outdo his neighbor."

Around Kampala and along the more than 50 miles of roads the pontiff will cover every telegraph post bears either a white and yellow Vatican banner or the Ugandan flag.

In town, the local movie theatre is offering a bill of fare to whet pilgrims' appetites—The Shoes of the Fisherman with Anthony Quinn as a future pope.

Floral arrangements are sprouting everywhere including one designed to read "Kampala welcomes the Pope."

The Nigerian government has rebuffed past proposals for a truce, contending that the Biafran secessionists would use a ceasefire to regroup without solving the basic problems involved in the war.

But prospects for peace manoeuvres in Kampala were enhanced by the appointment of Chief Anthony Enahoro, a veteran of previous peace negotiations, to head the Nigerian delegation for the Pope's visit. A government statement said:

"Diplomatic speculation indicates there is a possibility of the opportunity being seized during the Pope's visit . . . to encourage some sort of dialogue between the Nigerian delegation and the delegations from some of the countries which are supporting the Biafran rebels, and it is believed that with this possibility in mind the federal government apparently appointed Chief Enahoro to head the delegation."

Ugandan President Milton Obote was chairman during an unsuccessful round of peace talks in Kampala in May, 1968. Enahoro led the Nigerian delegation to those talks and to another round of unsuccessful talks in Addis Ababa last August.

Observers in Kampala also noted that the presidents of two African countries that have recognized Biafra, Julius Nyerere of Tanzania and Kenneth Kaunda of Zambia, are due in Uganda Wednesday.

"I would be very much surprised if they did not talk about Biafra with President Obote and Biafra from Nigeria or Biafra," a top African diplomat observed.

Pope Paul is officially visiting Africa to honor 22 Ugandan martyrs who died in the 19th century. He also will address the closing session of the first all-Africa conference of Roman Catholic bishops the day he arrives.

U.S. Battle Response Limited

SAIGON (CP) — U.S. commanders in Vietnam have modified their battlefield strategy of "maximum pressure" in recent weeks to a strategy of limited response to enemy tactics, U.S. sources said today.

Termed "protective reaction," the new strategy is designed to hold U.S. casualties down and dates from about the time the current battlefield lull began nearly six weeks ago.

Hippies Chain Boy, 6, in Box

BLYTHE, Calif. (AP) — Little Tony is recovering after police rescued him from a hippie commune where officers said he was chained inside a roofless box for weeks under the desert sun.

Police said today the youngster, six-year-old Anthony Gibbons, may have been locked inside the homemade prison for two months.

The site, gritty with sand and sagebrush, is in the southern Mojave Desert.

Sheriff's Capt. Robert Bickmore said the temperature hit 110 degrees during 17 of the 56 days the boy is believed to have spent in what he described as a wooden, "filthy box."

Officers say they found the lad, "pale and visibly underweight" and suffering from dehydration, shackled inside the box, which was about six feet long by six feet wide by six feet high.

No trace of food or water was found. The boy told officers he was being punished because he had played with matches and set fire to one of the wooden ramshackle houses that deputies say were built by young persons from the Los Angeles area.

Deputies arrested eight persons including two women, whose ages ranged from 21 to 26. They were arraigned Monday on charges of abusing the health of a child. Conviction could result in up to 10 years in prison.

Officers said they believed the boy's unidentified parents were separated and that they had given the lad to the commune youths for keeping.

Economies Meshed

U.S., Japan Lean Upon Each Other

TOKYO (Reuters) — The United States and Japan today agreed they have become economically dependent on each other and declared they both have a major role to play in bringing peace and prosperity to Asia.

Both State Secretary William P. Rogers and Foreign Minister Kiichi Aichi took similar themes at the start of a three-day U.S.-Japan ministerial meeting.

Rogers said: "We have become interdependent. Our exchange of goods has reached the highest level ever maintained between any two countries in transoceanic trade."

He added: "Our two countries have much to offer in support of programs designed to bring a better life to the people of Asia, and thus to build economic and political stability which is a prerequisite for the peace we all desire so much."

Aichi answered: "Japan and the U.S., as leading nations in the free world, are called upon to contribute to the cause of peace and prosperity of the Asian-Pacific region and of the entire world. We share in common the ideals of freedom and democracy, as well as the aspiration toward lasting world peace and prosperity of mankind."

El Salvador Faces Sanctions

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Organization of American States is prepared to impose economic sanctions against El Salvador in retaliation for the continuing presence of Salvadorean troops in Honduran territory.

A resolution placed Monday before OAS foreign ministers charges El Salvador with aggression for refusing to withdraw troops it has stationed during the last two weeks over a four-state area of western Honduras.

A second resolution orders the suspension of exports or imports of oil, coffee, cotton and sugar unless El Salvador agrees to the immediate withdrawal of its troops.

It also provides for supplying Honduras with "all the material help necessary" for restoring its territorial integrity.

The terms of the resolutions were agreed to privately by the foreign ministers during lengthy sessions at the Colombian embassy before their introduction at OAS headquarters here.

Province May Urge Tougher Line With Municipal Tax Delinquents

Despite reports that the department of municipal affairs in Toronto is issuing briefs recommending that municipalities get tough with delinquent taxpayers, no word has been received at the Belleville tax office which might change the present procedure.

"We haven't heard anything here," stated city tax collector John Grohn who was inclined to doubt if any drastic "get tough" policy would accomplish anything.

Under present statutes municipalities are authorized to charge up to eight per cent on tax arrears and if taxes remain unpaid for three years the municipality may sell the delinquent's property.

After the sale the owner has a year in which to redeem his property through full payment of all tax arrears together with interest.

"Municipalities cannot accept part payment in such instances," Mr. Grohn said.

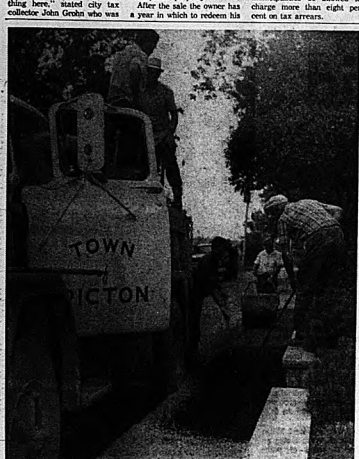
The only change which Mr. Grohn would recommend from the existing legislation is that municipalities be allowed to charge more than eight per cent on tax arrears.

He said it appeared a bit unrealistic when delinquent taxpayers can "borrow" money from the city for eight per cent when they would have to pay 10 or 11 per cent at the bank.

On current taxes the city charges one per cent per month on past due payments.

Also, under certain distress conditions the tax collector can secure warrants for the seizure of goods and chattels for non-payment of taxes.

But, according to Mr. Grohn this procedure is used only in the case of business tax arrears when there is some chance the owner might skip the municipality without payment.



"It is used only in extreme cases," the tax collector said.

In any event the city does not have a serious tax arrears problem and the trend is toward fewer tax sales.

At the moment there are only 26 properties listed for the annual tax sale in November, with this number said to be considerably less than at the same time last year.

And even this number is expected to be reduced by the time that the tax sale rolls around.

What happens is that the delinquent taxpayers "borrow" from the city at the eight per cent rate as long as possible and then just before the tax sale, come to the tax office and pay up.

Woman Hurt

TWEED — A Belleville woman sustained minor injuries late night when her car left the road near here and collided with a fence.

Treated in Tweed for facial lacerations was Rosaleen Ramsay of Belleville.

She was the only person in her car when it went out of control on Highway 37, south of here near Chapman's Corners.

Former Belleville fire chief Gerald Vance loads up with the first local corn of the season. Mrs. R. Windatt of West Lake was one of several Prince Edward county farmers offering the table delicacy on today's market.

Corn Earlier Every Year

It's corn on the cob time again — locally grown that is.

Saturday a few dozen ears were offered on the Belleville farmers' market while today the table delicacy appeared in volume as Prince Edward county vendors from the West Lake area offered their locally grown crop. The price was 75 cents per dozen ears.

Constant research and development aimed at maturing varieties is year by year shortening the growing period for corn.

This year Mr. and Mrs. Reg. Windatt of West Lake are trying a still earlier maturing variety — Polar Vee — which with good growing weather is ready for the market 55 days after planting.

This variety chops still another six to seven days growing time from that required for Defender, another popular early table corn variety.

But until Polar Vee is proven under local soil and climatic conditions the Windatts are sticking mainly with Defender. They have 30 acres of Defender as compared with two or three acres of Polar Vee.

But Polar Vee should do well in Prince Edward. It has been tested in Newfoundland and on Alaska, both with considerably shorter growing periods than the Quinte district.

17 Cars of Freight Derailed

All Canadian National passenger and freight trains have been detoured between Brighton and Port Hope as a result of an early morning derailment of a Canadian National Railways freight train at Grafton.

CN passenger trains have been rerouted to the CPR lines between Brighton and Port Hope. The derailment blocked both main CN lines.

Seventeen cars of a 52-car freight-train, carrying a piggy-back load, left the rails at approximately 1.55 a.m. this morning.

Bill Mundrey, the CN's chief dispatcher at Belleville — the CN's Bidoss Area headquarters, said that a broken terminal was believed to have caused the derailment of the freight train.

No one was injured and auxiliary crews from Belleville and Toronto arrived at the scene of the accident at 6 a.m. and 8 a.m. respectively to begin clearing the tracks.

Mundrey estimated that, if all went well, the tracks would be clear again by midnight tonight.

THOMPSON, Thomas Nelson — At Toronto, on Monday, July 28, 1969, beloved husband of Elsie (nee Bowerman) of Belleville. Dear father of Mrs. Gerald (Audrey) Sedford, 159 Eglinton Ave. W. at Lascelles Blvd. Funeral service on Wednesday afternoon, at 3 o'clock. Interment Mount Pleasant Cemetery.

IN MEMORIAM

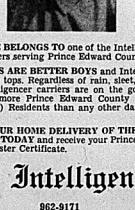
JORDAN — In loving memory of a dear father, Joseph B. Jordan who passed away July 29th, 1962.
What I would give if I could say,
Hello Dad in the same old way
To hear his voice, see him again,
To sit with him and chat awhile,
So you who have a father,
Cherish him with care,
For a father's love is the heartache
Of
Till you see his vacant chair.
—Always remembered and sadly missed by daughter Frances, son-in-law George and grandchildren Linda.

JORDAN — In loving memory of our dear father, Joseph B., who passed away July 29, 1962.
In silent memory of his thoughtfulness
But he left us a memory, we are proud to own,
So treasure him lord in Your garden of rest,
For when on earth, he was one of the best.
—Sadly missed, Bill, Doreen, grandchildren David, Denise and Tammy.

JORDAN — In loving memory of my husband, Burress (Joe) Jordan, who died suddenly, July 29, 1965.
When evening shades are falling,
And I sit in quiet alone,
In my heart there comes a longing,
If he would only come home.
Friends may think I have forgotten,
But
When at Union they are ends,
But they little know the heartache,
My smile hides all the while,
—Margaret.

JORDAN — In loving memory of a dear brother Joseph B. Jordan who passed away July 29, 1962.
Today reminds me of the past,
Of the loved one gone to rest,
And those who think of him today,
Are those who loved him best.
The flowers we laid upon your grave in time,
Will fade and decay,
But the love for you who lies beneath,
Will never fade away.
—Lovingly remembered by sister Margaret, Newark, New Jersey.

RODD — In fondest memory of a wonderful loving mother and grandmother Marina Jane Rood who passed away July 29, 1964.
One year has passed since then,
The dearest friend we had,
But she's here with us in spirit,
So we must not feel too sad,
For she's somewhere watching o'er us,
Resting, oh so sweet.
We think of you in memory,
And that same day we'll meet.
—Always remembered by daughter Shirley, son-in-law Ronald and grandchildren.



RODD — In loving memory of a dear mother and grandmother Marina Jane Rodd who passed away July 29th, 1963.
Wish I could call you I would say,
Hello Mom it's me I'm still on your way,
To hear her voice, see her smile,
To sit with her and chat awhile,
So you who have a mother,
Cherish her with care,
For you'll never know the heartache
That's
Till you see her vacant chair.
—Always remembered by daughter Shirley, son-in-law Ronald and grandchildren Bonnie Lynne and Roger Jay.

JORDAN — In fond and loving memory of my father, dear grandfather Joseph B. Jordan who passed away July 29, 1962.
Today recalls the memory,
Of a loved one gone to rest,
And those who think of him today,
Are those who loved him best.
The flowers we lay upon his grave,
May fade and decay,
But the love for you who lies beneath,
Will never fade away.
—Lovingly remembered by Hazel, Joyce, Jeanne and Jim.

JORDAN — In loving memory of our dear father, Joseph B. Jordan who passed away July 29, 1962.
In our hearts your memory lingers,
Always tender, fond and true,
Always in our thoughts dear father
For you thank of you.
—Sadly missed by son Bob and Elaine.

SAUNDERS — In loving memory of a dear husband Leslie J., who died Tuesday, July 29, 1958.
Three years have passed since that day,
When one we loved was called away,
God took him home—it was His will,
But in our hearts he liveth still.
—Lovingly remembered by wife Doris and sons.

Province Plans Stepped Up Tourist Promotion Campaign

For Ontario the legend "Friendly . . . Familiar . . . Foreign . . . and Near" is paying dividends, with more to come.

Allied to the theme music from the award - winning film of Expo 67, A Place to Stand, and to sophisticated television advertising, the province stands to boost to still great heights its $1.6 billion tourist industry and the $250,000,000 it generates annually for the provincial treasury.

Of the department of tourism and information's budget of $3,000,000, a million and a half is spent on advertising, with spectacular results as Frederick J. Boyer, the department's executive director, pointed out to the Rotary Club yesterday.

Outlining television's growing role in attracting tourists to the province, Mr. Boyer said that with his department's initial venture into the medium in 1968 the province became the largest North American user in the travel field and internationally it was third in budget. Only Jamaica and the Bahamas allocated larger TV budgets to the North American market.

Presenting a number of the one - minute commercials, the New Brunswick - born tourism director said they had been not only pre-tested but post-tested and it was learned that 11 per cent of the population in selected markets could accurately recall their messages. People wrote and requested more information and others came as visitors and said it was because of the commercials. There were good critical reviews in the trade press, and in addition the commercials received awards from advertising and sales, arts and television groups in Canada, the United States and Japan.

"Our experience in 1968 encouraged us to continue and expand our efforts in 1969 in more markets and with heavier weight in each market. We used the same commercials but our investment increased from $400,000 to $700,000. . .The results show an awareness of 25 per cent compared with 11 per cent the year before."

There are other encouraging signs, Northern Ontario fishing outfitters for example report the busiest season ever. There have been heavier advance bookings and historic sites report attendance running in excess of Expo year, Ski operators had the longest, busiest season on record.

However, the department is not resting on its laurels. New material is being prepared for the 1970 commercials. By then the ones now in use will be four years old and there is the risk of a dated look in fashions, automobiles and even the length of miniskirts.

Mr. Boyer also cited other reasons — changes in television techniques, better cameras and lenses, sound quality, music styles and color processing. Editing techniques, he said, have been revolutionized since Expo. Also there are new attractions like the National Arts in Ottawa and the Science Centre opening in Toronto this September, in addition to new visitor pursuits and attractions not covered by the original commercials.

"And finally, there is the age-old plea of client to agency — so that's great, but what are you going to do for me next year?"

Mr. Boyer afforded a glimpse of these rough concepts and tentative musical ideas with multi - picture "story boards" from which the final product will emerge. The result will be a composite of all the province has to offer in such areas as history, cities, culture, beaches, boating and fishing with emphasis on the relative peace and quiet and away-from-it-all atmosphere Canada enjoys in comparison with the United States.

Earlier in his talk Mr. Boyer noted that in Hastings county, tourism accounts for seven per cent of every dollar spent compared with a provincial average of 11 per cent.

In the province's principal tourist market — the United States — there has been a 20 percent increase in the number of tourists since 1960, a 74 per cent increase in long-term visitors and an increase in expenditures of 153 per cent.

Towering Work Project in City

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

It's one of the more important overhaul projects around and there they are — high as they can be on the job.

Anywhere up to 140 feet high at times.

That's the altitude of Belleville's municipal water tower — a massive metal 750,000 gallon container that dominates the city skyline.

Right now there's not a drop of that hefty water reserve in sight.

There's good reason for the drought-like condition.

The tank's interior must be repainted every five or six years and 1969 is the year Belleville Public Utilities earmarked $12,500 for the recurring project.

Steeplejacks from a Toronto firm have been clambering up and around the tank's gloomy interior for nearly eight weeks and are now in the job's homestretch.

The last of four coats of paint may be applied within the next week or so.

The harshness of Canadian winters contributes to the necessity of such regular maintenance.

But the weather, has also been a boon to the utilities service while the big tank is out of commission.

Continual heavy rains have eased demand on city water supplies through the traditionally peak period of summer.

The community's water needs have been easily matched direct from the public utilities' reservoir at its west end filtration plant.

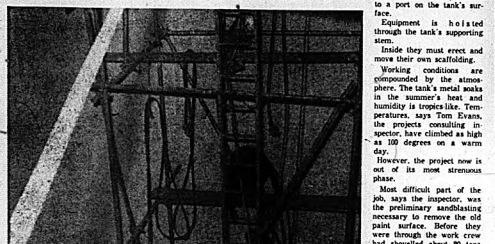
Cold weather freezes a coating of ice to the tank's insides. As it thaws in mild er weather the ice drops off — taking the paint with it.

This exposes the bare metal to corrosion. Unless the surface is recoated serious damage may soon ensue.

However, restoration is a laborious process.

Entry is from the top only.

Daily the steeplejacks must clamber the outside of the tower by its series of winding steps, ladders and platforms to a port on the tank's surface.



Equipment is hoisted through the tank's supporting stem.

Inside they must erect and move their own scaffolding.

Working conditions are compounded by the atmosphere. The tank's metal soaks in the summer's heat and humidity is tropics-like. Temperatures, says Tom Evans, the projects consulting inspector, have climbed as high as 100 degrees on a warm day.

However, the project now is out of its most strenuous phase.

Most difficult part of the job, says the inspector, was the preliminary sandblasting necessary to remove the old paint surface. Before they were through the work crew had shovelled about 80 tons down the stem to the ground below.

Tom Evans, inspector on water tower paint project, adjusts paint-fumes mask before descending with steeplejack to interior of 750,000-gallon tank. Panorama of Belleville and Bay of Quinte in background is daily view for work crew scrambling to job 140 feet above ground.

Interior Decor in the Air

In cavernous interior of city's water tank, steeplejacks place scaffolding to begin renovations. Spray-painting of tank's interior is necessary precaution against corrosion.

IAC Group to Be Tenants In New Office Building

An early November completion date is the target for the construction of a two-storey office building to be constructed on the former Tilbrook property on lower Front Street.

The site is immediately to the south of the former Thomas Tobacco store and on property which was the scene of a costly fire about 18 months ago.

The owner of the new office structure is J. E McKinney Ltd. realtors with the Industrial Acceptance Corporation group to be the ground floor tenants.

Affiliated firms sharing the main floor office space will be Niagara Finance Co. Ltd.; Sovereign Life Insurance and the Merit Insurance Company.

George Taylor, local IAC manager said he expected his firm would be able to move in sometime in the early part of November. The company has operated in Belleville for the past 25 years and also has branches in Trenton and Picton.

The new office building will have a frontage of 43 feet and a depth of 65 feet. The total floor area will be 3,000.

Coad Construction of Trenton are the builders. The building will be of concrete block construction with aluminum and glass front and will be completely air conditioned.

Four Picton-Area Scouts To Receive Highest Honor

PICTON — Four Prince Edward County Boy Scouts will receive their Queen's Scout Awards in a special investiture ceremony at St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church tonight. A Queen's Scout badge represents the highest award in scouting.

The Hon. George Hees will present these coveted badges to David Matthews, Picton, Donald Brown, R. R. 8, Picton, Robert Coke, R. R. 1, Picton and William Sweet, Picton.

This is the last occasion on which Queen's Scout Awards will be presented in Canada. In the future boys completing their scout training will join The Venturers, a new scout movement begun in 1966. "Venture Awards" will replace Queen's Scout badges.

Prince Edward County's first King's Scout was Sherman Bowers, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Bowers, Picton. Now living in Ottawa, Sherman received his badge in 1937 at the age of 16. His younger brother, Harry, was also a King's Scout.

Two Hurt in Crash

Two Belleville men were taken to Belleville General Hospital yesterday afternoon after they were injured when their motorcycle came into collision with a vehicle on Dundas St. E.

Robert Hutson, 23, of 11 Dunbar Street, sustained a broken right leg and a lacerated left leg. Hospital officials here this morning said he was transferred to the Tri-Service Hospital in Kingston.

He was driving the motorcycle at the time of the mishap.

His passenger, Harry Travers, 23, of 28 Dunbar Street, sustained back injuries and lacerated hands. He was treated at the hospital and released.

Driver of the car was Winnifred Boyce of Campbell Street who was uninjured.

What Should a House Buyer Look For ?

ED McKINNEY
E. K. McKinney Realty Ltd.

I've seen people stop and admire a $5 wrought iron door knocker and forget completely to notice whether the basement is damp or whether the roof leaks!

What should a buyer look for?

Outside the house, you should check all masonry walls for cracks, and mortar joints for "washing out" or other obvious signs of trouble. Have a look, too, at all woodwork that is exposed to the weather, to see if it is sound — or beginning to rot. Check the shingles, too. Even from the ground you can often spot shingles that are badly worn — or missing.

Look closely at the eaves troughs, down pipes and other metal parts, to see if they are corroding.

Inside the house, look for moisture and rotting in basement; serious cracks in the wall plaster (hair cracks are common and should not be regarded as serious); and signs of deterioration in the floors, such as cracks or unevenness.

Even if the inside paint is new, examine it closely to see if it has been applied properly, or just slapped over the old paint.

Remember these basic check points. You can always go out later and buy yourself that door knocker.

Air Service

Several times in recent years we have stressed the need for an air service in this area. With the industrial pace quickening and the population increasing this matter is now one of more urgency.

It is encouraging then to note fresh initiative in this direction. A Quinte Air Services Committee representing Hastings and Prince Edward Counties has been established and it is working toward securing a carrier and an operating base.

CFB Trenton has been mentioned in this connection and this of course would be a matter for the committee to discuss with the Defence Department.

We are not exactly isolated in the Quinte area, but an air service would provide a sharp boost in the overall economic fortunes of this region, as well as making it more easily accessible to the vacationer and to residents seeking easier access to other parts of the country.

Then there is our neighbor the United States. We have always regarded it as a geographical anomaly that major centres like Rochester and vacation areas like the Finger Lakes and Adirondacks should be so unnecessarily distant, for lack of both air and lake services.

Rochester is only 40 miles or so across the lake and one day, possibly sooner than later, we feel some enterprising person or company will have a hovercraft or hydrofoil operating between the Canadian and U.S. shores of the lake. There was a boat service years ago but then the automobile became king; just the same Rochester is 250 miles or so by road from here.

Meanwhile an air service would be a welcome addition to the growing potential of the Quinte region. We hope it becomes a reality.

Student Travel

Earlier this year 135 students from a technical school in Sidcup, Kent, made a 16-day tour of Canada and the United States. The boys had already visited Iceland, the Baltic countries and the Soviet Union.

It is an idea for our schools here. We do not know how the British boys financed such ambitious journeys, but then youngsters of their age in Britain do not squander their money on say automobiles.

The point is, if the British boys can do it, why not their counterparts in Canada? We once read about a former ocean liner which had been given over to making student trips from Britain to Scandinavia.

Here we do have exchanges between Ontario and Quebec, but we need something more ambitious than that. What about coast-to-coast tours? Or to Alaska, or Mexico. The educational value of such trips would be incalculable.

Maybe it would be a good idea for any interested school to write to the British school concerned, Cray Valley Technical School, Sidcup, Kent, to find out how the boys there went about organizing and financing their journeys overseas.

Take Your Pick

How is your scale of values? Or what should a country with taxpayers' money to spare do with $50,000,000.

Well Canada spent all of that on its National Arts Centre in Ottawa, and it was a sum far in excess of the original estimate.

Houston, USA, is the Houston, Texas, community which has grown up around the National Aeronautics and Space Administration. It is home to the astronauts and a technical and urban enterprise that has brought a $50,000,000 payroll to the area.

Or what about the $50,000,000 trade centre proposed for Sydney, Australia, next year in a bid to establish the city as the commercial capital of Southeast Asia. Scheduled for a prime harbor site, it will be the venue for international exhibitions and congresses.

So what's $50 million? Each to his own.

Market for Wheat

The Nationalist Chinese government in Taiwan is reported to be interested in buying wheat from Canada. This was disclosed in the Commons recently and Robert Thompson (PC-Red Deer) noted that whereas the United States has a permanent wheat sales office in Taiwan, Canada has no direct sales representation.

The lesson is obvious. And while we are going about trying to sell wheat to Taiwan, why not other countries. Ottawa has had trade missions roaming the world to sell the products of our industries. We might also break the wheat glut with some good salesmanship.

Ottawa Offbeat

Eric Kierans Walks the Tight Rope Foot-in-Mouth

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — Sometime, somehow, Prime Minister Trudeau, despite all his casual what-the-heck attitude towards so many things, is going to have to do something about Postmaster General Eric Kierans. Political-ly unforgivable, the PG gave Her Majesty's loyally passive Opposition the House of Commons hotfoot.

Sheer self-defence compels the Prime Minister to crack down on crackup Kierans.

For such a foot-in-mouth cabinet liability has not adorned a ministry since the late great Clarence Decatur (The Thrasher) Howe got former Prime Minister Louis St. Laurent into the kind of trouble that destroys governments.

Old "C.D." was a tremendous achiever, a doing doer of big things, and a magnificent management man.

But he was also, a wildly compulsive dropper of such thundering political bricks as "Who's to stop us?", . . . "If we want a gold-plated plane we'll damn well buy a gold-plated pi-ano", . . . "The farmers look fat enough for me", . . . "I'll say it again, Trans Canada is MY air-line", . . . "Our business is to tax and spend, tax and spend". . . . "What is a million?"

(As things have been working out since his day, with big taxing and big spending more than ever the business of government, the canny old "Trader" was dead on target with his contemptuous assessment of a million dollars. Anything these days that is measured in hundreds of millions is nickel-and-dime stuff.)

But back to Eric Kierans.

He fancies himself as an imaginative management man, a forceful innovator and an initiator with gutsy derring-do.

And perhaps he is, but definitely not with the same magnificence or abundance of a C. D. Howe in whose flamboyant style he seems to be striving to fashion himself.

But he is making some progress in following the footsteps of the master.

Especially in developing an impressive talent for saying the wrong things at the wrong time to the wrong people.

Now he has out-bigmouthed himself by ridiculing the Conservative Opposition.

This might sound ridiculous if it had not been carefully calculated government policy to be kind and decent to the Opposition.

All session long, the government attitude towards the Opposition was "we care," based, no doubt, on the proposition that the Liberals could scarcely hope to come across a more co-operative, helpful and understanding bunch — except for a few "Yahoo" mavericks, as they are called — than the current crop of Conservatives.

Eric Kierans did not have to do this.

He already had an impressive record of irritating the easily-annoyed Trudeau and embarrassing the government with troubles enough on its uncertain hands.

With his five-day week mail delivery — yes better post it by Tuesday at the latest, or it might not get there till next week — he managed the Post Office into an era pre-dating the pony express.

A federally - appointed adjudicator taking a look at the mess made it official in a government report that "Electronic Eric" had set the Post Office back into the Nineteenth Century.

By chopping the second class mailing privileges of some 2,500 Canadian periodicals, he endeared himself, his prime minister who let him get away with it, and his government to the readers of everything from "The Canadian Boy" to "Le Legionnaire" to the "United Church Observer" and everything in between.

Could he be gets his kicks by living dangerously, for he likes to boast and persist in proudly announcing that the taxpayers are paying more for less mail service.

But he had to top himself the other day by popping up, all unin-invited, to taunt the Conservatives: "What an Opposition like that, who could be afraid?"

It was no more than a simple statement of fact, but it went against government policy of being nice and polite to the Tories.

It just might have been the thing that fired up the Opposition to stir up such a storm on the rules' debate.

When the prime minister was organizing his cabinet, Eric Kierans barely made it in . . . and talk is being heard that when Trudeau re-organizes the ministry in the weeks ahead, the postmaster general likely won't find it at all difficult to make it out again.

"I shudder to think what it does to the passengers!"

Canadians in the Money

Regina Leader-Post

The best way to get ahead, they say, is to work for yourself, rather than for someone else.

Of course, if you are self-employed, it also helps if you are a doctor, engineer architect, lawyer, dentist or accountant.

According to the national revenue department in Ottawa, self-employed doctors and surgeons continue to top the list of taxpayers with the largest annual incomes in Canada.

Drawing on statistics compiled from the 1967 income tax returns, the department reported recently that 15,500 self-employed Canadian doctors and surgeons had incomes averaging $27,347 and paid average taxes of $7,324.

Engineers and architects working for themselves earned an average $22,111 and paid $5,349 each in taxes. There were 2,572 Canadians in these categories.

They were closely followed by 8,462 self-employed lawyers and notaries who reported average incomes of $22,014 but paid slightly more in taxes, with an average of $5,823.

Farmers, despite appearances to the contrary, continued to earn a shade more than the average employee. The farm income mark levelled out at $5,-530, with taxes of $624 each for 148,725 taxpayers. The "employee" average was $5,300 income and $589 in taxes.

Pensioners again found themselves at the bottom of the ladder, with average earnings of $1,410 and tax bills of $241.

Perhaps there is a lesson in this as far as the future of welfare is concerned.

If the country could increase its supply of self-employed doctors and surgeons, without a drop in income resulting pov-erty might be alleviated. After all, the tax paid by the average person in these professions represents the total incomes of two pensioners at the present level, with a bit to spare.

Prime Minister's Approach

Frankness Is One Thing—But Is It Enough?

Montreal Star

Pierre Elliott Trudeau is never more impressive than when he is levelling with people. During the heady days of the general election campaign and in occasional television interviews or university appearances since, he has won the respect of his listeners by rejecting the traditional platitudes and trying, simply, to tell the truth as bluntly as possible.

He returned to that style on his tour through western Canada. The trip was billed as a fence-mending tour, but the Prime Minister has offered Westerners no easy answers to their problems. He has stressed again and again the truth that to govern is to choose.

Yet, in their way, the stark alternatives Mr. Trudeau has presented his Western audiences can be just as misleading as the more common kind of political blandishment which seeks to convince people that all things are possible. Pushed beyond its logical conclusion, Mr. Trudeau's approach can become an attempt to get the government off the hook by convincing people that nothing is possible.

In the north, for example, he warned Indians that recognition of the rights granted them in longstanding treaties would also mean perpetuating of the discrimination the Native suffered from white men. He offered Indians the cruel choice between special rights with attendant discrimination, and a status no different from that of all other Canadians. The argument has a certain symmetry, but the choice is not a real one.

The sufferings of Canada's Metis is proof enough that treaties and special rights in themselves are not the cause of discrimination. Repeal of the Indian Act will not automatically turn Indians into equal citizens with equal rights. Some special consideration will be needed to help Indians acquire the financial and psychological tools they must have to reach real equality.

Prairie farmers are another group who can appreciate the Prime Minister's frankness but who deserve something more. Mr. Trudeau was all too correct in Manitoba when he warned farmers that they must produce less wheat.

Mr. Trudeau was being less than frank, however, in leaving the impression that a reduction in wheat acreage was a simple matter between the farmer and another nature. It is hardly realistic to urge farmers to make major changes, which can involve heavy new investment, at a time when they are desperately short of cash and their credit is stretched to the limit as a result of slow sales and low prices.

Zborowsky captured some magnificent shots of wild and exotic animals disporting themselves thousands of miles from their native lands, and as beautifully and happily as it is possible for captured animals to be. He says he was chased by nearly every animal there, because he went right into their big paddocks with Osmond and his crew to get his really remarkable close-ups. When he said we hoped the creatures had been fed first, he said: 'Oh no! When they have dined they're too docile, and we wanted them to work for us a bit." But he returned unscathed, if a little shaken. Osmond gives his wild family lots of attention and affection and they respond well.

A lordly lion and his family posed for a family portrait—this jungle king and his queen raised their cubs in Eskimo weather without artificial heat, just a shelter from wintry blasts.

Osmond has great knowledge of species rapidly disappearing and some most exotic, priceless specimens, but no reptiles or amphibians. He has produced the first camel, Father David deer, snow leopard, Przewalski horses and Hartman zebras, Chinese water deer, Nilgai ever bred in Canada, and the Japanese muskox; stone sheep and palace cat ever born in captivity.

Osming served in the RCNVR in the Second World War, and afterwards paid his way through his bachelor's and master's courses in zoology at the University of Alberta by wrestling. He fought 100 bouts and promoted another 900 all over northern Alberta to raise money for making his dream of having a game farm come true. By the time he had saved $60,000 and acquired an old muskrat farm, including bush, ponds, meadows, muskeg, and a fresh-water lake. Now the farm has expanded to 1500 acres which are home to 89 animal species as many bird species.

Osming conducts experiments as one of the few Canadian Fellows of the Zoological Society, writes scientific papers, does a lot of lecturing across the country, and several times a year trans-North American zoos to trade his surplus animals for some he has farm deficits in. He —once he came back with 63 exotic creatures—is one of the continent's chief protectors and suppliers of wild life.

From Tropics to Winter Snow

AL Oeming and His Game Farm in Alberta

CBC Times

Al Oeming's grocery bill last year was around $100,000, but then he has a family of over 3,000, from snowy owls to giraffes, tigers and muskoxen. His annual shopping list includes 40 000 tons of hay, 180 tons of bird feed and 16 tons of meat.

Oeming owns and operates the 10-year-old Alberta Game Farm, a highly successful experiment in animal conservation, open the year around, which permits wild creatures to roam freely in broad pastures. Many from tropical climates have adapted happily to 30 degrees below zero. It's startling to see a camel or rhino gamboling cheerily through knee-deep snow drifts, and flamingoes tripping daintily over the ice as if they'd never heard of warm water.

The farm has been enthusiastically acclaimed by scientists and conservationists all over the world, and attracts over a million curious visitors each year. Oeming's credo is that "man is merely the custodian of nature—not her master".

In last week's "Telescope" program on television viewers were taken on a tour of the Alberta Game Farm, and a visit with its handsome, energetic director, in a program entitled Noah of the Northland. It was directed by a young westerner who now lives in Toronto, William Zborowsky, photographed by Ken Gregg of Winnipeg, who recently won his second CBC Wilderness Award for fine camera work, and edited by Arla Saare. Host: Fletcher Markle.

TODAY IN HISTORY

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

An American doctor, sought for one of the most grisly murders in the history of London, England, was arrested 59 years ago today—in 1910—at the pilot station at Father Point, near Rimouski, Que. The arrest of Dr. Hawley Harvey Crippen and his paramour, Ethel Le Neve, marked the first time radio had been used for tracking down a criminal. Crippen was hanged in Pentonville Prison, London, on Nov. 23, 1910, for the murder and mutilation of his wife.

1915—Viscount Alexander was named governor-general of Canada.

1953—Twenty died when a bus hit a stalled truck and plunged into a canal at Morrisburg, Ont.

Buggies to Blame

Traffic on the Macdonald-Cartier Freeway in east Toronto was reduced to a crawl when a swerving truck deposited its load of horseless buggies on the highway. Traffic was slowed for nearly three hours while police and wreckers cleared the assorted sleighs and buggies from the rain-soaked roadway. (CP Photo)

Anti-missile System Not A Worry

Humphrey Finds Russia Most Alarmed Over U.S. Multiple-target Missiles

WASHINGTON (AP) — Hubert H. Humphrey says Soviet leaders indicated to him much more concern about American development of offensive missiles than deployment of the Safeguard anti-missile system.

The 1968 Democratic presidential nominee said in an interview after a 13-day visit to the Soviet Union that the Russians "are less concerned about the ABM than about our offensive weapons, the MIRVs (multiple targetable re-entry vehicles)."

The former vice-president said he favors continued research on the Safeguard ABM but opposes deployment.

Senate opponents have contended ABM deployment might cause the Russians to shun arms limitation talks.

"The ABM is only symbolic," he said. "If we step up our defences, they feel they have to step up their offensive weapons. But it is our offensive missiles that worry them most."

He said Russian concern over differences with China and their own economic and social needs "requires them to think in terms of a better relationship with the United States—they are more open to discussions." But he added:

"Russia is more Russian than communistic and it moves slowly. There are contesting forces at work. There is a power struggle and no one can predict what will happen."

On other matters, Humphrey said he is "seriously considering" returning to the political wars by seeking election to the Senate from Minnesota next year.

Humphrey said he discussed the American position on international co-operation in space, the Middle East, Vietnam and arms control with Soviet Premier Alexei Kosygin.

In talks with scientists, Soviet editors and others, Humphrey said he found universal interest in reaching an agreement in arms control talks.

Laird Says U.S. Must Have Gas, Germs to Deter Others

WASHINGTON (AP) — Defence Secretary Melvin R. Laird said Monday the United States must possess chemical and biological warfare weapons to discourage that type of attack from other countries.

He thus appeared to rule out any major policy change by the Nixon administration on the controversial issue, telling a group of college students:

"It wouldn't be fair to the American people and our allies if we were to just do away with the program."

Laird said that "as much as we deplore this kind of weapon" it serves as a deterrent to "see that these gases are never used in our time."

Laird said the U.S. would never be the first to launch an attack with such weapons but would retaliate in kind "if any nation should be so foolish" as to use chemicals or germs against the United States.

He said the Soviet Union has a much greater stock of such weapons than the United States but gave no figures.

Students' Living Costs Rise

OTTAWA (CP) — Tuition fees at Canadian universities and degree-granting colleges are remaining relatively stable this fall, but living costs for students will rise sharply, the Dominion Bureau of Statistics reported today.

The bureau surveyed 48 universities and colleges and found that although about one-third of them are increasing their tuition fees, the amount of the increases is small.

Accommodation fees, however, will be higher in about half the institutions, the increases ranging from $25 to $250 with an average of about $50. The accommodation fees apply only to university-operated residences and not off-campus private quarters.

The DBS survey did not cover student transportation costs, or personal expenditures for books, clothing, entertainment and the like. These would add several hundred dollars to the typical student's costs.

Base Closures Will Be Spread Out

OTTAWA (CP) — The closedown of several defence department bases, to be announced within two weeks or so, will be staggered over a period of years, informed sources said Monday.

In this way the economic impact of the closures, which will affect the livelihood of thousands of Canadians, is expected to be eased. It is anticipated that a minimum one-year notice will be given, with some bases being put on two-years' notice and others on three-years' notice.

Reports that up to 15 bases will get the chop were discounted last week by Defence Minister Leo Cadieux as an exaggeration. It is understood that about half that number would be affected.

In addition, however, a number of bases will be reduced in size. It is all part of a government program to cut defence expenditures at the current level of $1,800,000,000 for the next three years.

One base for which the writing may be on the wall is that at Summerside, P.E.I. Speculation has progressed to the point where an alternative site for the aircraft based at Summerside is said to have been chosen.

According to reports the approximately 15 Argus, Labrador and Albatross planes will be transferred to Greenwood, N.S.

Another base that has figured in advance speculation about the coming closures is the one at Rivers, Man.

'Young Pavilion' Built For Canada at Expo 70

TORONTO (CP) — Canada will have a "young pavilion" at Expo 70 in Osaka, Japan, appealing to the under-25 group which is expected to make up 65 per cent of visitors, Patrick Reid, commissioner-general of the pavilion, said Monday.

Mr. Reid spoke at a news conference where he displayed a 12-foot-square model of the mirror-covered pavilion while the rock strains of a Vancouver pop group called The Collectors provided a noisy up-tempo background.

"We've tried to emphasize the spaciousness and grandeur of Canada at Expo 70 and I think this exciting pavilion does the job."

Mr. Reid left later Monday to take up permanent residence in Osaka where workmen are busy fitting the last large mirrors that make up the spectacular outer shell of the pavilion in preparation for the March 15, 1970, opening.

The massive, 100-yard-long pavilion, which looks like a four-sided pyramid with its top cut off, is the fourth biggest at Expo 70.

Together with the pavilions of Ontario, Quebec and British Columbia, it gives Canada the biggest presentation of any foreign country.

Nova Scotia to Assist Big French Tire Firm

HALIFAX (CP) — The Nova Scotia government, still nursing the giant headache of an unfinished heavy water plant on Cape Breton Island, plans to pour $50,000,000 of new medicine into the provincial economy—two plants to manufacture tires for the Michelin Company of France.

In a brief statement with skimpy details, Frank Sobey, president of Nova Scotia's Industrial Estates Ltd. (IESL), announced today that Michelin of Canada would produce a variety of automobile tires at plants to be built near Bridgewater on the province's south shore and at an undisclosed site in Pictou County some 100 miles north of here.

Mr. Sobey termed the development the most important project yet announced by IEL, the industry-promoting arm of the Nova Scotia government, and said the plants would employ a total of 1,300 persons. No explanation was given of why two separate plants would be erected.

Premier G. I. Smith, "very glad" that an outstanding international corporation would locate in his province, forecast that the Michelin venture would ultimately create an additional 1,700 jobs in the two areas. He was pleased with the choice of the south shore, a non-industrial area mainly dependent on the sea and soil.

In Pictou County, one of the Michelin plants could be built, "some sources feel, at rural Granton near the big Scott Maritimes Ltd. pulp mill at Abercrombie Point on Pictou harbor. At Bridgewater, a town of about 5,000 on the navigable La Have River, the likely location is in the community's industrial park.

Mr. Sobey's announcement of the Michelin plants, believed to be the firm's first manufacturing establishment in North America and the first major investment by a French company in Nova Scotia, avoided specifying how much the two endeavors will cost all parties involved.

Bound Body Discovered In River

HAGAR, Ont. (CP) — A bound and gagged body found in the Veuve River Thursday night has been identified as Robert William Turner, 39, of North Bay.

Police said the body had been in the water for more than 36 hours, and that the father of three did not drown.

"He didn't jump," said provincial police Inspector Archie Ferguson of Toronto. "He was dead when he went into the water."

Mr. Turner, a mechanic, was last seen at his North Bay home June 30, when he left on a 15-minute drive to work.

Ten days after he was reported missing by his wife, Mr. Turner's car was found abandoned in Sault Ste. Marie, 260 miles west of North Bay.

Hagar is 40 miles west of North Bay.

Stranded Climber Played His Guitar

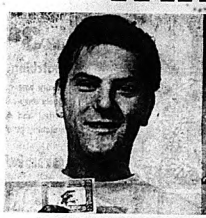
BANFF, Alta. (CP) — A young mountain climber, stranded on a steep slope near here for four days, played a guitar and smoked his pipe while waiting for rescuers.

Brandi Bystryk, 21, of Kitchener, Ont., was rescued Sunday from a narrow ledge after he was injured in a 70-foot tumble down a slope. He suffered cuts to the face and feet and severe bruises that prevented him from walking.

Speaking from his hospital bed, Mr. Bystryk said he crawled—"I don't know how far, but it took me four hours" —to where he had left some camping equipment, food and his guitar.

Bell Says Need Proven For Increase in Rates

OTTAWA (CP) — The chief counsel for Bell Canada told the Canadian transport commission Monday the company has proven "beyond doubt" that it is justified in applying for rate increases.



E. E. Saunders of Montreal, beginning Bell's summation of evidence presented during a 39-day hearing, said the company had shown the present government-regulated rate structure "is no longer just and reasonable."

In 1968 the structure yielded Bell a rate of return on average capitalization of 6.9 per cent. The firm is seeking telephone rate increases which would allow a return of at least eight per cent.

If passed by the commission the new rates would cost Bell customers—in Ontario, most of Quebec, Labrador and the Northwest Territories—an additional 40 to 70 cents a month for home phones and $1.30 to $2.95 a month more for business phones. Bell estimates this would add some $83,000,000 to its annual revenues.

Unhappiness, Anxiety Often Symptoms of Illness

By DORIS CLARK

Is it possible to be "driven mad" by circumstances and anxiety about them?

According to an excellent booklet turned out by the National Association for Mental Health (British), people would like to think it is. Both the patients and their relatives want something or somebody to blame. Everybody has a breaking point, and sometimes people do meet with overwhelmingly disturbing circumstances. These may indeed be the immediate cause of a breakdown.

The writer, however, considers that anxiety and unhappiness are more often symptoms of the illness, rather than its cause. Frequently, overwork is blamed for mental illness, whereas the truth is the patient has deliberately immersed himself in his work in order to take his mind off his disturbing thoughts. Or he may have had an unhappy love affair and blamed that, and the fact is the love affair ended unhappily because of a mental imbalance which was there already.

Most of us know a number of people who wade through tremendous quantities of work and come up smilingly happy and perfectly serene.

* * *

Dear Doris: I am a girl 16. I actually hate my mother. My older brother was pushed around, ignored, such as I. He never got good grades in school and neither did I.

But after him came my sister who is 20; she got excellent grades. Mom and Dad would go out of their way for her. My brother and I love to fool around and are carefree. Sis is serious minded, ambitious, etc.

In grade 12 she became engaged. Well, this really caused a big how-to-do! Mom and Dad bought her everything, put money in the bank for her. She graduated and about three months later was married.

Before the wedding you know how it is, busy and all the relatives arriving. It was about two nights before my sister's wedding that my older brother and I were told we were to stay home and look after my little brother who was five at the time. Yes, my mother actually told us we'd be in the way at the wedding.

Being 23, my brother left home and gave up a very good job. I have been run down in front of company by my mother. Often instead of calling me by my name she calls me Stupid.

I feel like running away. I have my driver's license and my brother left me his car. — Desperate

Dear Desperate; I'm sorry. Who can live down the discouragement of being called stupid; of being told you are in the way? The more you are considered no account, the less effort you make.

Life is for fun as well as study, and you should be carefree, at 18. But if you pass your grades, you are off to a better start at enjoying yourself!

Parents are not perfect; yours have made the terrible mistake of playing favorites with three nice kids. Try to forgive; try to stick with your studies; and only leave home when you feel you've stacked up enough marbles (figuratively speaking) to make the grade on your own.

* * *

Confidential to "Flabby": You aren't the first 16-year-old who ruined nature's plans for curves with a crash diet. I know one girl who brought herself to a state of nervous breakdown by eating practically nothing — certainly none of the proper things — for about six months. It took her three years to get her health back. If all you have lost is a bust measurement, you're lucky.

I can't send you exercises or other ideas for gaining weight unless you give me a name and address to send them to.

(Is it a point of etiquette that is troubling you? Doris can tell you how it's done in Canada.)

Kitchen Tested Recipes

Mashed Potatoes Add Flavor to Bread

By MARY MOORE

By the time this column is printed there may be Canada wide distribution of the new fine granular rapidmix yeast.

It was introduced to the Home Economists at their 1968 convention and sold in the western provinces because prairie province housewives make more bread than those in other parts of Canada. But our Ontario readers got wind of it and wanted to know where to buy it. I enquired of the manufacturers who replied in May saying "plans for national distribution are now in the works."

So I have waited three months before trying it and it is indeed rapid. I made two loaves of white bread and added some mashed potato for extra flavor and moisture.

WHITE BREAD
(2 loaves)

NOTE: This recipe calls for ¾ cup mashed unseasoned potatoes and the new fine granular rapidmix yeast, but standard granular yeast may be used if you cannot buy the new type yet.

1 pkge. rapidmix granular yeast
¾ cup lukewarm water
1 tsp. sugar
¾ cup cooked mashed unseasoned potato
1 cup warm potato water
1 cup scalded milk
2 tbsps. soft shortening
2 tbsps. sugar
2 tsps. salt
6 cups sifted all - purpose flour—divided — see below

In advance cook the potato until tender. Drain and mash. Measure 1 cup of the potato water.

Measure into large beater bowl the yeast, lukewarm water and 1 tsp. sugar. Add potato and lukewarm potato water. Start beaters on low and add remaining ingredients as you measure them, beating all on low as you add. But add only 3 cups of the sifted flour. Reserve remaining 1 cup for flouring the board. Beat as well as you can, then remove beaters and scrape down sides. Cover and let rise until doubled — under an hour. Punch down dough and tip out on to board floured with remaining 1 cup flour. Knead until all flour is thoroughly and smoothly blended in and dough is squeaky — about 200 kneads.

Cut dough in halves, shape into 2 loaves and place in 2 buttered standard loaf pans. Cover and let rise until 1 inch above rims of pans — about 1 hr. Bake at 375 deg. Fahr. for 40-45 min. or until when rapped with knuckles bread sounds hollow and outside is crusty. Cool on racks. Lovely bread — cheap too.

NOTE: If the new yeast is not available in your community keep on asking your grocer for it until it is.

Points for Parents

By MARY BRYSON

Mother: "Jimmy, don't pound that drum here in the motel room. It gives me a headache. Go outdoors and you can play it there."

Jimmy: "I'll march up and down in front of the motel."

Noise-making toys should not be within reach of children on vacation trips. Other travellers may be trying to relax in motels or at vacation areas and they should not have their trips spoiled by too much unnecessary noise.

Mother: "It was nice of Grandmother to give you the drum to take home. We will pack it away for the trip. We'll take coloring books, modeling clay and some quiet toys to use in the car and while we're at the motels."

Ann Landers

Legal Knots Are Tight For This 19-year-Old

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My brother died two months ago. His widow has asked me for advice and I don't know what to tell her. The question is in regard to her 19-year-old son. He wants to get married.

ANN LANDERS

The boy is 4-F so he is not worried about the Army. He has been kicked out of two colleges so he is not worried about his education. (He can't get in anyplace). He works in his grandfather's business (when he works) so he is not worried about a job. Here is the question: The boy wants his mother to advance him $3,000 against his inheritance so he can get married and take his bride to Honolulu on a honeymoon. His father left his $20,000 but the will states that the first payment of $3,000 is to be made on the boy's 21st birthday. The second payment comes due in 1974. Subsequent payments of $2,000 are to be made at two year intervals.

The boy keeps badgering his mother and repeating, "I don't want a gift, all I want is an advance on what is legally mine. I will pay you the $3,000 in 1971 when I get the $5,000.

What should she tell him? She's leaving it up to me. — KEEPER OF THE KEYS.

* * *

DEAR KEEPER: She should tell him no. Her husband knew what he was doing when he wrote his will in such a way that his son would not come into any money until he was 21. All she need say is, "Sorry, we're going to leave things as dad wanted them."

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I have a neighbor who thinks I have the most beautiful garden in town. She can hardly wait until the flowers are in bloom so she can ask permission to "pick a few."

This woman insists she cannot grow flowers because her children need a place to play. You should have seen the look she gave me yesterday when I refused to allow her to pick a bouquet for her company table. Her face was so full of hate it ruined my day.

It takes a great deal of patience, weeding, spraying, watering and luck to grow beautiful flowers. Am I selfish because I want to enjoy them as long as possible?

There must be countless readers in your audience who have this same problem. Will you kindly give us a word or two? — WILTED FRIENDSHIP.

* * *

DEAR FRIEND: Some people make a living selling flowers. They are called florists. Their phone numbers are listed in the telephone directory. Enough said.

* * *

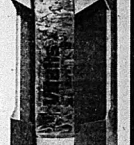
DEAR ANN LANDERS: No lectures, please. I know right from wrong. Just tell me if a married woman can put the real father's name on the child's birth certificate instead of the name of her legal husband. The real father is married and has several daughters. He wants a son to carry on his name. Our baby will be born next month and I am almost certain I'm going to have a boy.

This is sort of a mess and I need the answer. — SKYLARK.

* * *

DEAR SKY: Don't make the mess any messier by putting your lover's name on the baby's birth certificate. According to law your husband is the father of the child.

* * *



CONFIDENTIAL TO CITY LIFE PRO OR CON: The question is, how ya' gonna keep 'em down on the farm after they've seen the farm? Some farms are beautiful but the one you describe sounds like work, work, work.

New Project Dealing with Obesity Conducted

TORONTO (CP) — The Donwood Foundation in Leaside, treatment centre for alcohol and drug addiction, has undertaken a pilot project in the treatment of what it considers another addiction, overeating.

The new approach to overeating is the brainchild of Dr. Gordon Bell and the two-year experiment is under the direction of Dr. Martin McDowell who became interested in obesity when many of his women patients came to him for help when he was in private practice.

"I didn't know what advice to give them," Dr. McDowell said. "There were methods of taking weight off but no successful methods of keeping it off."

For the 10 women volunteers in the program the word diet is a "no-no."

"The word diet is used in short-term thinking, then dieters go back to their old eating patterns," Dr. McDowell said. "We call our system a meal pattern instead. We hope after our two-year training plan they'll keep this meal pattern the rest of their lives."

The 10 volunteers at the outset averaged 277 pounds each. Since they've been at the clinic they've lost an average of 11 pounds each. These women are not on a starvation diet but an 800-calorie low carbohydrate diet designed close to a normal eating pattern so they'll lose weight slowly, not quickly.

When the women first volunteered for the course they were admitted to the Donwood Foundation hospital for five days and given extensive medical checks. Since then they've come to the clinic every Friday for an outpatient program which they are committed to follow faithfully at home throughout the week.

Their weekly program begins with a change into a gym suit and a weigh in. Then they have an hour of exercises developed for them individually by physical education instructor Wayne Baker.

Exercises are followed by a half-hour lecture on nutrition which reads almost like a first-year university course in home economics.

Next comes a lecture on addiction, which is similar to lectures alcoholic patients receive at Donwood followed by the most important part of the experiment: group therapy.

For several hours the women get together in the lounge, with Dr. McDowell sitting back to listen, and they thrash out their emotional problems and hang-ups together.

"We want them to understand why they are addicted," Dr. McDowell said. "The basic idea is to attack the whole person from every angle, to make her a happy individual who doesn't overeat. I want to make these people learn how to live, to understand their addiction, and therefore cope with it."

When the two year program is completed Dr. McDowell hopes to achieve 70 per cent success in long-term weight loss, but says he will be happy if the group achieves 50 per cent.

LIEUT. TERRY D. GEROW AND MRS. GEROW

Gerow – Petticrew

Eastminster United Church was the scene of the recent wedding ceremony when Diane Robinson Petticrew, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Petticrew of Belleville exchanged vows, in a double-ring ceremony, with Lieut. Terry Donald Gerow, son of Mr. and Mrs. Norman Gerow of Belleville. Officiating clergyman was Rev. A. McDowell, and rendering appropriate nuptial selections was organist Henry Hayek.

The bride, given in marriage by her father wore a full length bridal gown of Chantilly lace featuring a front panel of crepe peau de soie lined with taffeta and enhanced with jewel neckline and long lily-point sleeves. A long train of matching lace extended from a gathered yoke at back. Her three tiered scalloped finger-tip veil of imported illusion was held by a headdress of borealis edged with seed pearls. She carried a cascade of red and white roses.

The maid of honor was Fay Lawson of Ottawa who wore a floor length gown of yellow chiffon over satin with the bodice featuring a smocked effect with seed pearls and a round satin stand-up collar. She wore a matching headdress and carried a nosegay of yellow mums and shasta daisies. Bridesmaids Madeleine Harris of Kingston in rose shade and Diana Gerow of Belleville in mauve with matching headdresses were gowned similarly to the maid of honor, and carried bouquets tinted to match their dresses.

Best man was Norman Gerow Jr., while the ushers were Shaun Petticrew brother of the bride and Ronald Gerow, brother of the bridegroom.

For the reception in the Pinnacle Room of the Hotel Quinte, the mother of the bride received the guests wearing a yellow long sleeved lace dress with matching accessories and a purple orchid corsage. Assisting, the mother of the bridegroom wore a pink crepe dress with matching accessories and a mauve orchid corsage.

Leaving on the wedding trip for New Orleans, the bride donned a white and yellow lace dress with matching accessories and a corsage of red roses. On return they will reside in Winnipeg, Manitoba.

Woman Writes A True Story Of Indians

VANCOUVER (CP) — Canadian white society, said Nedra Greenaway, pictures the Indian surrounded by buckskin, birch bark canoes and colored feathers.

Mrs. Greenaway, a graduate of Simon Fraser University in suburban Burnaby, is out to tell her countrymen what the Indian is really about.

She received a $4,000 fellowship from an oil company to study the role of the Indian in Canadian society when she completed her arts degree in 1968 and the fellowship has been renewed for 1969.

Above all she hopes her thesis will be published as a readable book.

"I don't want my book to be filed away in a university library. Over the past 20 years there has been a knowledge explosion in the social sciences but very little of this has filtered down."

Mrs. Greenaway said she is collaborating with a Nootka Indian, John Thomas, to write the book.

Mr. Thomas, 55, from Ucluelet on Vancouver Island, is a hereditary chief of the Nitinat band.

In conjunction with her book Mrs. Greenaway is working with the department of education at the University of British Columbia.

Styles Reminiscent of 'New Look'

PARIS (AP) — Yves Saint Laurent dropped hems like bombs Monday and they fell to eight, 10, 12 and 14 inches from the ground in styles that were sometimes reminiscent of Dior's 'new look' of 1947.

The long look was most emphatic in Saint Laurent's tweed coats, cut like men's topcoats. They drop to midcalf length. The skirts that about veil from daytime tweed suits and battle jacket tops are even longer than midcalf-eight to 10 inches from the ground.

The long theme is carried out in printed woolen topcoats cut like men's dressing gowns. Saint Laurent does this at least a dozen times in paisley and Persian carpet designs.

And the drop is brought into the English overtness look as well: A fingertip-length suit jacket worn over a knee-length skirt. It goes with LeCoste type shirt that has a buttoned front tab.

The same tab is found on jumpsuits and pyjamas, many recalling the American astronauts' fatigue suits. They come in muted neutrals such as beige and grey, and also in black.

BELLEVILLE RECEATION - ARENA COMMITTEE

Older Women Virtually Forgotten by Garment Industry

OTTAWA (CP) — Older women have a real problem buying clothes, Senator Muriel Ferguson (D—New Brunswick) complained recently at a meeting of the Senate's special committee on poverty.

She said dresses were too short and wrongly designed for older people, creating special problems for women with little money to spend.

The 70-year-old senator isn't the only person concerned about the problem.

An article in Canadian Consumer says that if you are a woman past age 45, you may have money to buy a dress but you will probably have trouble finding one that fits and suits you.

If you are 55, you will have to look much harder, the article says.

"If you are 65, just forget it."

Although more than one woman in 10 in Ontario is more than 65 years of age, a survey by the Ontario Red Cross and the Ontario Consumers' Association found that older women are virtually forgotten by the garment industry.

There was reasonable evidence that the same situation exists everywhere in Canada.

Garments for older women are designed with a dismal lack of imagination, the publication suggests.

"Lack of imagination shows up in a dress made in a style no young person would wear and closed with a long back zipper few older persons could reach," the article says.

Even if the style were neither too youthful nor mid-Victorian, the color was sure to be wrong.

"It is hard to understand why manufacturers persist in using unadorned black, dull wines and greens and bright, hard blues and reds when soft shades of almost any color are flattering on skins no longer blooming with youth.

"Not only are attractive clothes practically non-existent for seniors, they certainly don't get much help finding what there is available."

Few advertisements were aimed at the older woman.

Grandmothers appeared in large numbers at fashion shows — but out in the audience, not modelling clothes suitable for their age group.

However, help may be at hand, the article says.

The federal government specifications board's committee on standardization of garment sizes recently decided to study women's garment sizing with a view to developing some system of uniformity.

"Should there emerge from this a new size category to fit the older figure and the garment industry is persuaded to devote a fraction of the time now spent catering to teen-agers in designing for it, hundreds of thousands of Canadian women would be given a new lease on life."

Many Changes in Farm Kitchen During Past 35 Years

AURORA, Ont. (CP) — It hasn't been so long, but it sounds like a different world.

In the first years Mrs. Elton Armstrong was married, from 1931 on, she whirled away her time getting three meals a day for nine people, helping raise a garden, putting down 200 two-quart sealers of strawberries, filling crocks and sealers with meat for the winter, attending Women's Institute meetings and church.

Perhaps nowhere do the changes in Canadian life in recent decades show so clearly as in the way a farm woman spends her day.

Mrs. Armstrong lives in a 100-year-old house on a 175-acre farm now owned by her son. About 25 miles north of Toronto, on a main highway, the community is on its way to becoming a suburb. A couple of subdivision boxes have been built across the road.

Mrs. Armstrong's father-in-law bought the farm in 1919 for $8,500. Her son took it over after husband's death in 1955. Mrs. Armstrong says it and when he sells it to be sub-divided, he may well be able to retire on the proceeds.

In the meantime, she says, it is almost prohibitively expensive to keep it running.

Asked what she thinks of as the biggest change in the life of a farm in the last 35 years, she did not name machinery, the encroachment of the city, freezers or the amount of work. She said it is the part money plays.

"It used to be that everything was done at home, and nothing was bought outside.

"Now there is no farm labor. In those days we had three men plus my husband living here. My mother lived with us for 15 years and eventually we had four children. There were nine of us to sit down to every meal.

"The men had three meals a day and their lunches done. They got $15 a month and their board. One chap was here six months and left and he had the $90. We always kept unmarried men.

"Sometimes there were threshing crews, 15 men to feed, or 20 men for two or three days putting corn in the silo.

"We grew all our own food. I put away 200 two-quart sealers of strawberries for the winter. You had to; you couldn't go to the store and buy the things you can now.

"There weren't the consumer goods there are now. If you went to the store with a $5 bill, you would come back with half change because all you would buy was tea and coffee, perhaps a bit of rice or prunes.

"We kept an orchard, everyone did, but not on a commercial scale. We had cherry, pear and apple trees. We had fall and winter pears that would keep until Christmas. And of course, they all had to be looked after."

Mr. Armstrong kept beef and hogs, mostly fed on food he grew himself. The family killed and preserved their own meat.

"You would cut the meat in small pieces and put it in sealers, boil it in the jars. We rendered bacon and stored it in our own fat in crocks, and a wood stove. I had an electric plug-in stove, but it wasn't heavy duty."

She also cooked in the summer kitchen that is still attached to the house.

Mrs. Armstrong now uses a freezer and cake mixes (sometimes) and is glad to have them, but she says many of the kitchen skills are dying along with such skills as quilting.

"I made my own butter, though I didn't make bread. I do it now for curiosity, but I didn't have the time then.

"The younger girls now don't—know one first thing about things like preserving. They don't have to do it. They can go to the store and buy food that may come from Australia or from Africa. It's one of the things the matter with the Canadian economy."

Mrs. Armstrong did not spend all her time in the kitchen. She and other farm women made most of their own and their children's clothes.

In her case, both town and school were close enough that getting there and back was not the problem it was for many farm families.

Community life centred on a community club and on a church (there were 20 of the denominations met for worship in a union church, at services held by clergy who came from nearby Newmarket.

"It helped keep people together. Now there is no community life. The new houses are just bedrooms for people who work in Toronto, and there are only three 'old' families left in the area."

The Strength of an Ox, the Skin of an Alligator and A Gentle Touch

That's how Mrs. Audrey Davies describes the qualifications necessary for successful potters. Nationally recognized for her outstanding efforts in the technique that won her a showing in the Canadian Guild of Crafts building in Toronto this year. The clay must be centred on the wheel before the potter can attempt to shape it. Then, Mrs. Davies works the clay up, moulding it and changing the structure of the jug with every movement of her hands. The finished product is adorned at the side with the characteristic "squashed pots." "The potter expresses himself," Mrs. Davies explained. "It's only through study and understanding of the art that a potter can make the clay come alive."

Potting Started as Recreational Hobby Now City Woman Known Nationally

By JUDY SCHRIEDER
Staff Reporter

"To feel and see and understand and then to express it" is the essence of pottery, according to Audrey Davies.

A recently recognized potter on the national level, the Belleville resident has been working in the art field since 1952.

"I enrolled in an evening program offered by the recreation department and took all the courses I could," said Mrs. Davies. "When I first put my hands in clay, I knew I wanted to be a potter."

When one of her instructors was unable to conduct the classes, Mrs. Davies was asked to take over the program.

"I was teaching students that had just as many lessons in potting as I had. I couldn't show them anything more advanced, but I did try to show the class my approach to clay," she explained.

From that point on, Mrs. Davies found herself engaged chiefly in educational and recreational programs, instructing children and adults interested in the field of pottery.

"Then, - four years ago, I realized I wasn't doing anything for myself. I was serious about potting," she said.

Pursuing her desire to advance in the field of pottery, Mrs. Davies spent a summer studying under Chez Shimano, well known Japanese potter in Toronto.

"It was a design, drawing and painting course. It was also my first experience with the potter's wheel," Mrs. Davies said.

Since then she has taken a course in some form of pottery work every summer.

At McMaster University in Hamilton, Mrs. Davies studied under Jack Herman.

"He is a functional potter," she explained. Functional pottery involves objects that can be used; such as plates, tea pots and dishes.

"It was a good grounding for me because I had to discipline myself."

One of the pieces of work she did that summer was chosen to be put on display, because, according to Jack Herman, "It was the only piece of pottery with sculpting value."

From the functional field, Mrs. Davies moved into a course of instruction under Don Reitz at the Sheridan School of Design in Port Credit last year.

"I decided then that I would rather make one of a kind than mass produce. When I think of mass production, I think of machinery. And when I think of machinery, it's just not something I want to create. I like to feel I can capture something people can enjoy."

An earthenware bottle that Mr. Davies worked on last year was accepted to show in the 1968 national showing in the Canadian Guild of Crafts in the Better Living building, Toronto. This year, she submitted three pieces and once again one of them was accepted for the showing.

"It's taken a year to get the effect that I'm producing in my work," said Mrs. Davies, speaking of the creative pottery she is turning out.

Her "petite pot piles" as she calls them are distinctively original. She "throws" small pots on the wheel and then puts them all together in little piles. The effect of the squashed pots, "oozing out" has become her trademark in the potting field.

For the "straight people", as she calls them, Mrs. Davies produces "neat" petite pot piles, stacked very carefully.

"Some people like to see perfect things," she explained.

The tumbled pots Mrs. Davies has produced over the past year are taking on a new look. Always interested in sculpting, she is trying to introduce a variety of sculpted pot piles.

This summer, the Belleville potter studied under Jack Sures at the University of Saskatchewan.

"He's the only man I know of in Canada who is working in fibreglas," she said. "It was wonderful to learn the techniques of such a new field of potting."

Now Mrs. Davies is working on pieces of clay draped in fibreglas.

Although potting is the field in which she has gained the most recognition, her artistic talents lie in other areas as well.

An accomplished painter, Mrs. Davies work's in water colors and acrylics. She has also developed a very original use of artist's tissue paper to make tissue collages. The collages resemble paintings, but tissue replaces the use of paint.

"I began to realize the whole scene in the art field when I went back to get my 11, 12 and 13 art," said Mrs. Davies.

Mrs. Davies has taken up an added twist in the art field — batik. Batik is a method of dyeing designs on cloth by coating with removable wax the parts not to be dyed. Mrs. Davies uses this method to print colorful designs on pure silk scarves.

This summer she will be conducting pottery courses for children at the Recreation Centre.

"I think that pottery is happiness," Mrs. Davies explained. "You explore, enjoy and create."

The Potter's Wares

"No two pieces the same" is the assurance Audrey Davies offers with the pottery she makes. The pedestal sculpture not yet fired combines a clay wing with a grouping of tiny pots. The petite pot pile in the foreground is an example of the distinctive style Mrs. Davies has developed. The circular shaped piece is a combination of clay and fibreglas, ready to be fired and glazed for use as a wall hanging.

Scientists Include Belleville In Heart Disease, Water Link

Belleville is among Ontario communities cited in a scientific report linking soft water and heart disease.

The report, by three Toronto scientists, finds the incidence of ischemid heart disease varies in direct relation to the softness of water.

Ischemic heart disease occurs when the heart does not receive sufficient blood.

An Ontario Water Resources Commission included Belleville, Peterborough and Kingston among communities using surface, or soft water.

Belleville draws its municipal water supplies from the Bay of Quinte, mainly fed by the Trent River system.

Mayor Russell Scott, himself a medical practitioner, today described the scientists' finding as "an interesting report."

"But I think it's very preliminary," he added.

Dr. W. H. Lefliche, one of the researchers, said Monday he does not feel there is any cause for alarm. Smoking, over-eating and lack of exercise remain more serious causes of heart problems.

He dismissed as rubbish a demand by Dr. Morton Shulman, New Democratic Party health critic, that the provincial health department immediately warn the public of the danger of drinking naturally or artificially softened water.

"I don't agree with that at all," Dr. Le Riche said. "You can't make that kind of statement on the basis of our evidence at all."

Research for the study, conducted with a provincial grant by three doctors at the school of hygiene, divided Ontario's 55 counties into three groups according to water hardness.

In the hardest group—more than 200 parts per million of calcium carbonate — the death rate from the disease in 1967 was 365 per 100,000 population. In a middle group, the rate was 300. In the softest group — less than 100 parts per million — the rate rose to 416 deaths per 100,000.

The three doctors outlined their findings in the New England Journal of Medicine in April but it has not been widely publicized. It confirms findings in similar research in England, Wales, the United States and Japan.

Toronto Argonauts are alive and living in Alan Eagleson's attics.

Those among the Scullers who won't be watching this year's Canadian Football League games from the short side of their optimus promise to give coach Lou Cahill something to erase the memories of training camp strikes and contract hassles.

People who should know pick the Argos for a repeat second-place finish in the CFL's eastern group which, at time of writing, was yet to be sold to the National Football League as a home for orderly quarterbacks.

(Imagine — a football team by the name of Montreal Yankees!)

Cahill has a very good reason for not letting such things as Bill Symons' $35,000 salary ultimatum aggravate his ulcer: virtually all other CFL coaches are in the same boat.

The aforementioned Mr. Eagleson — the Perry Mason of the locker-room set — has not been content to antagonize everyone who wears a tie in professional hockey circles.

Now he's coupled hockey "owner brutality" protests with demands for wage parity for CFL journeymen.

The fact seems to elude Mr. Eagleson that many of those who play on the rosters of the nine CFL teams came here in the first place because they weren't good enough to make the pro grade south of the border.

Timing-wise, Eagleson's tactics couldn't be more devastating. Not since the days of the Fenians have Canadians been so upset about invasion as they are today over rumored U.S. football advances northward.

So when Mr. Eagleson threatens to lead some of his clients into the NFL or AFL promised land and leave nobody playing Canadian football but Canadians, it gives Jake Gaudaur and his merry men a bit of a jolt.

Meanwhile, back on the field, it says here Saskatchewan Roughriders are the new western hope, displacing Calgary's Lisle-less Stampeders. Edmonton Eskimos may also make their usual serious sortie out of the woodwork since 1960.

In these parts, Ottawa will probably continue to make Frank Clair look good, particularly with Russ Jackson looking like the best "retired" quarterback in the country.

But, as last year, it's those Argos that seem to captivate the imagination.

Quinte area patriots of the Canadian game will get the rare opportunity to hear an entire season of Argo-mania via CJBQ Radio.

Beginning Thursday night when the Hamilton Tiger-Cats venture into the CNE Stadium, CJBQ is broadcasting the entire 16-game Argo schedule, including one interlocking game with each of the five Western Conference clubs.

Eight of those games are not being televised by either Canadian network.

A highlight of the programming bonus will come Saturday, Sept. 20, when Ottawa goes into Toronto for an 8 p.m. encounter that is blacked out on every television set as far as Great Slave Lake.

Campanella Accepts Tribute from Wheelchair

COOPERSTOWN, N.Y. (AP) — Four new plaques hang on the walls of the Baseball Hall of Fame today — two honoring pitchers and two recognizing sluggers.

Officially enshrined Monday in this village where baseball was born, were pitchers Stan Coveleski and Waite Hoyt and slugging stars Roy Campanella and Stan (The Man) Musial.

Hundreds of fans jammed into Cooper Park to see the ceremony, then walked a couple of blocks to Doubleday Field for the annual Hall of Fame game.

Minnesota Twins of the American League thrashed the National League Houston Astros 7-2 on homers by Frank Quilici, Tony Oliva and Graig Nettles before the game was called after five innings because of rain.

Baseball commissioner Bowie Kuhn introduced the new Hall of Fame members at the ceremony and read the inscriptions on their plaques.

Campanella, in a wheelchair since an auto crash in 1958 ended his catching career with Brooklyn Dodgers, said: "Regardless of my being here today in a wheelchair, this is one of the greatest days in my life. Today means so much to me."

Musial, who played 22 years for St. Louis Cardinals and still holds a host of batting records, almost broke up when he recalled his boyhood in the steel town of Donora, Pa.

"My father," he said, "was a Polish immigrant and a great baseball fan.

"I always remember him talking about Babe Ruth. The Musials were poor then, and my first toy was a baseball.

He reminisced about playing against Campanella and the Dodgers.

Campy was always trying to distract me," he said. "It wasn't the Brooklyn pitchers who got me, it was Campy."

Coveleski, now white haired and bent with age, won 216 games in a 14-season career in the majors in the early 1900s.

Hoyt spent 21 years in the majors and won a total of 237 games, many of them for New York Yankees.

Cause for Concern

Veteran Sam Snead, 57, had plenty of reason for concentration during Monday's Canadian Open playoff at Montreal's Pinegrove golf course. Despite a par 72, Snead lost the title and $25,000 top prize money to Tommy Aaron. Snead had led the tournament all the way until Aaron's late surge in Sunday's fourth round forced yesterday's playoff. (CP Photo)

Open First Win

Aaron No Longer A Tour Also-ran

MONTREAL (CP) — Tommy Aaron has joined golf's establishment.

He's finally shed the stigma of the perennial also-ran by winning a tournament.

The tall, 32-year-old from Callaway Gardens, Ga., made it to the winner's circle Monday after a nine-year wait, winning the Canadian open championship and the Seagram Gold Cup by two strokes in an 18-hole playoff round with veteran Sam Snead, 25 years his senior.

"I guess you won't talk about the fact I've never won one now," Aaron gently chided newsmen. "You'll probably quit writing about me because there's nothing unique about me now. I've become one of the guys. I've won one."

Aaron shot a two-under-par 70 over the Pinegrove Golf Club layout while Snead had to settle for a par 72.

His victory was a big one financially as well as psychologically. He won $25,000 to Snead's $14,300 and added $4,500 as his share of the gate.

Snead also picked up $4,500 additional money from gate receipts of $18,000 from the estimated 3,000-strong gallery. Fifty per cent of playoff gates are assigned to the golfers involved, with the Royal Canadian Golf Association and the host club equally splitting the other 50 per cent.

The pair had finished the regulation 72-hole route Sunday with identical 13-under-par 275 scores, with Aaron setting a course record with an eight-under 64 in the fourth round to catch Snead.

The veteran had held a six-stroke lead over Aaron entering Sunday's round.

Aaron had registered eight second-place finishes since turning pro in 1900, but had never been able to better those performances.

However, he did his first victory up in style. Leading by one stroke going into the 18th, Aaron guided in a 25-foot putt

Pinson Runs Streak to 19 Then Saves Cards With Catch

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Vada Pinson and Billy Williams proved their worth Monday when the chips were down.

Pinson ran his hitting streak to 19 games with a fourth-inning single then came up with the deciding hit and saving defensive play in St. Louis Cardinals' 2-1 victory over San Diego Padres.

Williams also singled in the fourth, for a 17-game hitting skein, before stroking the winning single in a two-run 10th-inning rally that sent Chicago Cubs past San Francisco Giants 4-3 in the day's only other game.

Pinson matched the NL's season-high hitting streaks, shared by Pittsburgh's Matty Alou and Willie Stargell, with his fourth-inning single, then doubled to drive Julian Javier in the sixth and give St. Louis a 2-0 lead.

Cardinals' rookie Chuck Taylor blanked the Padres until the eighth, when they scored on an error by Javier, an infield hit by Ed Spiezio and a double by Roberto Pena.

An intentional walk filled the bases with one out, but Pinson gloved Nate Colbert's foul fly down the right field line and fired to the plate to nail pinch runner John Spin, completing a rally-killing double play.

Javier cracked a leadoff homer off loser Dick Kelley in the first inning and singled ahead of Pinson's RBI double in the sixth, helping Taylor gain his third victory without a loss.

Juan Marichal walked pinch hitter Willie Smith with two out in the 10th, and Don Kessinger, Glenn Beckert and Williams followed with singles, giving the Cubs their first Wrigley Field victory over the Giants' ace in five years.

The Giants overcame a 2-0 deficit on Willie McCovey's two-run homer off Bill Hands in the eighth and took a 3-2 lead in the top of the 10th on Willie Mays' run scoring single.

Ron Santo drilled a two-run homer for the Cubs before McCovey's 31st circuit sent the game into overtime.

The victory increased the Cubs' Eastern Division lead over second-place New York Mets to five games.

The action picks up in both the National and American Leagues today, with 17 games scheduled.

In the NL, Houston is at New York, Atlanta at Philadelphia and Los Angeles at Pittsburgh for twi-night doubleheaders, San Diego at St. Louis and Montreal at Cincinnati for single night games and San Francisco at Chicago in the afternoon.

Winning Caddy Earns Tuition

MONTREAL (CP) — Gordie MacNeil Jr. of Montreal earned his tuition fees for next year in one week of caddying for Tommy Aaron, who won the $125,000 Canadian Open golf championship Monday by beating Sam Snead in an 18-hole playoff.

"He gave me $700 in U.S. funds," MacNeil said, beaming as he met reporters after Monday's round. "That takes care of next year's tuition fees. I made it all in one week."

MacNeil, 20, an eight-handicap golfer, is a student at Loyola College in Montreal.

"He's a prince to go around with," said MacNeil, whose father is a director of the Royal Canadian Golf Association and a former Canadian Davis Cup player.

"I honestly believed he (Aaron) had a chance on Sunday, I really did," MacNeil said after the playoff match, while I saw Aaron win his first major tournament with a 70 over the 7,076-yard, par 72 Pinegrove Country Club layout near Montreal Sunday, Snead shot an even-par 72.

The caddie said the only thing Aaron asked him about during the five rounds was the pin placements.

"Occasionally he'd ask me the distance but he knew pretty well what it was himself."

Before the playoff round, MacNeil paced the course and recorded each pin placement.

Sports Briefs

OTTAWA (CP) — Coach Frank Clair said Monday there may be a player trade between his Eastern Football Conference Rough Riders and a western club. The trade would involve two or three Ottawa players. Among those being discussed with Calgary, Edmonton Vancouver and Saskatchewan are fullbacks Steve Wormith and Dave Crabbe, now on waivers, halfback Terry Black, centre Ken Shaw and 19-year-old end Wayne Smith.

CHARLES TOWN, W.Va. (AP) — One fan collected $24,820 for a $2 bet Monday night at the Charles Town race track as a muddy track upset the form and four outsiders figured in the Big Exacta. Friendly Count, $28.40, won the seventh race with Torino, $7.80, finishing second. The first half of the Big Exacta was easier as 125 players correctly named Weather Mist, $14.60, as winner in the fifth with Linsey-Jan, $11.60, finishing second. It was the third time in 10 days that the Charles Town Big Exacta copped $24,000 for a $2 wager.

Chuvalo Finally Dropped

SYLVANIA, Ohio (CP) — Canadian champion George Chuvalo of Toronto has been dropped from the list of the top 10 contenders for the World Boxing Association's version of the heavyweight title.

Chuvalo has been inactive since ... on its Buster Mathis of Grand Rapids, Mich., early last February.

The July ratings, released by the WBA Monday, show Bob Cleroux of Montreal as the only Canadian among the top 10 contenders for Jimmy Ellis's title. He is No. 9.

Hill Still Leads Golf Dollar Derby

NEW YORK (AP) — Dave Hill clung to first place in money earnings in the Professional Golf Association Monday despite Gene Littler's bid in the American Golf Classic to regain the weekly lead.

Littler had been in the lead for more than three months. However, while he was out a two-week vacation, Hill won the Philadelphia Classic and took over first place with income of $129,343.

Littler dropped to second at $104,996.

Bob played in the American Golf Classic at Akron, Littler tied for fourth, earning $5,487, and Hill tied for 18th and got $1,623.

Littler reduced the margin between the two, but Hill kept the lead with $130,830 to Littler's $110,483.

The tour's top 10 money winners:

1, Dave Hill, $130,968; 2. Gene Littler, $110,483; 3. Frank Beard, $105,187; 4. Gary Player, $89,006; 5. Lee Trevino, $87,696; 6. Dale Douglass, $83,337; 7. Billy Casper, $80,793; 8. Bruce Crampton, $76,511; 9. Miller Barber, $76,098; 10. George Archer, $75,976.

Canadian Henley Draws Anticipated 700 Scullers

ST. CATHARINES, Ont. (CP) — About 700 oarsmen and scullers from 31 United States and Canadian rowing clubs will square off this week in the 80th Royal Canadian Henley Regatta.

The four-day Canadian rowing championship, which starts Thursday on the tree-lined Henley course, boasts one of the strongest programs in history. It will take Williamstown beats to set the field for the regatta's 40 gold medal finals.

"The entry may not be as big as some in the past, but I would have to say it is the best balanced I can remember," said Claude Saunders of Hamilton, regatta chairman for the Canadian Association of Amateur Oarsmen.

The Ecorse Boat Club of Ecorse, Mich., boasts the largest entry in this 1969 Henley. But most rowing experts look to the St. Catharines Rowing Club, regatta champions for the last eight years in succession, to repeat for the Major-Leaf Trophy, emblematic of the Henley points' championship.

St. Catharines, however, faces strong opposition in many senior events from the former U.S. clubs, here to test their crews before the Aug. 16 U.S. National Rowing Championships at Philadelphia.

They have U.S. berths for the European rowing championships at Klagenfurt, Austria, in September riding on their showing in that regatta.

In addition to Ecorse, strong American contingents are already here from Buffalo West Sides, Philadelphia Undines, New York AC, Wyandotte, Mich., Rochester, N.Y., Philadelphia Vespers, Minnesota, Boston Union, Penn AC of Philadelphia and the Detroit Boat Club. All are expected to be in the thick of the fight for trophy honors.

Toronto Argonauts and Hamilton Leanders are looked upon as the biggest Canadian threats to St. Catharines. But other Ontario entries from Brockville and London have solid entries this week, along with the Chomedey Rowing Club of Montreal.

A small Winnipeg contingent is making the longest Canadian trek here, but Lake Washington of Seattle and Long Beach of California are setting the distance mark. Each club has sixteen entered.

The large entry list has forced the association to schedule morning heats Thursday to set the field for the afternoon's three finals. The next two days are racing starting from noon until 8 p.m., with 17 senior championship events on Sunday completing a packed four days of competition.

Six OSD Belleville Athletes Begin Overseas Adventure

Half a dozen Belleville students embarked on an adventure which will take them halfway across the world early this morning.

The four girls and two boys — are Ontario School for the Deaf students who will represent Canada in the 11th quadrennial World Games for the Deaf in Belgrade, Yugoslavia, Aug. 9-16.

The Belleville students were among some 20 athletes and three coaches who left Belleville by train for Montreal at 2.23 a.m. this morning.

Later today the group — Canada's track and field and volleyball squads — will be guests at a reception held by the city of Montreal. Mayor Jean Drapeau and Senator Hartland Molson will be among the dignitaries on hand to extend their best wishes to the travellers.

Wednesday, the group will join the remainder of the Canadian team and the contingent — which will number over sixty including coaches — will fly from Montreal to Frankfurt, Germany.

From Frankfurt the Canadian team will fly to Belgrade, the site of this year's 'Deaf Olympics.'

The Games run Aug. 9-16, but the Canadians will arrive Aug. 1 to allow for a week of acclimatization and extensive training.

Sharlene MacDuff, Gloria Jarvis, Merry Lee McQuaig, Bonnie Tucker, Jim Snyder and Ted Manktelow are the six OSD Belleville students who will compete in Belgrade.

All six qualified to represent Canada in Belgrade at the Canadian track and field championships for the Deaf held at Hamilton's McMaster University, Saturday, May 3rd.

"We should have three or four track and field athletes in the top five in their events, but medals may be wishful thinking because this is a young team without any previous international competition," said Hyalie Bryant, physical education director at Belleville's OSD and coach of the 11-member Canadian track and field squad.

"One of our best bets will be Sharlene MacDuff, who will compete in the high jump, 100 and 200-metre dashes," Bryant added. Sharlene has jumped 4' 10" in competition and 4' 11" in practice — figures which no American girl has been able to match this year."

"She's just returned from her holidays and the upcoming week of extensive training and practice should help her immensely."

"The older members are more subdued than the younger ones, but they're all excited," Bryant said.

"This will be a fantastic experience for these youngsters. The sports competition is important but perhaps more so is the educational value of the trip — the Canadian athletes will be meeting many people, making new friends and observing societies and customs which differ from their own."

"In the 1965 World Games for the Deaf at Washington Canada won four gold and four bronze medals and I expect that we may do better this time even though the number of countries competing has risen from 27 to 35."

Hoping for the Best

Training Centres Needed

WINNIPEG (CP) — Diving into the nave of a church from a 10-metre tower built over the altar, with spectators eyeballing from the choir loft, sounds a bit far out even in those modern times.

But it happens in the Soviet Union, and seeing it happen has left a lasting—and somewhat unfavorable—impression on Vaughan Baird of Winnipeg, president of the Canadian Amateur Diving Association.

Baird, who led a team of women divers on a competitive tour of Russia and Czechoslovakia this spring, said he accepts the fact that churches can easily be converted to a diving and swimming facility.

"But as a Christian—and as much as I love diving—I just find it too difficult to accept."

The tour took in East and West Berlin, Leningrad and Prague. It marked the first time Canadian divers ever had taken part in diving events in Eastern Europe.

Canada's top female diver, Beverley Boys of Pickering, Ont., took the Europeans by storm.

In the first competition in Rostock, East Germany, which drew representatives from 20 countries, the 17-year-old diving sensation finished second in the three-metre springboard event and second and third in the three-metre springboard event.

But later in Leningrad, Miss Boys showed the form which had given her previous victories over Olympic tower diving champion Milena Duchkova of Czechoslovakia, by winning the tower event and placing second in the three-metre. Competitions were not held in West Berlin or Prague.

The little blonde from Pickering was under almost constant surveillance by the Russians, who recorded her every move on film—every move she made in her dives, that is.

Baird said the Russians probably will use the film in their stepped-up training program for divers. He said the Russians appear intent on building up their calibre of diving, and in Moscow alone 300 divers train constantly.

"In my estimation," Baird said, "the depth the Russians are getting in diving will make them one of the most dominant countries in diving competitions in the years ahead.

"In fact, I predict Russia will be among the top three in both men's and women's diving in the next Olympics."

Baird was equally impressed with the setup in Rostock "where they have one of the greatest training facilities in the world."

The Rostock setup had six one-meters diving boards, two three-metre boards and a tower with four levels. There are elevators to the tower and a hydraulic board which can be raised to any level required.

In addition to that, Baird said, the divers and swimmers live year-round in specially constructed dormitories for constant and rigorous training. Doctors and nurses also live in the development.

"We'd certainly like to set up training centres like that too, and get some of our best coaches together to train our athletes," Baird said.

"Beverley (Boys) has to go to Montreal or Winnipeg to train on a 10-metre indoor tower."

Baird considered the tour a most rewarding experience for the divers.

"They learned a great deal. It makes them strive harder to become better because they realize what strength they are up against in international diving."

Rovers Win Four-point Soccer Match

Five goals and four points—a good evening's work for the Quinte Rovers of the Kingston and District Soccer League.

That was the case Sunday when the Rovers blanked Lisfield Thistles 5-0 in a four-point game played at Zwick's Island.

Bob Rutherford opened the scoring at the five - minute mark of the first half and later added two more goals to notch a hat trick for the Rovers.

Calvin Weeks and Bob Watson added single goals for the Rovers who are idle until Saturday when they travel to Hamilton to take on Brockville in a 7 p.m. game at Carson Field.

Belleville Wins Final Home Game 9-3

Belleville made use of its home rink advantage Monday night for the last time during the regular season in trouncing Tweed 9-3 in a Quinte Lacrosse League game played at Memorial Arena.

Al Partington led the way for the winners with five goals and an assist and Mike Scarlett scored a pair of goals for Belleville.

Steve Casselman with a goal and two assists and Don Steer with a single goal rounded out the scoring for the winners who have two road games remaining before the playoffs start.

Wednesday Belleville visits Cobourg and a week from Wednesday they wind up the regular season with a game in Trenton.

Aaron Considers Himself Lucky to Beat Wily Snead

for an eagle three, while Snead had his eagle attempt from 40 feet miss by less than an inch and slide four feet beyond the cup. He birdied the hole, but only after the excitement caused by Aaron's effort had died down.

Aaron said he considered himself lucky to beat the wily veteran. They played together in the first and second rounds.

"In the first and second rounds I didn't feel I was playing good," Aaron said. "And today (Sunday) I didn't think I'd played well throughout."

He said luck was with him on the fifth hole where "I made a real long putt (75 feet) and really used the putter like a driver from the very front of the green.

"I was surprised when it dropped in."

Snead said he didn't think anyone would catch him after he'd rattled home with a five-stroke lead after three rounds.

"I didn't think anybody would catch me unless I fell apart and the roof fell in, or somebody went crazy and ran across the course," said Snead who previously won the Canadian title in 1938, 1940 and 1941.

Snead got off to a poor start Monday when he went one-over for a six on the par-five, 600-yard first hole. Aaron parred that one, but the second saw the situation reversed.

They traded birdies on the third and the veteran moved one stroke up on the fourth, only to have Aaron pull his 75-foot birdie putt on the fifth and then get another on the ninth to lead by one stroke at the half-way point.

Aaron was out in a two-under 34 and Snead 35.

However the tide changed as Aaron was one-over-par on the next three holes and Snead went par-par and then one-over, to take a one-stroke lead.

Aaron evened it up on 14 and then went one up on the next hole when he birdied the short, par-three 15th. Both hit par on 16 and 17 to set the scene for Aaron's eagle finish.

The winner said he felt at the time he had lost the tournament with his troubles on the first three holes of the back nine.

"But, I thought I'd just keep trying."

Snead complained of having had 25 putts fall short throughout the five rounds.

"But I've been putting short for 10 years and I'm like somebody grabbing hold of me when I put," Snead said. "I gave it a charge at it but it didn't work."

Snead said it wasn't pleasant being beaten, but if he had to lose he was glad it was to a good golfer like Aaron. He had predicted early in the going that Aaron was the golfer to watch and seemed to take a certain pride in the fact he had called the eventual winner ahead of time.

Heavy winds and intermittent rain were two hazards the pair had to cope with, but neither golfer complained about these as a factor after the round.

Bombers Put Third-place Cards on Table Against Eskies

WINNIPEG (CP) — Lowly Winnipeg Blue Bombers have set their sites on wresting third place from Edmonton Eskimos and intend to start their campaign tonight in the Western Football Conference season opener.

The Eskimos arrived in Winnipeg Monday night and coach Neill Armstrong's pre-game assessment was simple:

"We think we have a better football team because the offense is better."

General manager Earl Lunsford earlier made it clear is all concerned that the Bombers have to come through.

"We're facing one of the most important games we'll ever face," he said.

Most observers feel the game —scheduled for 8 p.m. CDT— will be the first locking of horns in a battle for third place and the final playoff position. There will be no television coverage.

Eskimos finished third last year, Winnipeg managed only three wins in 16 games compared to the Edmonton record of eight wins, seven losses and a tie. Edmonton won two of the three games against the Bombers.

Armstrong also announced his last cut Monday night, paring his team to the allowable 14 imports and 18 Canadians.

Veteran linebacker Greenard Poles showed poorly during Edmonton's four exhibition games and was released after much soul-searching, Armstrong said, adding that he wouldn't be surprised if the Canadian is picked up quickly.

The extra import position created by the release will be used to shore up the offense, where Edmonton has concentrated its pre-season work.

As indications of his new offensive strength, Armstrong pointed to rookie import receivers Karl Sneider, a split end from Augsburg College, and flanker Terry Swam from Colorado State University.

With the cutoff set for 4 p.m. CDT today, Bombers had to release three players. Four were cut Monday, one of them a Canadian.

Coach Joe Zaleski showed enough confidence in his defensive squad to drop Jim Avery, who gave an impressive performance during the Bombers' exhibition swing.

Newcomber Joe Critchlow was named to the front four in his place and Lunsford's descriptions of him range from "devastating" to "tremendous."

To take advantage of Critchlow's speed and mobility, it is thought Zaleski may move him inside to a tackle position, bringing him that much closer to the quarterback.

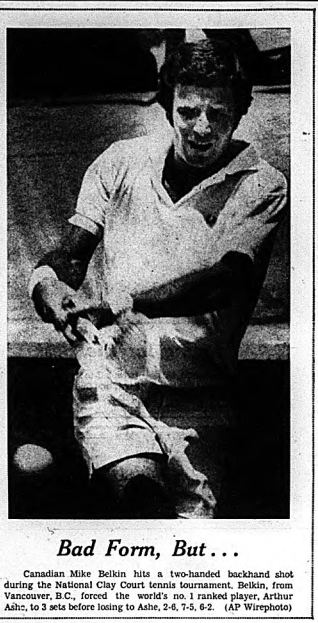
Such a shift would probably bring either Roger Hamelin or Glen Schapansky to the outside.

In exhibition, Edmonton won two and lost two while Bombers won one, tied one and lost two.

Football And The Single Girl

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (AP) — Told that no women are allowed in the press box at Yale Bowl, syndicated columnist Elinor Kaine has gone to court in an attempt to report on the New York Jets-New York Giants exhibition football game Aug. 17.

She has obtained an order from a superior court judge ordering Yale and three other defendants to show why they should not allow her "equal opportunity" under federal and state civil rights acts.



The 1957 graduate of Smith College writes a column called Football and the Single Girl.

She is seeking a court injunction to force Yale, the New York Giants Football Club Inc., the New York Jets Football Club Inc. and Bill Guthrie, New Haven Journal Courier sports editor, to issue credentials to her so she may cover the game.

Guthrie, handling press arrangements for the game, was listed in the suit as telling Miss Kaine she could not cover the game from the press box.

Her lawyer, Allan R. Johnson, said reasons given for the denial included tradition that only men be allowed in the press box and the fact that there are open rest rooms in the press box.

Superior court judge John C. FitzGerald is to hear the other side of the case from Yale and other defendants in a hearing Aug. 7 in New Haven.

Athletic Leadership Camps Give 1,200 Students Holiday Studies

LONGFORD MILLS, Ont. (CP) — At least two weeks of summer are all play and no work for 1,200 high school students at two Ontario department of education athletic camps.

At the Longford Mills camp, a 150-acre holiday retreat on the east shore of Lake Couchiching, students are spending two weeks in a leadership training course that includes up to six hour-long instruction periods a day.

But the subjects aren't burdensome—girls do everything from golfing to folk dancing while the boys wrestle and play soccer. The camp caters to two groups of girls in July and two of boys in August.

At the Bark Lake camp, 45 miles north of Peterborough, with its secluded log cabins, the three-week co-educational courses concentrate more on arts, crafts and camping.

"Primarily our purpose here is to train the students so they will be able to assist their teachers in their school's sports program," says camp director Helen Gurney.

"But we also use the camp as a recruiting centre and try to soft-sell students the prospect of becoming physical education teachers."

To be accepted for the camp —and there are far more applications than spaces—a student must have completed Grade 11, be 15 to 17 years old, and either stand in the upper third of his class or be particularly sports-minded.

Recently, Ontario Education Minister William Davis visited the two camps, in which his department invested $128,000 this year.

"We don't have near enough of these camps," he said later, "and I'd like to see the day when we could double our present accommodation so at least four students from each of Ontario's 540 secondary schools could take the training courses."

Lowly Lions Cut Former Backfield Ace

VANCOUVER (CP) — Leroy Sledge, who came to Vancouver three seasons ago billed as the saviour of the British Columbia Lions' back-field, Monday was chopped from the Western Football Conference club.

Sledge, a 22-year-old offensive halfback, came to the Lions in 1967 after two years of college ball. That season, he made the longest single gains through the air and along the ground.

Coach Jim Champion expected great things from Sledge in the 1968 season, but injuries and a weight problem slowed him down.

This year, Sledge checked in as ordered at 220 pounds and Champion moved him to split end. However, last Wednesday in an exhibition game against Toronto Argonauts, Sledge dropped two potential touchdown passes.

"I just don't think he did enough to be kept around," said Champion. "He was given every chance to make the team, but he didn't seem to be concentrating on football."

Sledge declined a chance to play in the Continental League, said Champion, and he may try and catch on with another CFL team. However, the other eight CFL clubs passed up the opportunity to catch sledge on waivers.

Because his college class has not yet graduated, Sledge has never been drafted by a U.S. pro team. And last year, he had trouble with the U.S. draft board which further complicated his playing eligibility there.

18 Canadians to Maccabiah Games

TEL AVIV (CP) — The Eighth Maccabiah Games, with Jewish athletes from 26 countries including a 18-member contingent from Canada participating, opened Monday amid colorful flags, pomp and pageantry. The Games, founded in 1932 to honor the memory of Judah Maccabee and his brothers, who drove the Romans out of Israel, are held every four years. The teams marched out with the Canadians wearing cowboy hats, the French bellbottom trousers and the U.S. team carrying the American flag. A record 1,600 athletes are competing this year. Canada's top hope is Abby Hoffman of Toronto, favorite in the women's 400- and 800-metre track events. Other Canadians are entered in weightlifting, shooting, judo, fencing, swimming, wrestling and other events.

No More Shea Stadium Laugh-ins; Mets Get Serious About Pennant

NEW YORK (AP) — If Gil Hodges can help it, there'll never be another Shea Stadium laugh-in at New York Mets' expense.

After seven tragic-comic years in never-never land, the Mets finally have begun taking themselves seriously.

The Mets, who lost 120 games and finished 40½ lengths down the track in their first National League season, trail Chicago Cubs, East Division leaders, by five games today as the current race turns into August and September.

"I think we can go all the way," said Jerry Koosman, 25, the southpaw who teams with 15-game winner Tom Seaver to give the Mets one of baseball's finest left- and right-handed pitching tandems.

In other seasons, the words morale and momentum were unheard of in the Met clubhouse. The magnificent misfits of Casey Stengel's 1962-65 regime were too busy laughing at each other and feeling sorry for themselves. That futility carried over to later, and younger, Met teams.

"We used to sit around and mumble, wondering how are we gonna close today," recalled left fielder Cleon Jones, who has blossomed into one of the league's best hitters three years after his arrival in New York. "Now everybody's saying 'I'm gonna get the winning base hit today.'

"We never feel overmatched against anyone anymore."

Beating themselves kept the Mets mired in the NL cellar until 1966, when manager Wes Westrum brought them in ninth. But they slipped back to the last spot the following year, prompting Westrum's exit and the hiring of Hodges, an original Met who had piloted Washington Senators to a surprising tie for sixth place in the American League.

Hodges rejoined the Mets a year after Johnny Murphy was named general manager of the struggling tailenders. The pair immediately committed themselves to fielding a young, aggressive club.

The Met players, however, didn't start thinking like winners until the second month of the 1969 season. Beginning on May 28, the club reeled off 11 consecutive victories, vaulting from fourth place in the East to second.

"That was the turning point," said Murphy.

"We'd lost three in a row at Houston and another one at home to San Diego. Then we turned around and showed everybody we could win. It created an esprit de corps. The players started believing maybe they weren't as bad as they'd always been pictured."

Are the Mets really thinking pennant?

"We can't go on without thinking about it," said Seaver, 24-year-old ace of one of the majors' youngest pitching staffs. "It's the only way.

Benvenuti Takes Writer to Court To Prove Title

BOLOGNA, Italy (AP) — Nino Benvenuti, world middleweight boxing champion, is involved with a court battle with a sports writer who questioned Nino's claim to the crown. Benvenuti Still Champion? was the headline over an article written June 26 by Nando Pensa in a Milanese newspaper. Pensa suggested that those in the boxing world who count consider Nigerian Dick Tiger the champ. Benvenuti filed a complaint against Pensa Monday alleging defamation of professional standing. The head of the Bologna police investigative squad relayed the complaint to Milan for legal action. Benvenuti dropped a 15-round non-title fight to Tiger in New York in May. He suffered a broken finger on his right hand during the fight. Doctors said Monday Benvenuti's finger was healing well and that he would have no trouble resuming his ring career.

STOP KILLING YOURSELF

Author of "The Doctor Looks At Life"
By Peter J. Steincrohn, M.D., F.A.C.P.

Soon I will be accused of not only taking candy away from kids — but also of taking it away from grownups.

For example, consider the familiar licorice stick, or any other form of licorice candy. Who would even suspect that licorice might hold at a threat to health and well-being?

Yet, recent investigations have shown that (in some persons) it can cause serious complications such as rise in blood pressure, fall in the important potassium content in the blood, and paralysis.

Mind you, I am not suggesting that everyone who has a hankering for licorice stop it entirely. But I think you ought to know that, just as some can't take aspirin, there may be others who can't take licorice safely.

• • •

In a recent letter to the editor of the Journal of the American Medical Association, by Louis Pelner, M.D., of Brooklyn, New York, the doctor mentions two case histories that will explain what I mean.

One, a 58-year-old woman with a normal blood pressure soon presented herself with a pressure of 180 over 110. She was given antihypertensive drugs. About a week later she was found to be paralyzed and unable to move all four extremities."

For the preceding six months the patient had been taking a package of licorice candy daily for constipation. The paralysis cleared up within three days after the licorice was stopped and after she was given potassium. Within two weeks her blood pressure returned to normal.

The other patient was a 67-year-old woman with blood pressure of 200 over 120. Her chief complaint was weakness. For the previous four months she had been chewing two packages (ten sticks) of a licorice-containing chewing gum which she had been taking for heartburn. Her weakness cleared up after the licorice was stopped. And her blood pressure fell to 150 over 90 and remained there even though antihypertensive medicine had been discontinued.

• • •

In recent years other studies have shown some relation between eating licorice and high blood pressure. As I said, it would be unfair to take licorice away from kids — or grownups. I am not saying that everyone should stop chewing licorice. However, I am suggesting that if you have high blood pressure and extreme weakness — and chew licorice daily — ask your doctor if it is all right to continue.

• • •

For Mr. T.: Hydrocele is a collection of fluid in the membranous tissue which surrounds a testicle. The cause is often unknown. You say you have had it tapped twice during the past year, yet it fills up again. In such cases many patients rightly take the advice of their doctor and have it repaired surgically. It is considered a minor operation.

• • •

For Mrs. O.: Of course, you may be right: your child may not be getting enough to eat. But "reading" is often a debatable term. Your boy is well-developed, is growing normally and is quite active.

As your own pediatric i a says, he is getting sufficient nourishment. Are you sure that your values aren't set too high about how much he should eat every day? Some mothers are compulsive baby feeders. Why not rely on your pediatrician's evaluation and concern yourself less about your child's food intake?

• • •

For Mr. V.: Before being put in institution, blood is tested for syphilis.

Suicide and Death Crop Up in Dispute Between EFC Clubs and Cable Television

OTTAWA (CP) — Suicide and death are terms that keep cropping up in the dispute between Eastern Football Conference clubs and the cable television systems that pierce the TV blackout curtain.

As the finality of the words indicates, the situation is likely to reach the crisis stage, perhaps court action or the threat of it, before either side backs off.

But it seems questionable whether any actual deaths, of football clubs or cable TV systems, will result.

One thing is certain. The Ottawa situation, the one that has raised the loudest bleats, will continue this season as last.

Cable subscribers here will be able to watch Ottawa Rough Rider home games in their living rooms despite the EFC blackout that prohibits broadcasting by any station within 75 miles of the game city. In the Ottawa case, this prevents broadcasting by Ottawa, Cornwall and Pembroke stations.

"We're not going to start committing voluntary suicide," says a spokesman for one of Ottawa's two cable systems.

His system will continue this season to bring in signals from Kingston and Montreal stations that give cable subscribers access to Rider home games whether carried on the CBC or CTV networks.

The spokesman said in an interview his company has received "hundreds and hundreds of letters" from subscribers who said the chance to watch Ottawa home games at home is one of the key reasons they take the service. Most say they would drop the cable if it did not carry them.

The Ottawa Football Club says it lost money last year even though Riders won the Grey Cup and claims that cable TV is partly to blame.

It threatened earlier this year to ban telecasts of Rider home games unless cable companies respected the blackout. It has backed off from this position for this season but intends to renew the fight in 1970.

Lawyer Sam Berger, on the other hand, says the owners will be sold out this spring, said the stand was abandoned because it would have jeopardized TV earnings for the whole Canadian Football League, both eastern and western conferences.

The four EFC teams divided about $500,000 in TV revenue last year. The five western clubs split $50,000.

The strong call for enforcement of the blackout would be to widen it, taking in the distant stations the cable companies pick up. In the Ottawa case, this would mean denying Ottawa home games to the Kingston CBC station or the Montreal CTV station.

"That would kill us," says Murray Chercover, president of the CTV network which holds the 1969 rights to football telecasts.

Loss of these audiences would make football much less attractive as a vehicle for advertisers. Payment to the league for football rights would have to be much lower.

The CFL has already tried unsuccessfully to get the Canadian Radio-Television Commission to force cable companies to respect the blackout. It made representation during licence applications by cable companies in Ottawa and Hamilton. The Hamilton-Toronto area is the other one where cable systems have penetrated the blackout curtain.

The CRTC decided the dispute was one that should be worked out among the league, the networks and the cable companies.

Part of the reason for this decision was that no verifiable financial evidence was presented by the CFL or member clubs to back up claims that cable was hurting them.

All parties in the dispute agree that breaking the blackout causes some gate losses. But they don't agree on how much.

At a CRTC hearing last November, Mr. Berger said the Ottawa club was losing $5,000 to $80,000 a year because of cable.

Early this year, he said cable penetration for the 1969 season would trim attendance by 3,000 to 4,000 a game. With seven home games this season and an average ticket price of $4, this would mean a gate loss to the $112,000.

Gordon F. Henderson appeared at the November CRTC hearing in a dual capacity. He was then one of the Ottawa Football Club directors and also was president and a shareholder in Ottawa Cablevision Ltd., one of the systems penetrating the blackout.

Mr. Henderson suggested football people study the product they are offering and the way it is displayed.

They should take "another look" at some stadiums. Fans would always be reluctant to turn out when many seats provided a poor view of the action. He mentioned the many Ottawa seats in low, end-zone stands.

They also should look at their league.

Mr. Henderson mentioned a 1968 game at Ottawa between Riders, who led the East, and Montreal Alouettes, who were conference doormats and wound up with a dismal three wins against nine losses and two ties. Attendance at this game, with the result almost a foregone conclusion, naturally was hurt by cable.

Those two clubs, incidentally, kick off the eastern conference season here Wednesday night.

Attendance at Alouette games in recent years has been so poor that no official figures are released.

Mr. Chercover is aware of these factors. He sees the distinct possibility that Canada would wind up with "no Canadian Football League at all in a short time.

His network is not harmed by cable penetration of the blackout. In fact, it is helped because advertisers are willing to pay to get a bonus audience on cable that they would not normally reach.

But he feels it is true that cable blackout penetration "is critical to the life" of Canadian football.

Money lost by cable thinning attendance and severe imbalance in team strength in the East might bring a call for what would see the United States leagues moving into Toronto and Montreal as expansion cities, he says.

Then the CBC would cover the National Football League or the American Football League. we'd cover the other one and that would be the end of it."

What is likely to happen?

One source says copyright may be brought into play if the cable operators and the football clubs cannot work out a mutually acceptable solution.

It is impossible to copyright a public event such as a football game.

But someone broadcasting a football game may copyright the portions of the program he produces himself—for example, the advertising and the opening, halftime and closing portions of the broadcast where his commentators are introducing the game or summing it up.

Regulations forbid cable systems from altering the signals they pick up from other stations, a measure in the main adopted to prevent them from blanking out advertising messages from the originating station and substituting their own.

The system must carry a whole program segment or none of it. It could not, for example, carry only the actual play sequences of a football game and cut out the copyright portions.

So court action—a suit against a cable company which carried copyright portions of a football game—is a possibility.

There are others.

There has been talk in Ottawa of cable systems contributing to home-game attendance, buying blocks of tickets and giving them away free or at low cost to youngsters.

There is always the possibility of another appeal to the CRTC to enforce the blackout, this time perhaps with validated figures to back up the CFL argument.

And there is the chance that the cable companies and the league will find a solution between themselves before the 1970 season.

Soccer Suit

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The defunct California Clippers filed a $750,000 anti-trust suit Monday against officials of organized soccer in the United States. The Clippers, who suspended operations on June 15 this year, named as defendants the U.S. Soccer Football Association, the North American Soccer League and the California Soccer Football Association as well as some officials of these and other organizations. They contend an agreement by the USSFA and the NASL is in restraint of trade and an "illegal monopoly of organized soccer in the United States."

Glass in Dust

All Moon Rocks Seen So Far Are Similar to Those on Earth

HOUSTON (Reuters) — Scientists who disclosed that every sample of moon rock they have seen so far could have been found on earth will expose samples of lunar dust today to various forms of earth life.

The dust brought back by the Apollo 11 astronauts was discovered to contain an abundance of "wonderfully interesting, remarkably smooth, minute spheres of glass."

The scientists today continue their analysis by bringing the samples into contact with earth life, including 354 mice especially bred in a sterilized environment to make them more susceptible to infection.

The purpose is to see if moon soil, which preliminary study has shown to be free of life, very poor earth soil," contains any organisms hostile to earth life.

Scientists at the lunar receiving laboratory here consider this extremely unlikely. A first look at the organic content of the material indicated that "it would be very difficult for lunar soil to bear life," one scientist said.

Many of the scientists also are convinced that the craters of the moon, lined with globules of shiny glass, were formed by volcanic action.

A panel of research scientists agreed at a news briefing Monday night that the samples could have been found on earth. Until now, their examinations have been confined to looking through viewing ports in the vacuum chamber where the rocks are kept pending biological clearance.

Describing what they had seen through binocular microscopes, Don Morrison, a space science petrologist, said the most common type of rock appeared to be "crystalline, possibly igneous formed by fire) in nature."

Prof. Eugene Shoemaker said he is convinced the evidence so far is "overwhelming that the mare (seas) were built up by lava flows."

His colleagues were more cautious, but most agreed that the tiny glass spheres, ranging in color from brown to yellow to opague, were formed by the lunar surface being bombarded by fragments from space (meteoroids).

Mineralogists Cliff Frondel noted that similar melting of fraterial caused by the great heat of impact could be found on earth at the scene of meteorite impacts, only in the form of droplets of iron.

He added that he thought the tiny globlets of glass, showered onto the lunar surface when the gases of impact condensed, may have been responsible for the comment by astronauts Neil Armstrong and Edwin Aldrin that the lunar surface was "slippery."

He drew a comparison with walking on a floor onto which little bits of resin had been dropped.

Up to one-third of the moon dust is composed of the glass-like spheres—a scientific surprise.

"They seem to be telling us something is going on in the moon that we haven't anticipated," said Dr. Paul Gast of Lamont-Doherty Geological Observatory at Palisades, N.Y.

Dr. Frondel said "the surprise is not that the spheres are present, but their abundance."

Scientists have previously believed that cosmic dust plowing into the moon would smash most of any such spheres.

"It may well be that the abundance of these spheres may mean there is much less dust in space than anticipated," Frondell said.

Initial observations indicate the droplets contain nickel and iron.

Preliminary analysis of samples of the lunar material also has shown quantities of titanium oxide, a compound rarely found on earth.

Researchers probing around the moon dust also turned up a pebble-sized rock which looked whitish, like a pearl.

The scientists added that they had found no signs of layering, or strata formation, in a column of lunar material taken from a thin tube driven a little way into the surface with a hammer. However, this was not considered conclusive as the tubes might not driven deep and could have hit an obstruction.

Shoemaker said he believed the average age of the Sea of Tranquility, where the Apollo 11 astronauts landed, was less than 500,000,000 years. Other seas may prove to be considerably younger, he added.

The scientists also reported that they had not yet completed analysis of the gas drawn off the lunar material sample box before it was opened Sunday.

"In fact, there was very little gas—one good, deep breath for a microbe or something," remarked one investigator.

Astronauts Reflecting On Significance of Trip

HOUSTON (AP) — The Apollo 11 moonmen have been reflecting on the significance of their momentous mission and the place they will take in history, a spokesman quarantined with them reports.

"As you know, they are not outspoken people," he said. "But they feel the significance of what they have done."

John McLeavish, public affairs officer for the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, told a news conference this morning.

McLeavish is one of 14 persons lodged in the lunar receiving laboratory with Neil Armstrong, Edwin Aldrin and Michael Collins.

They will be released from quarantine Aug. 11 if they have not developed any illness and if nothing harmful has been found in the rocks they brought back from the moon.

The astronauts today conclude what is known as a "first blush" debriefing in which they report general impressions of things that occurred during the eight day mission. Generally, they discuss the operations of various spacecraft systems.

The only news persons sitting in on these taperecorded sessions are astronaut Donald Slayton, director of flight crew operations, and NASA training co-ordinator Lloyd Reeder.

On Thursday the moonmen meet key Apollo officials to begin several days of more detailed discussions.

McLeish said they discussed the lunar orbit and landing phases of the flight Monday.

Armstrong reported the engine of the lunar module Eagle kicked up considerable dust as it settled in for a touchdown. This reduced visibility but did not jeopardize the landing.

"It was not unexpected," McLeish said of the dust. He also reported Armstrong and Aldrin talked about the near-landing in a rock-filled crater, which had been reported earlier. Armstrong said the automatic controls had them zeroed in on the craggy area and that he took manual control of the Eagle to steer to a smoother spot a half-mile away.

The astronauts also reported that working in the moon's one-sixth gravity field was much easier than working in zero G—or the weightless world of an orbiting ship.

"They reported one disadvantage," McLeish said. "It tended to produce muscular laziness."

Doctors reported the astronauts continued in excellent health.

Film used by the astronauts to photograph flight and moon activities has been quarantined with them, undergoing a decontamination process.

The first pictures were expected to be released late today. They were made through the window of Eagle as it sat on the lunar surface.

Your Car

Shock Absorbers Vital

By RAY STAPLEY

A reader writes:

"I drive a two-year old V8 showing 17,000 miles, and in the past few months controlling the car at high speeds has become progressively worse. Even a week on dry pavement while on a slight curve at 70 mph, the car suddenly drifted hard left onto the median. I managed to regain control and get stopped, but the whole family was so frightened I quit driving and had the vehicle towed back to the city. About a month ago the front end was aligned and the four wheels were balanced, but obviously this is not the answer. The car is fitted with coil springs front and rear and I have been told this type of suspension tends to make the car wander at high speeds. The best confidence in this vehicle, and I guess you can suggest a definite cure I'm going to trade."

The most likely cause of this problem is defective shock absorbers. Hidden away in the undercarriage of all cars are four shock absorbers which, when functioning properly, could readily cause complete loss of control. The maxim "out of sight, out of mind" certainly applies to these four units which play such an important part in the ride and handling control of the car. I would estimate that possibly half the cars on the road today are in need of new shock absorbers, but seldom do motorists think about having them tested.

Countless accidents where the car was reported to have gone out of control for no apparent reason can be attributed to worn or inoperative shocks.

Some time ago I examined a car that had flipped over on the highway killing both occupants. The vehicle was being driven with no shocks. Apparently the driver encountered a series of bumps that would have done no harm had there been shocks on the car. According to a witness, the car hit the first bump and bounced up, then the second bouncing even higher, and then the third which proved fatal.

The primary purpose of shock absorbers is to prevent over-flexing of the car's suspension springs and to maintain wheel contact with the road in order to propel, steer and stop the vehicle.

Shock absorbers work almost constantly and absorb tremendous pressures. As someone enters the car, during a strong wind, or when the vehicle is driven over any minute road surface irregularities, they are set in action.

Temperatures of over 278 degrees F. can be generated at high speed on rough roads, and, if overheated, the fluid contained in the shocks will foam, reducing their efficiency.

If the car bounces up and down after a sudden stop, it indicates the shocks are weak or inoperative. If ignore this tell-tale warning could end in tragedy. Be sure to include shock absorbers with each routine safety check.

NOTE: Letters from readers with hard to pin-point car problems are most welcome, but please include year and model, number of cylinders, mileage, standard or automatic transmission, power equipment, brief outline of previous repairs and a self-addressed stamped envelope.

Jeane Dixon's Horoscope

Your birthday today: Your objective and view of the situation is the most important factor this year. Study the most accurate information available, then meditate until you are sure you have the proper perspective. You probably must make the essential decisions alone now. Today's natives often achieve prominence in their communities because of wit and amicable qualities.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): This is another lovely day in which everything can be fun, even if you have a lot of work. All are willing to meet you halfway. The evening is whimsical.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Again, your personal affairs run counter to your career interests. Do what you have to do for the job and then reconsider the situation as simply as can be managed. Let criticism go unanswered.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Your information is incomplete and contains contradictions! In the meantime just be practical. Attend to the immediate situation, and let decisions wait.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): The end of a long cycle - - - - here may be changes. For some, relocation is at hand. Meditate, give your intuition more chance.

LEO (July 23-August 22): Let the past, all of it, lie today. Go through your wardrobe closets for discards charity can use. Replacements should be considered later, only as the need arises; perhaps none will be necessary.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Your normal cleanliness comes in good stead today. Keep a bit of distance between yourself and strangers, avoid contagious ills. Skip the chores for once, let somebody else do them.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Speculation in either love or money causes a bad rebound today. Be straightforward and conservative, without reading special meanings into anything.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Conclude matters as they have been; consolidate your new activities and keep moving forward into the future you have planned and worked so long to achieve.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): No reason to change anything now. Nobody talks sensibly or means what he says. Travel connections are out of kilter. You can make a shopping trip, but be confused.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Seek skilled counsel, then think about the advice before acting on any financial matter. Figure that most of your plans will falter or have to be put off to another time. Keep to a light diet, exercise.

Burning Rectal Itch Relieved In Minutes

This Special Hemorrhoid Remedy Contains a Unique Healing Substance That Relieves Pain As It Shrinks Hemorrhoids

One of the most common afflictions is a condition known as "Itching Piles". It is most embarrassing for the sufferer during the day and especially aggravating at night.

If you want satisfactory relief — here's good news. A renowned research laboratory has found a unique healing substance with the ability to promptly relieve the burning and itching pain. It actually shrinks hemorrhoids. This substance has been shown in clinical tests to produce a high degree of healing. Its germ-killing properties also help prevent infection.

In one hemorrhoid case after another "very striking improvement" was reported. This improvement was maintained over a period of months! Among these sufferers were a wide variety of hemorrhoid conditions—even cases of long standing.

This was accomplished by a new healing ointment (Bio-Dyne)—developed by a well-known research institution. This substance is now obtainable in ointment or suppository form known as Preparation H. Ask for Preparation H Suppositories (convenient to carry if away from home) or Preparation H Ointment with special applicator. Available at all drug counters. Satisfaction or your money refunded.

Steel Firms' Workers May Join Inco Strikers

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

About 18,000 members of the United Steelworkers of America now on at work stoppage against two Ilternational Nickel Co. of Canada Ltd. operations in Ontario may soon be joined by another 20,000 union members employed by Canada's two largest steel producers.

The negotiating committee for Local 1005, representing about 13,500 workers at the Steel Co. of Canada Ltd.'s three plants in Hamilton, Monday set a strike deadline for midnight Thursday night if no contract settlement is reached.

At Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., a strike may also loom for about 6,800 members of Local 2251 employed by Algoma Steel Corp. Ltd. where a current three-year contract expires Thursday.

Workers employed by Inco at its Sudbury and Port Colborne plants started a work stoppage July 10—termination of their old contract—when no agreement for a new contract was reached.

The deadline for strike action against Stelco was contained in a progress report on negotiations issued by union representatives. But they asked members to keep it "cool" as negotiations continue in Toronto.

The committee said that negotiations will continue until the strike deadline.

The outcome of negotiations between the union and Stelco is expected to serve as a pattern for workers at Algoma and for another 5,000 Stelco employees across Canada.

Stelco union members are asking for a $1.40-an-hour increase in wages and fringe benefits in a two-year contract. The company has offered 95 cents an hour over three years.

Stelco workers now earn an average of $3.12 an hour.

At Algoma, the union did not disclose the wage increases it wants, but John Ferris, president of the local said they are "substantial."

Mr. Ferris, however, has ruled out immediate strike action.

"We have taken the position that there is too much at stake to rush into either an unsatisfactory contract or an unnecessary strike," he said.

Members of Local 2251 now are being paid a minimum of $2.51 an hour and a maximum of $4.31.

At Inco, company officials last week raised their wage increase offer to $1.05 an hour from 95 cents in a three-year agreement. The union has not accepted its demands, but they are believed to be in excess of $1.50 an hour.

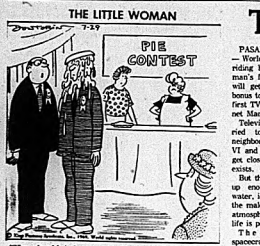
Wages under the last three-year agreement averaged $3.06 an hour.

Negotiations for a settlement at Inco continued until last Friday, but were adjourned for an indefinite period.

Homer Seguin, president of Local 6500, said his local is seeking the highest rates in Canadian basic industry.

Prior to the work stoppage, which the company calls a strike, average wages for workers were $3.09 an hour.

A long work stoppage at Inco is expected to affect steel industries in the United States, Western Europe and Japan.



Inco produces about 1,000,000 pounds of nickel a day and exports about 98 per cent of it, 50 per cent to the United States. The company produces about 50 per cent of total consumption by the western world.

TV Viewers to See Mars Tonight

PASADENA, Calif. (Reuters) — World television viewers, still riding high from watching man's first walk on the moon, will get another space-age bonus tonight when they see the first TV pictures of the red planet Mars.

Television cameras being carried toward earth's nearest neighbor planed by the Mariner VI and VII spacecraft will not gox close enough to show if life exists.

But they are expected to pick up enough information about water, ice and soil on Mars and the makeup and intensity of its atmosphere to reveal whether life is possible.

The two windmill-shaped spacecraft, which set off from Cape Kennedy nearly five months ago, will swoop down to within 2,000 miles of the Martian surface.

The cameras of Mariner VI were switched on Monday night but the pictures stored inside the craft will not be transmitted back to earth until tonight (8:35 p.m. EDT).

Mariner VI took its first photograph at 10:26 p.m. PDT Monday night (1:26 a.m. EDT today). Scientists said the camera was working well.

Vice-President Spiro T. Agnew, who as head of the president's space advisory council advocates manned exploration of Mars, arranged to be at the Jet Propulsion Laboratory to watch the photographs come in.

Television watchers across the globe should be able to see a two-hour, 52-minute transmission of a series of 33 still photographs through a satellite relay.

But the Jet Propulsion Laboratory, where the Mariners' pictures are being received, does not know yet how many countries will be hooked up to the transmission.

In the United States, a number of educational stations are expected to broadcast all 12 hours of transmission from the two Mariners while commercial stations will interrupt regular programs to show key pictures.

Mariner VI will reach its closest point to Mars Wednesday and Mariner VII Monday. The first will concentrate on filming the equator region of Mars and the second will focus on the equator, southern hemisphere and South Pole areas.

The brightness of the planet itself will be used to keep the television cameras properly directed and focused.

The films are expected to clear up theories that Mars has polar ice caps like earth and that the rest of the planet is covered with moss.

The two Mariner flights are forerunners of an unmanned flight scheduled for 1973, called Project Viking, when two spacecraft will orbit Mars and detach landing crafts to descend and operate on the surface of the planet.

Laboratory officials here said they realize the Apollo 11 flight has overshadowed the Mariner mission. But they believe that the Mariners' passes near the Martian surface may prove as important in space exploration as the moon feat.

Homes Become Arsenals

WASHINGTON (CP-AP) — A presidential commission investigating violence in the United States says that a domestic arms race has turned many U.S. homes into arsenals and created a situation so dangerous that its elimination must be national policy.

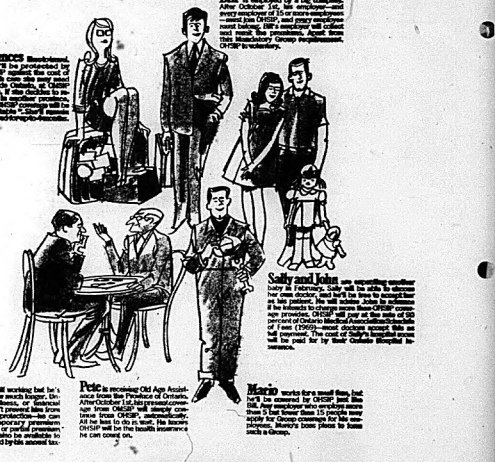
In a message Monday that reported that 24,000,000 pistols now are in private hands in the U.S., the anti-violence commission called for the near-total removal of the concealable handgun from American life.

The commission said gunfire accounted for 63 per cent of the 12,100 homicides reported in 1968.

President Nixon was urged to ask Congress for laws enabling states to license all owners of [illegible] their possession to those who can prove they need them. Stiff penalties would be provided for illegal possession.

Under the plan, the federal government would move to license handgun owners if a state failed to act within four years after passage of the federal law. Licences would be limited to police officers, security guards, small businesses in high crime areas and others with a special need for self-protection.

The federal government should earmark $500,000,000 — about $20 a gun—to pay owners for the pistols turned in under the proposed law, the commission said.



Dr. Milton S. Eisenhower, chairman of the national commission on the causes and prevention of violence, urged at a news conference the quick start of a federal program to develop an efficient non-lethal weapon to replace the pistol.

In its statement, the commission supported the essential findings of a staff report which said the quantidng of handgun sales has moved the U.S. closer to mass violence.

"Civil disorders have stimulated gun buying and the growth of black and white extremist groups, leaving this country with a dangerous legacy: the highly explosive combination of fear and firearms," the staff report said.

The study report said most right-wing para-military groups have turned their attention from the fear of external Communist invasion to the fear of internal black marauders. This has led to the proliferation of neighborhood protective associations, it said.

Recent heavy rains have left their mark along the Moira River as this scene shows near Cannifton Road dam yesterday. Trees, even the base of the Lifeguard's tower, are under water. Egypt's New Air Force Loses First Challenge

WASHINGTON (AP) — The rebuilt Egyptian Air Force's first attempt to challenge Israeli air superiority since the Middle East war two years ago has failed, U.S. analysts say.

As a result, analysts say they believe the United Arab Republic lacks the air power necessary to support a major ground attack across the Suez canal into the Sinai.

Instead, military experts forecast the U.A.R. will concentrate in the months ahead on intensified local attacks on Israeli positions along the Suez canal and on low-level, hit-and-run air strikes with shallow penetration of Israeli air space.

This is seen as the significance of about two weeks of heavy air fighting in the Suez canal area—fighting accompanied by new threats by Egyptian President Nasser.

In substance, the U.S. experts feel the Russians have succeeded in re-equipping the shattered Egyptian Air Force and training substantial numbers of new pilots who, however, still fall short of matching the Israeli Air Force in combat.

The U.S. assessments, gathered from a variety of sources, coincide with the judgments expressed by Israeli military officers stationed here. Egyptian military sources were not available and Syrian spokesmen refused to discuss military matters.

UN Closes Three Posts Along Suez

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — Three United Nations observation posts along the Suez canal —one on Israel's side, the others on Egypt's—have been closed down temporarily, the UN announced Tuesday.

A Swedish member of the ceasefire observation team was killed on the Egyptian side Sunday by Israeli artillery fire.

A UN spokesman told reporters that the chief observer, Lt.-Gen. Odd Bull of Norway, had closed down Observation Posts Red and Kilo because the shelters there were "totally inadequate" for the observers' safety, and Observation Post Mike because its water supply and electrical system had been knocked out.

Red is on the Israeli side of the canal and the other two posts are on the Egyptian side, all toward the south end of the canal.

Guerrillas Attacked

TEL AVIV (Reuters) — Israeli planes today struck at Arab guerrilla bases in the southern foothills of Mount Hermon range, on the Syrian-Lebanese border, a military spokesman announced.

Saigon Visit Under 6 Hours

SAIGON (AP) — President Nixon flew to Saigon today and said the United States and South Vietnam "have gone as far as we can or should go in opening the door to peace," in Vietnam.

"It is time for the other side to respond," Nixon said in a broadcast speech with President Nguyen Van Thieu at his side. Nixon's stay in Vietnam lasted slightly less than six hours. He returned to Thailand to continue his world tour, with India the next stop.

Nixon said the United States and South Vietnam have made a peace offer "which is as generous as any ever made in the history of warfare."

"It is a peace of reconciliation that is offered," Nixon said, "a peace in which the people will decide, a peace that is just for both sides, a peace which is fair in both sides, a peace which offers an equal chance to both sides.

"We have gone as far as we can or should go in opening the door to peace and now it is time for the other side to respond. Otherwise the other side must assume the responsibility for the continuing suffering among the people who have already suffered much too long both in South and North Vietnam."

Without advance notice and under tight security and secrecy, Nixon and his wife interrupted a three-day stay in nearby Thailand during their round-the-world trip for the quick dash into South Vietnam by presidential jetliner.

Nixon flew into Tan San Nhut airport at the South Vietnamese capital, then went by helicopter to the heart of the city for a 2½-hour conference with South Vietnamese President Nguyen Van Thieu at Independence Palace.

Then Nixon left the palace lawn by helicopter for the eight-mile trip to Di An, a brigade headquarters of the 1st Infantry Division northeast of Saigon.

U.S. military sources said Di An was relatively safe during daylight hours but could properly be termed a combat field operation post.

Mrs. Nixon, meanwhile, also moved about with an aerial escort of some 20 armed helicopters. She flew to a Vietnamese orphanage several miles north of Saigon and called at an evacuation hospital at the big Long Binh base nearby. Wounded arrive at the hospital from the battlefield.

Nixon arrived in the midst of a lull in the war which now is in its sixth week.

More U.S. Troops Quit Asia

SAIGON (AP) — Another 750 U.S. troops left Vietnam today under President Nixon's plan to cut U.S. strength by 25,000 men by the end of August.

The 4th Battalion, 39th Infantry of the 9th Infantry Division boarded planes at Bien Hoa Air Base north of Saigon for Hawaii. The battalion had been in Vietnam since Jan. 3, 1967.

The U.S. command said the latest departure raised to 7,403 the number of American servicemen withdrawn from Vietnam since Nixon announced the cut June 8.

Photos of Mars Show Some New Features

PASADENA, Calif. (CP) — The windmill-shaped Mariner VI, sending to earth the most detailed pictures of Mars ever seen, today closed in to make a photographic pass 2,130 miles above the surface of the red planet.

The 850-pound spacecraft will sweep across the Martian surface for 25 minutes beginning at 10:18 p.m. (1:18 a.m.) E.D.T., Thursday.

The first photos transmitted back to earth from 771,000 miles above the surface Tuesday night were no clearer than pictures taken through telescopes.

But at the 10th picture, taken at about 650,000 miles above Mars, scientists at the Jet Propulsion Labratory here said "we are now seeing Mars in more detail than man has ever seen it before."

The frames were taken 10,000 miles apart.

The long-shot photos showed features new to scientists: ragged edges of the mystery planet's south polar ice cap, perhaps due to mountains or craters, and a dark spot in the cap's centre.

A laboratory spokesman said static interfered with television reception but much better photos will be obtained by running the signals through a computer, eliminating the noise, then printing them photographically.

A second series of 17 long shots of the planet will be transmitted to earth at 9 p.m. EDT tonight and are expected to show the South Pole in even clearer detail.

But the most keenly awaited pictures — the "close-ups" of Mars' surface — will not be relayed directly on television screens because the computer process of reconstructing them is too complicated. They will be printed up and distributed to the press Friday.

Pope's Visit to Uganda His Most Testing Foreign Journey

VATICAN CITY (Reuters) — Pope Paul flies to Uganda Thursday on the eighth and possibly the most testing foreign journey of his six-year reign.

It will be the first visit to Africa by a reigning Roman Catholic pontiff.

Ever since his triumphant visit to South America in August last year, there has been little doubt here that Africa would be one of the Pope's first destinations when he decided to travel again.

It is the only major continent he has not yet visited as pope, and an area of remarkable achievement for the Roman Catholic Church, where the number of Catholics has risen to 30,000,000 from about 2,000,000 in the last 50 years.

It also is one of the world's principal developing areas, for which the Pope has repeatedly shown his concern.

The Pope's special interest in Africa was aroused the year before he came to the throne, when, as Archbishop of Milan, he went on an extensive tour of the continent.

"He was deeply impressed by what he saw," a senior Vatican official who travelled with him said recently. "He was moved both by the outgoing warmth of the people and by their deep religious fervor."

The pope also is acutely aware of the difficulties the church faces as a result of changes which have taken place there in the post-colonial era.

He has made a point of replacing white, missionary bishops and clergy with African ones wherever possible.

Two years ago he made a determined effort to dissociate the church from paternalism and colonialism, and to stress its admiration for native African values and culture.

Having decided to visit Africa and meet its people in person, the pope selected Uganda as his obvious destination.

The country is a model for the church in Africa. About 3,000,000 people, more than one-third of the population, are Catholics. It has produced the first black African bishop, the first black African priests, the first black African community of nuns, the first African diocese given over entirely to native priests, and the first black African saints.

The 22 saints, to whom the Pope will consecrate an altar during his visit, also are the most perfect models of sainthood in modern times.

Young converts to catholicism in the 1880s, and none of them priests, they chose to defy their bloodthirsty king rather than betray their faith. They actively sought martyrdom, and some tried to imitate Christ's death on the cross—even by using the same words—as they were slowly tortured to death.

By a happy coincidence, bishops from all over Africa had decided to hold their first-ever meeting in Uganda before the Pope decided to go there.

The symposium, which the Pope will close Thursday night, is aimed principally at deciding whether the bishops should set up their own permanent continental conference despite the differences of race, language and culture among them.

'Search for the African Soul'

KAMPALA, Uganda (Reuters) — Workers today put finishing touches on arrangements for Pope Paul's visit here Thursday—the first visit to Africa by a reigning pontiff.

In an impassioned appeal at a news conference here Tuesday, Paul Cardinal Zoungrana of Upper Volta said the search for the African soul is the major need for African clergy today.

The cardinal also said the questions of married priests and birth control—which trouble the rest of the Catholic world—are not relevant to the continent's 30,000,000 faithful.

He said members of the church from outside Africa who chose to remain must learn to look at life through African eyes.

In a rebuke to church members in the U.S. and Europe, the cardinal said "our realities are different from realities elsewhere. . . . Europe wants to make certain experiments but it wants Africa to take the first step."

Summer Employment

Expected Student Work Crisis Fails to Materialize

The extreme summer job shortage predicted for students in Ontario has failed to materialize.

John Nelles, director of the student job campaign for the federal Department of Manpower, said that 300,000 of 357,000 students seeking jobs as the summer began have found employment.

Locally, there is a significant increase in the availability of jobs.

"A general survey of employers in the Belleville area shows 92.2 percent increase in jobs over last summer," said Eric Ferguson, counsellor at the student placement centre on Dundas Street.

At the present time there are approximately 800 students registered with the local student manpower department.

"From our indications, we didn't think that there would be an extreme job shortage in the Belleville area. As compared with other job centres, our centre is a community venture, explained Mr. Ferguson.

Increase in industrial productivity is one important factor that has helped the local centre help more students, according to placement authorities.

Throughout the province, there have been similar reactions to the student job situation.

"We expected a crisis and it hasn't occurred," said Rev. Thomas McLillop, one of the organizers of Summer Assistance to Youth (SAY), which has 11 job centres in Toronto.

The Manpower department reduced by 50 percent the number of foreign students entering Canada for farm work to make more jobs available for Canadians.

Mr. Nelles said that many students refused agricultural jobs early in the summer, but now almost all such jobs are likely to be filled as the tobacco and fruit harvest draws nearer.

A survey in Ottawa showed that 89 per cent of students had found work, another four per cent had decided they did not want work, and the remainder were still looking.

Twenty-five student placement centres were set up in the province, with good results, because employers knew where to find them. "In many of these places we have run out of students," Mr. Nelles said.

Belleville Man Mayor Of Windsor

A former Belleville man who at one time worked for the Intelligencer is now Mayor of the city of Windsor.

He is William C. Riggs who this week was appointed chief magistrate by Mayor John Wheelton who has retired from the office.

Mr. Riggs, who worked as a linotype operator at the Intelligencer until he moved to the Border city in the early 1930's has been an alderman on Windsor council for the past 19 years.

He won the honor of the mayor's office over three other contenders when he drew the highest card from a deck of playing cards to break the four-way tie.

But Mr. Riggs has no intention of running for mayor in the December election and still hasn't made up his mind whether he will seek re-election as alderman.

Underwater Carpet Not Answer Here

Owners of shoreline property in the Quinte area some day may have swimming areas free of weeds by installing an underwater plastic carpet.

But installation costs could be prohibitive in public areas — like Belleville harbor, currently infested with its heaviest weed growth in years.

Harbor master Donald Barrett says he's heard of the carpet idea but believes its cost application over a large water area like the city's harbor would be "beyond comprehension."

Instead, the harbor commission next year will tackle the annually-recurring problem with chemicals.

The carpet scheme comes from Minneapolis where a suburban scientist has developed sheets of poly-vinyl chloride for lining lake bottoms in weedy but potential swimming areas.

"The sheets create a swimming pool in a lake or an otherwise unusable beach," says Leroy Bushay, president of Scientific Fabrications, of Minneapolis. "It's like mulching your garden — when you cut off the sunlight you kill the growth. It's fun to swim on and pleasant to wade in — like carpeting on your beach."

The plastic sheets, dark green in color, are opaque — thus shutting out sunlight. Perforations allow gas to escape from decaying underwater growth without causing bubbles under the carpet.

Bushay said sandbags are used to weigh down the sheets, which, he says, will last up to five years after installation.

"We're shooting for a cost of between $50 and $100 for an averaged size lot," he adds.

Beach carpet for such a lot would be about 30 by 75 feet.

Belleville's harbor commissioners however will stick to more conventional methods in efforts to rid the public dock-area of its annual nuisance.

For one thing, the harbor is some 250 feet wide and about 1500 feet long, estimates Mr. Barrett. Commission funds could not match such an outlay.

Chemicals endorsed by such anti-pollution public watchdogs as the Ontario Water Resources Commission are not available and the commission already has plans to put them to use in 1970.

Injection of weedkiller in the harbor was actually scheduled this year.

However, by the time official procedures are complied with, the deadline for such a shock — between mid-May and mid-June — was passed.

Before chemicals are used, property owners along the shoreline must be notified and permission formally sought from the OWRC, Mr Barrett said.

Meantime, harvesting harbor weeds continues by hand, the undergrowth being forcefully raked loose and trucked to the city dump.

Rapid growth of the 1969 growth is baffling harbor authorities.

Veteran commission employee Eugene Rosebush says it's the heaviest he's known in 25 years of service.

It's also a year of high water — levels are more than 14 feet at the government dock — compared to an average 12 feet and less than 10 feet for a recorded low.

In other years high water has reduced the weed mass and harbor officials are still pondering an explanation at the current phenomenon.

No Cheers for This Bumper Crop

It's a bumper year for underwater weeds — and a busy time for Belleville harbor workers. Eugene Rosebush piles up latest harvest raked from harbor bed where weeds are in abundance despite high water levels.

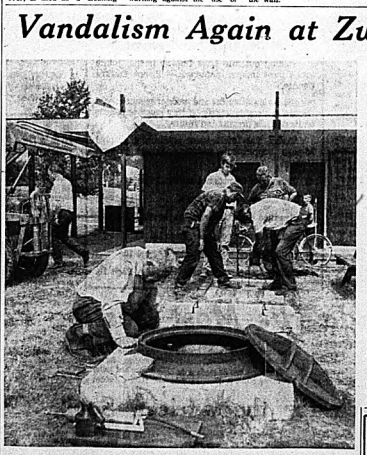
Extinguisher Warning Given

If you have a carbon tetrachloride fire extinguisher in your home, beware.

Over the past number of years research has been conducted into such fire extinguishers and it has been discovered that when carbon tetrachloride is exposed to heat a poisonous gas is given off.

The gas, phosgene, was used in the First World War as a weapon. It causes the victim to choke and in a matter of moments renders him unconscious and virtually doomed.

Carbon tetrachloride, however, is used as a cleaning agent but again caution is advised in its use. If prolonged contact is made with the skin the substance penetrates the pores, and dehydrates and removes the oxygen from the body. If it is breathed into the lungs damage to the respiratory system is the result. This is the reason why a ventilated area is required for the safe use of carbon tetrachloride.



"The damage to the body, as a result of the carbon tetrachloride" says Robert Fair, a fire inspector, "leaves no real chance of recovery or repair".

The fire department has been warning against the use of these fire extinguishers and many companies will not recharge them because of the danger. However, no legal action has been initiated.

One area where they are illegal is in boats and commercial vehicles. "This is one area that their use has finally been curbed", says Mr. Fair.

Fire regulations recommend the use of class "B" fire extinguishers which include powder, carbon dioxide, and fog types in handling a fire but in many garage areas, according to Mr. Fair, the carbon tetrachloride fire extinguishers are still hanging on the wall.

Vandalism Again at Zwick's

Vandalism has gone underground at Zwick's Island.

This time the depredation had unpleasant results — in more ways than one.

While scores of sunbathers and strollers idled in breeze - cooled sunshine workers and tradesmen toiled through the day to repair damage to the island parkway's sewage disposal system.

The tie - up was caused after concrete slabs, estimated weighing up to 200 pounds, were thrown into septic tanks near the park's canteen Monday night.

A parks crew spent all day stemming to retrieve four of the six hefty slabs covering the tanks and the sewage disposal pumping system.

An electrical contractor was called in to repair part of the pumping apparatus damaged on impact with the concrete blocks.

Earlier this year recurring thefts by pranksters almost caused flags of all the provinces to be lowered permanently at the park's impressive entranceway.

However, parks officials said the Monday night incident was far more costly to resolve.

Repairing the Damage

Work crew seeks to retrieve 200-pound concrete slabs thrown in Zwick's Island septic tank system. Pumping apparatus was damaged when tank covers were heaved below ground by vandals.

The Experts Say

Old Styles Never Back In Fashion

TORONTO (CP) — If you have an old favorite dress in the back of the closet, and you are thinking, goodie, it's back in style, you may be in for a surprise. Being in style is more than shortening a hem, says Cathy Carroll.

"It's all in the cut they are doing now, and in the fabric, and what they can do for your figure.

"If you have dresses that have been hanging in the closet for some time, and you have read that belts are back, you may think all you have to do is drag them out of the closet.

"Put them on and look in the mirror. You have to look to see what's wrong. They're matronly."

Miss Carroll is fashion adviser for Uniroyal Ltd., and a free-lance fashion co-ordinator.

She says the difference is that sleeves have been cut closer under the arms, the skirt fits more easily around the stomach, the bodice is cut better and you don't have to wear a belt exactly at the waist.

"Women say to me, what are we going to do, we can't buy anything. One thing I tell them is if you see the style and the color you like, try it on. The cuts are so different, you can no longer make up your mind you wear a particular size."

Miss Carroll says fashion is not the bully it's reputed to be. She considers it a guide.

"It's not true you have to wear what you are told. Never has the average woman had more opportunity to choose what she prefers. There are straight skirts, full skirts, short shorts, and the short two inches above the knee. Now we're going into the maxi-length."

She says three-quarters of the coats she saw in recent New York shows were maxi-length, and she will be interested to see how they do. She says that the fact they are in shows and high-style fashion magazines does not mean everyone is expected to buy them.

"When fashion shows the first long coat as a far-out thing, it doesn't mean you are going to wear it now. It is educating you to get used to the idea. . . .

"I keep my eye on the shoes when I watch for changes. Now the shoes are getting higher heels, but staying chunky. Stand in front of a three-way mirror and look. The minute you have a higher heel and a very short dress, there is something wrong with the picture, it comes over Minnie Mouse.

"The appearance of the long maxi-skirt and the high heel means things are going back to normal, or what we have thought of as normal."

Getting down to specifics for the fall, she says accessories will be important.

"The in-thing accessory is a scarf for fall. It can be any length, it can be anything, knit, anything.

"Fake furs are in in shoulder bags, scarves, sports clothes.

"Knee boots are still the smartest thing for sportswear, and not just for teeny-boppers.

"Shoes have a higher, bulkier heel, and are still built up on the instep.

"Hats may be that tam bit you pull way down, a bit the Bonnie-and-Clyde look still, or they may be the slouch, the Garbo look again.

"Boots are still in, with the higher, chunkier look, and fitting like a glove.

"In jewelry there are the rings. You don't even have enough fingers. Pearls are in as chains were in, but you can mix them, make a belt of them."

Keeping Abreast of the Times Is Key to Modelling Success: Model

TORONTO (CP) — Keeping abreast of the times is the key to success in modelling, says a 23-year-old Toronto model who shares her profession with her 19-year-old daughter.

"Don't stand still and say 'I like it the old way'," advises Jean Williams, in private life a housewife and mother of two. "You've got to keep trying new styles and hairdos. Be flexible. Change with the times."

She says that when she "first saw the ugly chunky shoes, I thought I would never wear them. They looked so cumbersome, I changed my mind about them, though, and was one of the first to wear them."

Mrs. Williams and her daughter Wendy will model fashions at this year's Canadian National Exhibition opening in mid-August.

"We've modelled together in fashion shows before," says Mrs. Williams. "The difference is that I've been modelling for 22 years and Wendy started a year ago.

"I started modelling when I was 15, married at 17 and had my first child at 19. I don't feel hesitant about mentioning the fact that I'll be 39 in January.

"The way I feel is that if you think young, you feel young. A healthy body and attitude of mind reflect in your face."

Wendy says growing up and seeing her mother modelling on stage made her decide to be a model. "It was always so exciting seeing my mother up there and I grew up wanting to be a model."

"I love having a fresh hairdo, getting made up and then wearing all those lovely clothes in front of an audience," says Wendy.

How does her mother feel about Wendy entering the same profession?

"I'm proud of her, naturally. She hasn't had any training and I've never had to show her how to put eyeliner or make-up on. She watched me and applied the same techniques."

Brown-haired, green-eyed Mrs. Williams, who stands five foot 6¼ inches and measures 36-24½-34½, earns up to $35 an hour as a model. Her brown-haired, blue-eyed daughter, who is five foot eight with 34-23-35 statistics, earns $30 an hour.

Family Reunions

KETCHESON CLAN

Ninety representatives of one of Hastings County pioneer families, the descendants of William Ketcheson, U.E.L., who came to Canada in 1786, assembled at O'Hara's Mill, Madoc, for their 30th reunion.

Following the dinner in the log schoolhouse, Douglas Ketcheson presided over the business meeting. A minute of silence was observed for the deceased members including Mrs. Lee Ketcheson, Holloway; Mrs. Fred Elliott, Belleville; Mrs. Jessie Gray, Ottawa; Mrs. Clare Campbell, Bloomfield and Mrs. Hazel Perry of Weston, and Sherman Foster, Hillier and Elgin Post, Madoc.

Prizes were awarded as follows: oldest man, George Ketcheson, Madoc; oldest woman, Mrs. Edna Ashley, Stirling; youngest baby, Susan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Grant Ketcheson, Madoc. Most recent bride and bridegroom, Mr. and Mrs. A. F. Gamble, Sudbury. Lucky draws, Miss Lauren White, Roslin; Mrs. Marion Clarke, Sudbury and David Gamble.

Various officers were elected for the coming year: past president, Douglas Ketcheson, Foxboro; president, Professor Jack Ketcheson, Ottawa; vice-president, Grant Ketcheson, Madoc; and secretary-treasurer, Mrs. Nelson Welsh, Belleville, and historical secretary, Mrs. Taylor Franklin, Belleville. Several committee members were also elected.

It was decided to have the picnic next year on Sunday, July 26 in Tweed Memorial Park. It is hoped to start revision of the Ketcheson history during the year.

Rollins Reunion

The Rollins Reunion was held at the Tweed Memorial Park on the weekend, with 122 attending.

President Keith Harrison opened the reunion by welcoming everyone present. Before sitting down to dinner, the family observed one minute's silence for departed members.

Several special prizes were won by the youngest boy, Jeffrey Thompson; the youngest girl, Debbie Wilson; the most recent bride and bridegroom, Dory and Jane Rollins, Sudbury.

The family travelling the farthest distance were Mr. and Mrs. Carl Rollins; Robert and Sheree, Los Angeles, Calif. The oldest married couple were Mr. and Mrs. Jim Lucas.

Winner of the guessing game was Ethel Rollins, while in the five to six year bracket were Angela Rollins, Janet Thompson and Jeffery Rollins. Seven to eight year old winners were Sheree Rollins, Debbie Rollins, Judy Harrison. Other winners were Jennifer Workman; Ronald Shorey; Rodney Rollins and Paul Rollins.

A vote of thanks was tendered to Clarke Rollins for the ice cream provided by Keith Harrison and Carl Rollins.

ANNIVERSARY MARKED

VANCOUVER (CP) — The University of British Columbia's school of nursing recently celebrated its golden anniversary. Since the school was formed in 1919 it has graduated more than 2,300 nurses.

Apollo Inspires Fashions

PARIS (AP) — A topless bridal gown and fashions inspired by the Apollo moon landing brought gasps from the audience at the showing of Mia and Vicky, the rebel designers backed by actress Elizabeth Taylor.

Erotic symbolism was the keynote of the collection shown by Mia Fonssagrives, wife of Paris couturier Louis Feraud, and her English partner, Vicky Teal.

The two girls designed clothes for Miss Taylor and last year opened a Paris boutique with the star's financial backing.

The bride stole the show. Wrapped demurely in a floating white crepe mantle, she opened it to reveal a completely bare bosom over a miniskirt supported by a jewelled halter.

The bridegroom wore a diamond necklace in the form of a Maltese cross, said to be worth $300,000.

Paris Decrees Skirt Lengths Below Knee

PARIS (Reuters) — Coco Chanel kept skirt lengths well below the knees and has lengthened her famous cardigan jackets to a point anywhere from the hipline to versions that are really short coats in her fall and winter collection.

She showed many side-wrapped effects, lavished fur trimmings on everything made use of clerical white collars on pristine schoolgirl-type dresses, and showed the sexiest-cut pants in Paris.

Chanel never varies her basic style, but the new notes were the side-wrapped skirts and the v-necked jackets closed asymmetrically with the famous gold ion head buttons.

All the fluffy rainbow hued tweeds turned up again, as well as bright-colored totem pole and chevron patterns, horse-blanket plaid woollens, the thatched and lacey tweeds in soft pastels, and bold hound's-tooth checks in contrasting colors such as pink and navy.

Many coats were lined and edged with fur.

There were ulster and pelisses cosily doubled in mink or sable, with wide revers of fur matching the Russian-type toques worn straight on the head and tipped down over the forehead.

Other accessories include handbags made of matching fabric slung on gold link chains from the shoulder, an all-sequined black dinner dress was teamed to a matching shoulder strap handbag.

Girls Have A Career in World of Science

LAKEFIELD, Ont. (CP) — They are considered strangers in the masculine world of science, but girls on a summer course here mean business.

"My friends think I'm strange to be interested in a career in science," said one of 10 girls enrolled in the Royal Canadian Institute Summer Science Program in this community 10 miles north of Peterborough.

"But they merely amuse me," added 17-year-old Alyce Kehalchuk of Edmonton, who is interested in geology, astronomy and chemistry. "I know I'm as capable as any male when it comes to handling this equipment.

Only top students are accepted for the courses that include calculus, statistics, energy transformation, thermodynamics, astronomy, molecular genetics, biology and chemistry.

The students take part in lectures, informal discussion, lab sessions and field trips. Classes are not compulsory, but the students maintain a 100-per-cent attendance.

The institute's summer program is in its sixth year.

George Lount, 18, of Toronto, who had marks of 98, 100 and 99 in mathematics last year, says: "At school in Toronto I seem to be above the level of other students. Here I am sometimes below."

Debbie Burleson, 15, of Halifax is the youngest attending the course. She will enter Dalhousie University this fall after completing high school with a 87 per cent average.

Field trips are taken to places such as the Centennial Centre for Science and Technology and the McLaughlin Planetarium in Toronto and the Atomic Energy of Canada laboratories at Chalk River, Ont.

Four Legs, One Pair Pants Could Be Today's Problem

VANCOUVER (CP) — Toronto lecturer Dr. Benjamin Schlesinger says the trouble with families today is that they are raised by four legs trying to wear one pair of pants.

The University of Toronto professor, while in Vancouver to lead discussions at a conference on home economics, said four legs in one pair of pants are to blame for a lot of present-day problems. He said every household still needs a single head, someone with the final word, and biologically and psychologically this should be the male parent.

Dr. Schlesinger is optimistic concerning the future of the family unit, and says it is more popular today than ever before. And he's not worried that trial marriage will take over.

Asked for his assessment of the new shape of family life, Dr. Schlesinger said: "The family now is a small two-generation unit which has severed close ties with blood and in-law relatives.

"We've relegated grandparents to pasture, and in so doing we've cheated our children of something vital. Only from my parents can my children learn who they are, where they come from. Only from them do they absorb the sense of continuity, of history, of being a part of a long line. . . ."

Points for Parents

By MARY BRYSON

Mother: "Little Jimmy loves his bedtime romp with his father. It's so hard to get him to settle down at night, I keep hoping a lively workout will make him tired enough to sleep."

Friend: "A little boy really enjoys attention from his father. Fatherly attention and companionship need not be limited to romping and playing, especially with an excitable 3-year-old at bedtime.

Mother: "Jimmy seemed to get too excited to sleep when his father wrestled with him or they chased each other about before bedtime. We find it more relaxing if Jim reads or sings to Jimmy or helps him with his bath so they can talk."

New Law Permits Divorcee to Marry Husband's Brother

By DORIS CLARK

Dear Doris: Could you please tell me if Canadian laws would allow a divorced woman to marry her former husband's brother? — Wondering

Dear Wondering: Yes, she may, in 1969. She can't marry her brother, nor a son-in-law or grandson-in-law.

But she can become the wife of her deceased husband's brother or nephew. Also, a recent law made it possible for a divorced person to wed the former spouse's brother or sister.

• • •

Dear Doris: At the beginning I went with this guy for a sum of five days. I broke up because I wanted to be free. I went out on him. Later I began to dread being free.

I am 15 and awful young to feel the way I do about this guy or for that matter even think about "love."

I go out with him often but he treats me so nice my guilt comes flooding back. Other times he treats me ignorant and doesn't let me forget "the other guy". I love this 16-year-old guy more than anything and he knows it.

He doesn't seem to want anyone else to have me either.

A Teen in Trouble (Don't take it the way it sounds)

Dear Teen: Par for the course. You want him some of the time, he wants you some of the time. No need for everlasting fidelity right now.

If it is the Real Thing you'll find out, some years from now when he'll begin to want your happiness too much for cruel, jealous remarks. And you won't even want to look sideways at any other guy.

Meanwhile, look sideways and any other way. Take your blinders off.

• • •

Confidential to Marion: "Which is hurtful" doesn't give me enough to go on to answer your question. Better write a letter, tell me what actually happened, and enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope so that I can send you a private reply.

Dear Doris: The attached verses were requested by a reader some time ago. She and her husband were expropriated, and her husband went to great trouble to transplant 25 small trees and ornamental shrubs to their new location.

The poem "The Heart of the Tree" may be found in a small volume called "One Hundred and One Famous Poems." — A St. James READER

Dear Reader: I passed it on at once. The poem is in three melodious eight-line verses, suggesting that one who plants a tree is planting beauty, a home for the birds, cool shade, a "joy that unborn eyes shall see"; and other things.

I have made copies, now available for 10 cents and a stamped envelope. Thank you, and thanks also to Mrs. D., who sent us another copy.

A Quick Meal for Campers

By MARY MOORE

The name itself — Salmon Wiggle — encourages the children to like it. Added to the simplicity and low cost is the fact that this dish can be used to great advantage for a quick meal for campers. The salmon salad I am giving too, is colorful and nourishing.

SALMON WIGGLE

(Serves 4 to 6)

One 7¾-oz. can salmon
2 cups liquid (canned salmon liquid-plus milk)
¼ cup (4 tbsps.) butter or margarine, melted
¼ cup flour
½ tsp. salt
Shake of pepper
1 tbsp. lemon juice
1 cup cooked or canned green peas, drained
Hot buttered toast slices

Drain salmon and save liquid. Break salmon into bite-size chunks. Add enough milk to the salmon liquid to make 2-cup volume. In a sauce pan combine butter or margarine, flour, salt and pepper. Stir in liquid gradually and cook over medium heat, stirring constantly, until thickened. Add lemon juice, green peas and salmon and mix gently. Continue to heat until mixture is piping hot. Serve over hot buttered toast triangles.

EDGEWATER BEACH HOTEL SALMON SALAD

Flake canned or cooked fresh salmon and marinate and chill in a little French dressing. Use ½ or 1-lb. can according to the size and hunger of your family. Shred finely washed and dried spinach and lettuce leaves — enough to form a base for the salmon on salad plates. Arrange drained, flaked salmon on spinach-lettuce bed. Garnish tops with sieved hard-cooked egg yolks and finely chopped chives.

WEDNESDAY

Dinner Menu

Beef and Kidney Pie; India Chutney; Cauliflower; Green Peas; Relishes: Radish Roses and Green Onions; Gooseberry Fool; Tea.

Pass genuine mayonnaise.

If you make these salads generous enough they will suffice for a main dish for lunch or supper.

Ann Landers

Mother Wants to Care For New Baby—Alone

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am expecting our first baby in about seven weeks. We waited a long time for this child and I want to do everything just right. Now a dark cloud is hovering over my shoulder. My mother-in-law assumes that I would be happy to have her move in for a few weeks and help with the baby when we come home from the hospital.

ANN LANDERS

It's nice of her to offer but I don't want her. The thought of having my mother-in-law "in charge" is making a nervous wreck out of me. I don't consider getting up during the night is a hardship. It will be a pleasure. I want to change my baby's diapers, give him his bottle, feed him and bathe him. This is the joy of being a new mother and I don't want to share it.

Is there anything I can say without hurting her feelings? Or for the sake of the relationship should I keep my mouth shut and let her come? — PEORIA.

DEAR PEORIA: If you don't want your mother-in-law's help, say so. Allowing her to come will not improve the relationship, it will worsen it. Thank her and tell her you are eager to see how well you can do on your own. And perhaps you should add, "If I run into trouble, it's good to know I can call on you."

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: You often advise women who write about having their faces lifted, "Go ahead and do it if you want to." I'd like to give you another side of the story.

My grandmother had her face lifted eight months ago and it is ruining her life. She wasn't very pretty to begin with, but she had a fairly good figure and could afford expensive clothes. Grandpa died three years ago. Grandma got over her grief in record time and started to look for a man. She attracted mostly bums who were after her money. And old bums, at that. A friend suggested that Grandma get her face lifted. She did it and now she is attracting young bums. Furthermore she is making a fool of herself acting like a spring chicken. My mother thinks maybe the surgeon's knife slipped and damaged her brain.

So please don't encourage women to have their faces lifted. Everyone liked Grandma better the way she was. — SAD BOY OF 15.

DEAR BOY: From your description of Grandma, I suspect she would have had trouble — even with her old face.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I'm a divorcee with three lovely teen-age children. A widower wants to marry me. He has two youngsters. They are nearly the same ages as my children.

Money is no problem. We get along fine — except for the kids. His are spoiled rotten, disobedient, poor students and they hate me. He dislikes my children because they are popular, fine students and they make his kids look bad by comparison. But we love each other and want a life together. I need your advice. — A.A.

DEAR A: I see five reasons why you shouldn't marry this man. Your three and his two. Maybe when the children go away to school, but not now.

Salute to Prince Edward County

Unparalleled Attractions Await Visitors

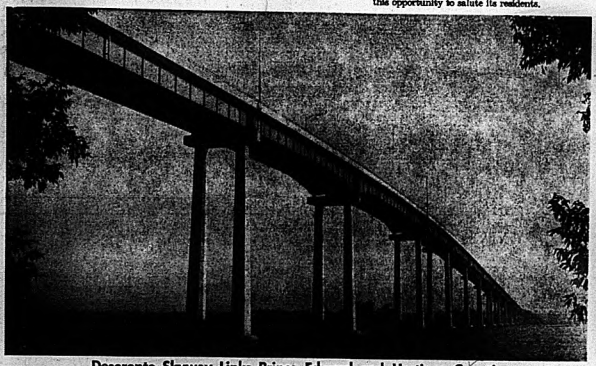
In the past often referred to as "the sleepy county" near the eastern end of Lake Ontario, Prince Edward's charms are just now beginning to be recognized.

Recognized, that is, by Canadians in other parts of the country, for Prince Edward's attributes have always been a source of pride for its residents from its early days of settlement, through the coming of the United Empire Loyalists to the present day.

Recreation, industry and farming are the three gems in the jewel which makes up "Quinte's Isle."

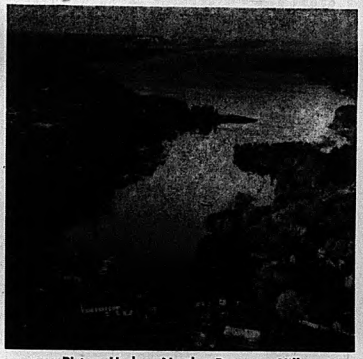
Miles of sand beaches, inland lakes and cottage waterfront beyond compare are here in Prince Edward County. With the pressure on metropolitan Toronto, its residents are only now just finding out it is no more time consuming to visit Prince Edward than it is to fight traffic to the Kawarthas or Georgian Bay.

Industrially the county holds great appeal. Its biggest boost in years was the decision of the giant Plasecki Aircraft Corporation to locate its Canadian subsidiary at an abandoned military camp near Picton.



Prince Edward apples have been flown around the world. Its market gardens provide food for major cities and its canning industry has put its brand names into stores throughout North America.

Prince Edward County is beautiful, progressive and alive.



It is with pride The Intelligencer, the only daily newspaper to service the whole county, takes this opportunity to salute its residents.

Tourism, Agriculture and Industry Supreme in County

Prince Edward County, Quinte Isle or even Little Spain!

No matter how you call it or how you cut it, one thing's for sure — the area is definitely on the move. Industrially, agriculturally and recreationally.

And it is a unique area, in that it is a man-made island with a three-fold economy.

Three areas control the county's economy; the tourist business, agriculture and industry. That trimvirate rules supreme.

Most probably in no other place in Ontario are facilities so bountiful for all three economic areas.

Three provincial parks, beaches known throughout the world, private resorts, public resorts, camping areas, fishing areas, hunting areas are just a few of the recreational lures which annually draw thousands of travellers to the Isle.

And although the tourist business provides a livelihood for many county residents and fun and recreation for its visitors neither of the other rulling members of the trimvirate are lagging behind.

Truck farms, for marketable vegetables and foods are the largest and productive in Canada, ranging in size from 100 acres and less to 2,000 acres and more.

Apples, corn, peas, (tomatoes — in fact almost all fruits and vegetables are farmed in Prince Edward.

Dairy and milk products are just as important and the county even boasts a co-operative dairy business to process the raw product.

But agriculture, both dairy and truck farming, has been in the county ever since it was settled by United Empire Loyalists 200 years ago.

Industry and tourism are relatively new and therefore perhaps a little more exciting because they're growing so quickly.

During the past decade at least five major industries have decided to locate in Prince Edward county representing investments that surpass $50 million.

Modern manufacturing industries, like Proctor-Silex, Bethlehem Steel, Lake Ontario Portland Cement and now Piasecki Aircraft and Campbell Soup have moved in.

Some have even expanded several times during the past decade and like population, the bigger you are the bigger you grow.

And the future looks even brighter.

Schemes like a bridge causeway plan to link Prince Edward county with Amherst and Wolfe Islands to Kingston and the United States have been accepted as feasible and possible by members of both the provincial and federal governments.

And industrial queries still pour in from all over the world so that at any one time at least one major concern is considering adding to the economy of Prince Edward in return for its ideal location, facilities and scenic sites.

New resorts open up every year as well as recreational facilities and even the farmers are expanding — some of them going co-operative in order to increase their efficiency and production.

And there's still plenty of room; room for parks and beaches (the provincial government has developed two new provincial parks in the past five years), room for industry all over the county and room for agriculture.

Slice it how you want, call it what you like, because it all adds up the same . . . Prince Edward is on the move.

Historical Museums Tell County's Tale

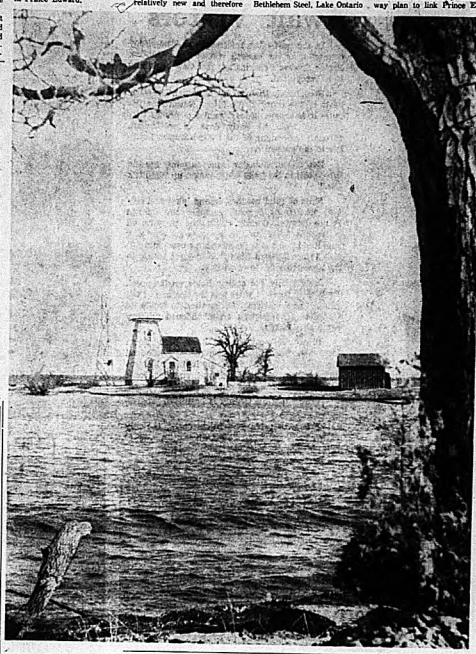
PICTON — Prince Edward County offers four historical museums on its list of things for tourists to see and do.

The Waupoos - Marysburg Museum, five miles east of Glenora ferry and ten miles from Picton was originally "the Rose House." This was the home of a county settler in the early 1800s.

The old homestead has been restored and the museum displays recreate life as it was in North Marysburg long ago.

Amelisburg Museum attracts hundreds of visitors annually with its fine displays. Originally, the museum was a Methodist Church erected in 1858. Today, the century - old building houses Rev. Bowen Squire's paintings of early scenes, a sealed - down blacksmith's shop, a chapel, and wedding dresses that are over 100 years old.

A number of Indian relics discovered in Amelisburg are also on display at the museum.



The Mariners' Memorial Lighthouse Museum near South Bay boasts an engine from the steamer, Riverside, recently salvaged and dedicated to the museum's park. There is a lifeboat belonging to the sunken Greek freighter, Protostelis on display and numerous other items salvaged from "beneath the sea."

The top portion of False Duck Lighthouse, built in 1929 was reconstructed as a Centennial project.

Old sails find a visit to this museum a delightful way to spend an afternoon in Prince Edward County.

Wellington Historical Museum stands on Wellington's Main Street. The building was formerly a Quaker meeting house.

Visitors enjoy studying the displays and can make purchases of some antique items.

County Scenery A Premium

The natural nobility of this scene tells much about the attractive landscape that is Prince Edward County. Both manmade settlement and nature seem to blend together for a myriad of gemlike settings awaiting the visitors' inspection. The man-made Point Traverse lighthouse and the natural scenery of the surrounding Lake Ontario shoreline are typical of the Garden County's southern reaches. Neither have such combinations gone unappreciated. Understandably, with such attractive geography and landmarks, Prince Edward counts tourism one of its important economic staples.

Finished to Perfection

Mr. and Mrs. William Walmsley inspect an antique piece he is refinishing at Walmsley's workshop in Picton. The Walmsleys restore antique furniture to its original beauty.

County Has Been Haven For Antique Collectors

PICTON — Scouting for antiques is a favorite hobby of many tourists vacationing in Prince Edward County. For the antique-loving visitor happiness is the discovery of a "Shaker Chair" just perfect for that space in the hallway at home, or a washbowl set too pretty to leave in the shop.

Walmsley's Workshop, run by Agnes and William Walmsley, is one of five antique shops in Picton where the best of yesterday is on display.

The Walmsleys became interested in antiques while attending a night school class in woodworking at PECI.

The course did not include instruction in refinishing but when the Walmsley's brought small furniture pieces to class seeking the correct method for re-doing them, teacher C. R. Sutherland offered to assist.

While taking the woodworking course Mr. and Mrs. Walmsley refinished several old furniture pieces then displayed them in the empty window of a shop once run by Mr. Walmsley.

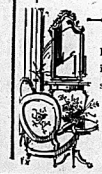
Soon inquiries came from a number of people about the attractive window display. The Walmsley's sold their first pieces and re-did a number of others purchased at auction sales.

Suddenly the vacant store became "Walmsleys' Workshop." Mrs. Walmsley attended auctions throughout the county, bidding on antique furniture and glassware while her husband remained at the shop patiently refinishing the fine old furniture pieces that were gathering out back.

Today, the workshop is filled with collectors' items ranging from a rare pair of Mary Gregory vases valued at $75 to old fashioned dolls.

"Most of the tourists," observed Mrs. Walmsley, "are looking for pine." Visitors come to the antique shop from across Canada and from many points in the United States. Mrs. Walmsley has shipped purchases to buyers from Montreal, Kapuskasing, British Columbia, Saskatchewan, and California. Not long ago she and her husband crated a spinning wheel for shipment to Ireland.

Trinity College made an interesting purchase from the antique shop last year.



The school bought ten captain's chairs that are more than 100 years old. Mrs. Walmsley had originally purchased these finds from the old Prince Edward County gaol.

Mr. and Mrs. Walmsley have discovered growing satisfaction in collecting and refinishing antiques. Tourists take pleasure in stopping to see the varied collection of antiques displayed at "Walmsley's Workshop."

I personally pay homage to Prince Edward County and the Village of Bloomfield.

To The Citizens Of Picton -

July 30th 1969

The lives of all, whether they attend every community function in their community or attempt to ignore completely, are being altered by the events of this County. We now sit in judgment. One hundred years from now succeeding generations will look back and judge us.

The advances in the next century will double, triple or quadruple those in the past. We can not say, but surely it is absolutely imperative, that we as Canadians conduct ourselves and our affairs in such a manner that history will have, for us also, a few words of praise.

That which is necessary on a national basis, can only be achieved by individuals in small communities such as Prince Edward County participating to the fullest extent.

The whole County is poised on the brink of tremendous growth. We see more evidence of this everyday.

Citizens of Picton can and must provide the necessary leadership. Nothing less than our finest effort will be acceptable. Together we can make the second century of confederation as successful as the first.

Fisheries Station Popular with Tourists

GLENORA — Visitors to the aquarium at The Fisheries Research Station, Glenora, usually sign the guest book with a conventional remark like "interesting."

Occasionally a tourist with a sense of humor livens up the records with a comment such as "there's something fishy about all of this."

One visitor, apparently a disillusioned angler, penned this remark — "It is nice to see the ones that got away."

Kept in roomy aquariums in the hatchery are many different species of fresh water fish ranging from sturgeons to yellow perch. The public is invited to visit the research station on Wednesday and Saturday afternoons throughout the summer.

The fisheries station is toured by persons from "far away places" and by numerous county residents, many of them students.

The guest book has been signed this summer by visitors from Brampton, Kingston, Pointe Claire, Quebec, Leist, Holland, West Germany, Pembroke, Fairport, New York and Montreal.

The Glenora Fisheries Station is operated by the Ontario department of lands and forests in the interests of the sport and commercial fisheries of Lake Ontario. It is one of four such units serving the Great Lakes.

The fisheries laboratory is headed by Jack Christie, biologist in charge of studies on cold water fish. He is assisted by Donald Hurley, biologist studying warm water fishes.

John Coleman, is biologist in charge of studying stream and stream spawning lake fish.

The building housing this progressive laboratory had its beginnings as an iron foundry in 1872. Chief product was a compact and, apparently, well known water turbine. During World War I the large stone building was converted into a munitions factory. Following the war the factory closed and the building was sold to the Ontario government in 1922 to be converted into a fish hatchery. Ownership of Lake-on-the Mountain complete with its shoreline and floor was part of the purchase. The flow of water from this natural reservoir 180 feet above the building was as useful for culturing fish as it had been for operating machinery.

While the water was clean and pure it was taken from the surface of the lake and in the summer warmed to temperatures unsuitable for culturing most of the important hatchery species. Summer operation was not feasible.

Later the situation was improved by building a small sub station at Waring's Corners, near Picton. The spring fed waters of Waring's Creek were used to rear trout. Main product of the hatchery through the years however, was whitefish.

Unlike trout,whitefish cannot be cultured to advanced sizes, so the procedure involved collecting eggs at spawning time in November, incubating them in the hatchery during the winter, and releasing them as newly hatched fry in April.

This practice eliminated over-winter mortality of the eggs, the assumed reason for low fish stocks.

By the mid-1950s research revealed conclusively that hatchery plantings were not influencing the fish stocks. Whitefish hatcheries were closed consequently.

Time made the Waring's Corners Creek water supply too silty for use and in the absence of an alternate site, the Glenora hatchery was forced to discontinue trout production.

In 1954 the final plantings were made. Several years elapsed before the facilities of the hatchery were made available to the research branch of the department of lands and forests to house the already active Lake Ontario research program.

The station began as a base for field investigation of fish and fisheries but now incorporates a program of experimental work. A siphon pipe bringing cold water from the floor of Lake-on-the-Mountain permits the station to keep stocks of cold water fish during the summer.

The field program continues with various types of experimental fishing, fish tagging, and catch sampling operations.

The research vessel Namaycush (the Cree Indian word for trout), is the mainstay of the station's field work. The 43 foot steel-hulled craft is diesel-powered. Equipped with radar, radio, and sonic fish finding gear the Namaycush is a familiar sight in all areas in Canadian waters of Lake Ontario in the water season.

The research station's prime objective is a search for the means of obtaining the maximum harvest of useful fish from Lake Ontario.

Summer visitors touring the research station leave with the impression that there is "something fishy" about Prince Edward County. They say so in the guest book.

Cars Go by Water

Prince Edward County is an island community and, even in these days of sophisticated road and bridge engineering, one of its communication links still is among the oldest means of transport — the ferry. However, ferries also have come a long way — as the Glenora car carrier, familiar to all travellers on Highway 33 east of Picton, demonstrate daily.

Ferry Service in Past 32 Years Has Been Prime Mainland Link

PICTON — "Traffic over the ferry this year has reached 400 cars in one weekend," stated Capt. Robert McLeod in the summer of 1937.

Capt. McLeod had secured a franchise from the Ontario government for ferry operations at Glenora in the spring of that year. Before receiving this franchise he had run the wooden ferry, Nohomis, independently across the Bay of Quinte from Glenora to the Adolphustown shore. This is a run of ¾ of a mile. The Nohomis was built in Picton Harbor by Capt. McLeod and Jack Woodis. Powered by a tractor engine she had a carrying capacity of six cars.

For over a quarter of a century the little wooden ferry putted across the Bay of Quinte providing half hour service for travellers. She "tied up" each night at 11 p.m. During the winter months ice conditions forced her out of service.

In the same year the government granted a franchise to Capt. McLeod, construction was begun on a second ferry. This boat, christened "The Quinte," was large enough to carry 12 cars. She could also accommodate large transport trucks, enabling Adolphustown farmers to bring their produce into Prince Edward County.

With the arrival of "The Quinte" at Glenora the Nohomis was tied to the dock. On weekends she was released from her moorings to help with the heavier traffic.

With the death of Capt. McLeod in 1951 Capt. James Haylock became senior ferry captain at Glenora.

For 17 years he worked with the Ontario department of highways in their continuing program of improvements to bring the ferry service to its present level of efficiency.

One of the most noteworthy changes at Glenora was the addition of a new ferry, The Quinte Loyalist, in 1964. Built in Ericau, Ontario, the "Loyalist" went into operation at Glenora following a christening ceremony in 1964.

The "good ship Nohomis" had been dismantled in the winter of 1953.

With a second ferry at Glenora new crew members were needed. Additional sailors were signed on, swelling the crew to more than 30 men.

The department of highways landscaped ferry approaches on both shores, installed ship to shore telephones on both boats, and added a "bubble system" to facilitate winter operations.

Air, bubbling in the slips, prevents the ice formation that hinders docking. Today the ferries seldom "tie up" even for a few hours during the winter. A radar system installed on the boats ensures safe operations in periods of poor visibility.

In 1937 heavy traffic was 400 cars in one weekend, Capt. Keith Daubney, who succeeded Capt. Haylock as senior ferry captain, reported the average number of cars and trucks now handled by the ferries each weekend at "around 1,750." Week day traffic is much lighter. Approximately 900 vehicles cross on the ferries each day.

Did the Quinte Skyway bridge affect traffic at Glenora? Capt. Daubney felt that

Jet Port, Bridge Keep Pot Boiling

Would you believe an international jumbo jet port situated in Prince Edward County?

How about a 10,000 acre cattle farm? No! Well then, maybe a bridge scheme connecting Prince Edward County to Mansona, New York.

Not even that . . . well then you'd have to believe a $35 million dollar cement plant, a major aircraft production company and mushroom growing plant.

So, those you believe . . . they're a reality aren't they?

But they, like everything else including the Apollo moon landing, started off as a dream, a wild scheme and that's exactly what's making Prince Edward County take off.

Dreams and men with the energy and initiative to try and see them fulfilled.

It's quite incongruous that an area like Quinte's Isle, where citizens have a reputation for being generally conservative and satisfied with the status quo such progressive dreams and ideas are becoming a commonplace occurrence, said one municipal official.

"Nobody believed there'd ever be a Lake Ontario Portland Cement plant or a Pi'asecki Aircraft factory and yet there they both are," said Picton mayor H. J. McFarland.

And more is obviously on the way. Citizens who believed in the jetport idea took the plan to Ottawa and at least got into the hands of the government.

Mayor McFarland's Prince Edward — U.S. bridge scheme is still within the realm of reality after cabinet ministers, one federal and one provincial, indicated they liked the plan.

Both John Gomme, provincial minister of highways and Edgar Benson, federal finance minister indicated that the plan to connect the county with Amherst Island, Wolfe Island, Kingston and the United States had merit and would save, in the long run, a lot of money.

The question "who's going to

Gateway to A Garden

Picton Reach is the waterway gateway to Prince Edward — Ontario's Garden County. The spectacular stretch of water also provides a setting for one of the county's busiest community sites, the Prince Edward County Yacht Club, location of which at Picton is right at the head of the inlet.

Society Keeps County Beautiful

PICTON — When the word 'beautiful' is used in connection with Prince Edward County, a good deal of the credit may go to the Prince Edward Horticultural Society.

Not only do the 600 members engage in a variety of beautification projects, but almost every resident joins in the effort to make the county a little more beautiful.

Leadership is being provided by the horticultural society in preserving trees, with a continual battle being waged with those who fell healthy specimens.

As a society project, flower beds are planted at the War Memorial, fire hall and police station, at Bonson Park, at the Fair Grounds, at the Public Library and at various places in the county.

The Picton society existed for 45 years until 1919 when it lapsed during the war years. It was revived in 1955 and has grown steadily over the years. It is a real force for good in the county with an aim on keeping the word beautiful used when Prince Edward is described.

Ferry Link Kept Open

in the winter months many people used the bridge, fearing ferry operations might be closed due to ice conditions. Most commercial vehicles use the bridge exclusively all year round. Illustrating the traffic reduction at Glenora with statistics, Capt. Daubney pointed out that the year before the Skyway hicles crossed the ferries. The year following its opening, 113,388 vehicles crossed on the boats.

However, Capt. Daubney said that traffic is increasing this year. He attributes the increase to an over-all rise in the number of cars and trucks on the road.

The Glenora ferries provide 15 minute service from seven a.m. to 11 p.m. in the summer months. Half hour service carries winter traffic with no waiting period for motorists.

The Glenora ferries remain one of Prince Edward County's favorite tourist attractions. Many visitors crossing the Bay of Quinte look in vain for a toll booth on the boats. Contrary to the proverb "You don't get something for nothing," the ride is free.

Talk of a bridge at Glenora has apparently been dropped by the government. The sister ships, the Quinte and The Quinte Loyalist, seem to be one part of yesterday that progress isn't going to remove for the time being.

Piasecki Latest Industrial Find To Join Prince Edward Fold

It seems fitting that the newest industry to locate in Prince Edward county is one of the newer industries in the world — the manufacture of helicopters.

Piasecki Aircraft Corporation of Canada announced only a few months ago its intention to purchase the Camp Picton army camp, former location of the 1st Battalion Canadian Guards.

They did and according to Mayor H. J. McFarland the new company will be more beneficial to Picton and Prince Edward than the army was. This, despite the fact $3 million in spending power left the county with the Canadian guards.

Since the Piasecki industry is relatively new, few people know yet what changes are going to be made on the hill to accommodate the construction of a new compound for helicopters for use as a business transport.

No mention has been made by company president Frank Piasecki as to the capital investment involved but he has stated that within two years the company will be in full production.

With over 650 acres and half a million square feet of floor space, the Picton facility was an ideal location for an aircraft company.

The number of employees needed is speculative but rumors have placed the number well over the 100 mark.

And the former army camp may have a little more in store for it industrially, since both Mayor H. J. McFarland and Crown Assets Corporation have indicated that other industrial concerns are interested in buying the portion of the camp left by Piasecki and establishing plants.

It's becoming an army camp that's taking off.

HOME FOR MONGOLOIDS IN PRINCE EDWARD COUNTY

For Harry and Phyllis Brewer, happiness is caring for a special group of people who are not capable of caring for themselves. The Brewers run a Nursing Home for Mongoloids.

A mongoloid is a person who for some unknown reason is born with few capabilities for mental and physical maturing. Usually the parents are either too old for childbirth or diseased, although some cases are totally without explanation.

30 mongoloids have found the special love and care they need at Brewer's Nursing Home- R.R. 1, Milford. Here Mr. and Mrs. Brewer, along with a full time staff of 16 qualified personnel, including 1 registered nurse and 1 RNA, are making life as pleasant as possible for them. Part time help from local high school students during the summer months is acquired to allow staff holidays.

Through "Homes for Special Care", a branch of the Department of Health, mongoloids from all over Ontario are placed in homes like the Brewer's. The Ontario government subsidizes the home and provides clothing and medical supplies.

The home boasts a recreational program — second to none. Regular activities include games, car rides, boating, swimming and picnics. A few participate in a rhythm band with piano, drums, maracas, tambourine and guitar. Yuri, the Brewer's collie dog gets a lot of attention from the patients who affectionately call him Lassie. The color TV is popular, too, with Bonanza, Sports Telecasts and the discontinued Don Messer Show getting top billing. A stereo with speakers inside and outside fills in the days which are between 7 and 10 p.m., depending on the individual's choice of bedtime.

One visit to Brewer's Nursing Home will show you the need and value of such an establishment . . . and Harry and Phyllis Brewer stress that visitors are always more than welcome at any time.

Ideas Abound in County

pay for it" still goes unanswered but the plan is not dead.

In the latest development on Picton mayor's bridge plan blue-printed projections have been drawn up and are on their way to both Toronto and Ottawa.

Mayor McFarland said that after he announced the plan at a Picton dinner last month he received letters from the reeves and councils of both Amherst and Wolfe Islands expressing approval and interest in the plan. Interest was also expressed by the City of Kingston.

What would the plan mean to Prince Edward and the other areas involved if it became true.

In Mayor McFarland's opinion it would turn the areas wide open.

Travellers could go from Prince Edward to the United States within 30 to 60 minutes and where now travellers going to the USA from Canada and vice-versa bypass Prince Edward, the two islands and Kingston they would travel through them, said the mayor.

Three ferries would be eliminated and each costs approximately $750,000 annually to operate, he points out.

Whether this dream will ever come true is your guess as good as anyone's but it is being worked on as another example of a progressive Prince Edward.

Picton Fair Mirrors County's Farm Progress

PICTON — Reflecting the progress of agriculture in the County of Prince Edward is the annual fair held in Picton. In keeping with the fact that, with the exception of horse classes, all exhibits are confined to the county, it is known as the county fair. It is one of three such county fairs in Ontario.

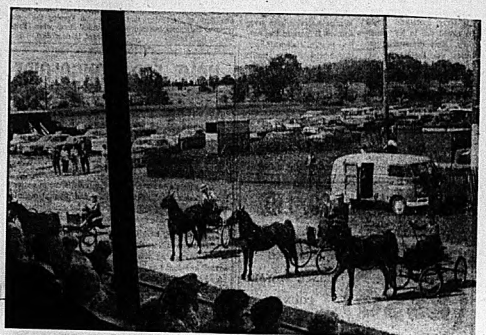
This year, the fair is being held Thursday night, Sept. 4, Friday and Saturday, Sept. 5 and 6.

Last year, the fair made history when it was held on Sunday, being carried over one day due to rain which wiped out one day's events. Should this occur again this year, the fair will also be carried over a day.

Prince Edward Agriculture Society was organized in 1831 and has since operated annually with the exception of First World War years. The first secretary was a cousin of Sir John A. Macdonald, named L. P. Macpherson, while the second secretary was another cousin, J. A. Macpherson. John A., Canada's first Prime Minister, then a law clerk in Picton, looked after the books for his employers. However, these records have been lost. In later years, John A. stated "I always enjoyed Picton Fair and visiting that town where I started my law practice".

For five years after its beginning the society did not hold a fair but confined its efforts to agricultural pursuits. In 1835, a committee was formed 'to regulate the movement of bulls purchased by the society'. It was decided that five shillings for each cow belonging to non-members shall be the price of the large bull, and that the small bull not go to cows belonging to others than members of the society. Later, the same practice was followed by horses and sheep which were purchased by the society to improve the breeds.

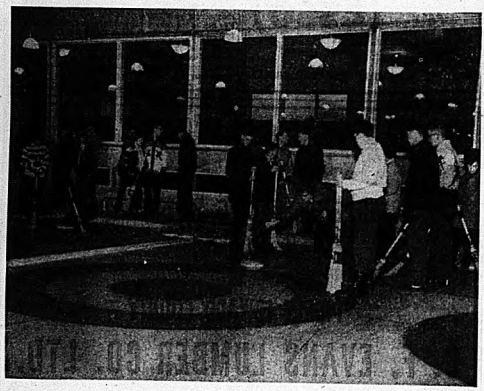
One of the prizes offered in 1836 was for 'the most improved farms of at least 50 acres cultivated land'. Printed list of winners included classes for two mares and foals, cow, sow, ram, two ewes, two cheese, 10 yards domestic flannel, pair domestic socks.



By 1856, the fair had grown to 603 entries. Today, entries number over 10,000.

The fair has been held on the same grounds since 1856 and today it is not only the locale of the fair, but the chief recreation centre in the county. Largely as a result of the efforts of the society, the present modern arena was built there and operates year-round. The society also owns the modern curling club as well as livestock barns.

The grounds are owned by the county, being taken over after the society ran into debt after World War One. As a result of the efforts of a few interested people, the fair was built up to its present high standards and is rated as Class 'B', its average attendance is 30,000.



While featuring a variety of popular entertainment, the fair has always emphasized agriculture as its main theme and it has become famous for its attractive and educational displays.

At one time there were six fairs in Prince Edward but today Prince Edward has only that in Picton and that it is serving its purpose well, is shown by the steady growth. As well as serving its main purpose of agriculture, it is playing a leading role in serving the community through the provision of facilities for all types of recreation and a place for banquets and a variety of other events.

Line Up, Please

Exhibitors in the fine harness pony class at Picton Fair line their entries waiting for the judge's decision. The horse show has become a major attraction each year.

Sweeping Clean

Young curlers from P.E.C.I. gather for a game at Prince Edward Curling Club. The club is a busy spot during the winter months.

Converted School House Now Pottery

Joanne Cunnington Views Own Sign

PICTON — The Old Schoolhouse Pottery, RR9, Picton, is one of Prince Edward County's newest and most interesting tourist attractions.

Opened in June by newcomers to the county, Mr. and Mrs. Ray Cunnington, the pottery is a "see and do" experience for tourists.

Mrs. Cunnington who studied the timeless art of making pottery for six years at MacDonald College, has countless jugs and vases on display. Tourists can watch her working at her potter's wheel shaping attractive vases and bowls from lumps of red clay.

For visitors interested in trying a hand at pottery Mrs. Cunnington teaches special classes set to coincide with their stay in Prince Edward.

A talented craftswoman, Joanne Cunnington has won several awards for her work. She walked away with the President's Award for best earthenware at the Canadian National Exhibition in 1965.

One of her pieces displayed at Expo '67 was purchased by the Confederation Art Gallery for its permanent collection.

Recently a panel of judges accepted two pieces of her work for exhibition at the Royal Ontario Museum in a show called Craft Dimensions, opening in September.

Mr. Cunnington, who is as pleased as his wife with the pottery's success this summer, has been commissioned by the Prince Edward Chamber of Commerce to boost the county through newspaper articles in Canada and the United States.

Mr. Cunnington has had a career in the fields of public relations and advertising.

He has accepted a teaching position at Loyalist College in Belleville this fall, where he will instruct in communication arts.

A fast-approaching dusk fails to deter kite flyers Mike Church (left) and Doug Galt (right) from taking an airborne jaunt in the Bay of Quinte near Picton. Mike Church also skis and kite flies in exhibitions put on by the Prince Edward Sail and Ski Club of which he is an associate member.

County Sports History Recalled by Oldtimer

By GEORGE H. CARVER

Several years ago before I became sports editor and columnist of this newspaper, I facetiously dubbed Prince Edward county "Little Spain, attached to the mainland for medicine and duty".

The name stuck. Even as did much later "Hayward Long Reach."

Those were the days, my friend" when down Picton way Mayor H. J. McFarland was an unknown quantity; Albert Hare conducted the Hare arena "The Rabbit Hutch"; Nettie McKibbon headed the town council and Jack Yanover, Roly Rorke, Ron Church and other prominent citizens looked after the sports.

We Spaniards were called by mainlanders a clannish lot. True we were an insular crowd in one sense of the word but the strangers that came to our shores were always extended the glad hand of welcome.

Tucked away in this jutting Lake Ontario peninsula, we were perhaps a strange breed of humans who believed, and rightly so, they were as big a part of Ontario and Canada as any comparable community.

A breed of people who were and still are extremely proud of their backgrounds, whatever they are.

A lot of them are descendants of U.E. Loyalists. Many others are of different religious and political beliefs, but collectively they are "Spaniards" and their county loyalty is beyond question.

Sportswise "Quinte's Isle" as the Chamber of Commerce and the county tourist bureau has called it, holds high a proud head.

Its red-letter claim to world fame is the fact that the county's famous Hayward Lake Reach was the setting for the Harmsworth Trophy unlimited hydroplane classics in 1960 and 1961 when Canada's "Miss Supertest III" defended her title twice and was retired by an undefeated world champion after the tragic death of her driver Bobby Hayward in 1962 in a sensational crash on the Detroit river.

Prior to the Harmsworth Trophy classics, the Prince Edward Yacht club, based in Picton conducted annual outboard races for the club's famous Gold Trophy, a $500 golden bauble.

The Gold Trophy Regattas attracted many international drivers who raced on the outer stretches of the harbor. Among these were the famous "Pops" Cooper who met a tragic death while driving his boat "Pops" II" in a Gold Trophy heat.

"Pops" was a wealthy American who had a town named after him and who lived, breathed and existed on the nautical racing sport.

"Pops" raced one year in a Belleville Rotary Club regatta off Massassaga Point and in an upset went flying into the water when his boat plunged nose-down through 30 feet into a deep mudbank.

The boat's engine was reputed to be worth $8,000 and when told by regatta chairman Lloyd Hicks "we will get it up for you" Pops shrugged his shoulders, "It doesn't matter much. I've got eight more of 'em at home."

Hockey wise, the oldtimers still talk about the first Ontario champions the county had, a rugged "seven" called the "Little Men of Metal."

Later the county iced a junior OHA team which didn't get very far but in the late 20s the first "County Hockey League" took the island by storm.

Two teams from Picton, others from Wellington, Bloomfield, Milford, Demorestville, Waupoos formed the league roster. All games were played in Hare's Arena, the only covered rink in the county.

Proctor Silex Plant Finds Business Booming

One of the older industrial additions to Prince Edward County is the Proctor-Silex Corp. Ltd. in Picton which located there in 1961 from St. Johns, Quebec.

As a division of Smith-Corona-Marchetti Corporation, the Picton plant is responsible for the manufacture of small electrical appliances such as toasters, percolators, irons and blenders.

Business is booming and over the past eight years the number of employees has more than doubled and there has been one major building expansion.

Only a little more than one year ago there were 100 people employed by the company in Picton.

Today, according to plant manager James Findlay, "when you total it all up we now have around 180 employees."

Although production lines in the Picton plant were disrupted by a strike for almost a year, Mr. Findlay has once again got the factory operation running smoothly and efficiently and there have even been suggestions that the company might once again expand its operation.

However since within the past year the company expanded its production line into the manufacture of vacuum cleaners and floor care products, Mr Findlay says that now "there are no further plans for expansion within the immediate future."

All manufacture at the plant is done on a production line basis so that each person has a specific job to do, much like the manufacture of automobiles, and hundreds of steps are necessary to turn out the inspected finished products, which are marketed throughout the nation as well as locally in the Prince Edward and Quinte regions.

The Proctor-Silex plant in Picton is the only one the SCM corporation has in Canada and it brought to Prince Edward a capital investment of $2 million and jobs for almost 200 people as another one of Prince Edward county's growing industrial developments.

Vacation in Prince Edward

The Hulls at home. Left to right, Bobby Junior, Joanne Hull, Blake, Bret and Bobby Sr., holding the youngest member of the family, 13-month-old Bart.

Antique Time

Hulls Enjoy Summer at Hullvue

Bobby Hull and his wife, Joanne are just like any other couple on summer vacation.

Holidaying at their cottage at Big Island the Hulls are familiar with all the vacationer's ups and downs.

It was a big down for Bobby Jr. when he crushed his ankle in a fall from the mow at Hullvue.

"Wouldn't you know," sighed his mother, "It happened on his first visit to the farm."

For Joanne Hull vacationing in the county provides an excellent opportunity to scout for antiques. An avid collector, she has amassed pieces of Mary Gregory and Limoges that would make most dealers green with envy.

"Bobby doesn't like them at all," she confided as she fondly placed a vase back on its shelf.

The Chicago Black Hawks hockey star spends most of his vacation working on the farm. He's up at dawn and under way, usually tagged by one or more of his tow-headed sons.

Visitors drive from as far away as Montreal to renew their friendship with the NHL star and his family. A gracious hostess, pretty Joanne entertains her guests with ease while they wait for the Golden Jet to return from a trip to the farm

Like all mothers, Mrs. Hull finds life with four active boys keeps her occupied most of the time.

Baby Bart coos contentedly in his play pen while his big brothers discuss baseball. All three of Bobby's oldest sons play ball on little league teams in Belleville.

In one corner of the Hull cottage, Bobby's trophies are proudly displayed. Among them is the Lady Byng Trophy.

The trophies are the only thing that might suggest to the visitor that Bobby Hull is not just another vacationer on the island.

Dressed in shorts and T shirt the Golden Jet roughhouses with his sons and greets his summer guests with a remark about the cattle market. For the next few weeks he is "just Bobby", a family man enjoying summer in Prince Edward County.

County Had Champion Teams

The era preceded the days of artificial ice, television and radio broadcasts.

Outside teams went to the Picton area for games come hell, high water, hail or snowstorms. There was no padding equipment. Shinpads, sometimes catalogues, ordinary gloves, short underpadded trunks, and a thin sweater over long johns were standard equipment.

In mild weather, water leaked through holes in the roof, and not a few games were played on water-splashed ice surfaces.

The teams travelled by sled, cutter, sleighs and when possible automobile and truck.

On one occasion the Wellington club's horse-drawn sleighs broke down two miles out of town. Players scrambled out, picked up gear and trudged the remaining distance to the arena.

Admission, I believe was 25 cents and on playoff nights the "Hutch" was packed to the rafters.

Wellington owned an open-air arena and its local team boasted such players as "Flathead" Gibson, "Cement-arm" Parliament, "Shadow" Reid, "Gaspipe" Noble, "Jakie" Sleen, "Bones" Carver, "Ben-Jamin" Noble, "Dutch" Ainsworth, "Beef" MacDonald and others.

On one occasion the home team played a Belleville squad that included Richard Arnott and the McGuires. It was a snowy night. Seven pucks were lost and the game called three times to shovel snow off the ice.

One great Wellington player Bobby Greer, who was destined for major league hockey and baseball, met a tragic death near Windsor. Bobby and his baseball coach were returning from Florida where Bobby had been signed by the Toronto baseball club. Their car crashed into the rear end of a parked truck and both died instantly.

Baseball-wise, many county sportsmen and expatriates will recall the great club of 1933 when Jack Yanover took his Picton team to the all-Ontario intermediate A championship.

Yanover's team swept league opposition aside including Napanee and the great Lefty Poitzer and equally great Walter Gerow senior.

It entered the finals against the Southampton Fishermen, a series that saw two of the best southpaw pitchers in Ontario hookup in fiercely - fought mound duels.

"Warpy" Phillips was the Picton lefthander who faced western Ontario's best forkside "Lefty" Goldsmith. Picton lost the first game in Southampton 1-0 and rook the second 2-0 in Picton.

The third and deciding game was played in Guelph on a snow blown field around mid-October. It was the first time a baseball game had been broadcast to Picton. County fans dug up $100 for the broadcast. Wes McNight of CFRB announced the first half of the game and this writer took over for the second half. We were on our stomachs atop the Guelph stadium in an inch of snow.

It wasn't Picton's day and Lefty Goldsmith won the title for his Fishermen by an 8-2 count.

But the home town fans in Picton were not downc a st. They met the team with a band at Bloomfield some five miles out of Picton and escorted it in a torchlight parade to the Royal Hotel where they were royally welcomed.

But Picton and Prince Edward have kept pace with the progress of sport. Picton now boasts a modern community centre with a regulation hockey surface and modern curling rink. Wellington built its enclosed arena in the mid-thirties.

In minor hockey both centres have boasted championship teams. Hundreds of county "kids" now enjoy the latest skating and hockey facilities.

Minor hockey advanced to the stage where a few years ago Wilson "Dutch" Ainsworth of Wellington was presented the Ontario Minor Hockey Association Gold Award for having contributed the most to minor hockey in Ontario for the current season.

Fishing is synonymous with Prince Edward County. Its inland and shoreline waters are among the most prolific in the province.

Bass, pickerel, pike and the fighting muskie are here. West Lake and East Lake are the homes of the bass and pickerel. Consecon Lake yields large pike, pickerel and bass. In some years the marshy lands near Wellington give up king size carp.

The county abounds in summer cottages, resorts and other tourist accommodation. Thousands of visitors from other parts of Canada, the United States and Europe avail themselves of its resources and well-known hospitality.

Truly a sportsman and tourist paradise.

Salute to Prince Edward County

Provincial Parks in Prince Edward Boast Finest Beaches in Ontario

By Margaret Haylock
Staff Reporter

PICTON — Prince Edward County's provincial parks allow tourists to "rough it" while enjoying camper comforts not ordinarily found in the great out-of-doors. Witness park signs marking all patches of poison ivy!

Outlet Beach Provincial Park, 11 miles southwest of Picton, boasts 482 developed campsites in three separate campgrounds. And that isn't all.

This park offers two miles of sand beach kept free of shad and other debris by a crew of workmen from the department of lands and forests.

Swimming facilities at Outlet Park are excellent for children and grown ups alike. Beach patrollers stand by to keep vacationers informed of each day's swimming conditions and to assist in emergencies.

Officially opened in 1960, Outlet Park has an average weekend attendance of 7,000 persons during July and August.

Record weekend attendance is 13,000 visitors. This record was made in 1968 when the Harmsworth Trophy Races filled the county with tourists.

Park Superintendent Robert Davison estimates the daily number of park visitors at 500. This figure excludes campers.

For holidayers at the Outlet there are several park activities planned to banish "dull moments."

Movies are shown in the amphitheatre each Wednesday and Saturday night. Each Sunday morning there is an open air worship service at the park conducted by Rev. Peter Breedveld, pastor of Bethany Christian Reformed Church, Bloomfield. Vacation Bible School for youngsters from 5 to 13 is held in the park daily during the month of July.

Outlet Park has a canteen where visitors can stock up on groceries and select souvenirs.

Total attendance at the park last year was 379,300.

The park opened on May 9 this year and will close Sept. 14. The department of lands and forests welcomes visitors to the Outlet in the winter months to view the miles of high ice banks formed by winter storms on Lake Ontario.

Sandbanks Provincial Park, while having no regular camping facilities, is an ideal place for swimming, hiking, and picnicking.

It is one of Ontario's natural environment parks which preserve for recreation and education areas of scenic, natural and historic significance.

Many years ago the park site was under water. Eventually a sand bar formed across the mouth of the bay, and gradually it acquired a shallow top soil with vegetation and a tree cover comprised mainly of white cedar.

The first road in this area ran from Bloomfield to Owen Point. Land owners came in and cleared the cedar forest. With the tree cover gone, the thin layer of top soil blew away, exposing the fine sands to the winds.

The road was relocated further south and landowners began to plant trees to stop the drifting sands as early as 1911.

With the establishment of the Sandbanks Provincial Forestry Station in 1921 extensive reforestation was begun. Since that date thousands of trees have been planted on sand prepared with hay and straw mulches and accompanied by wind barriers such as snow fencing, brush and varied vegetation.

Since 1957 when the area was designated as a provincial park, several parcels of privately owned land have been acquired to consolidate the southern boundary of the park. The park area is 1,210 acres.

Last year, 61,301 vacationers visited the Sandbanks Park. Only two miles from Outlet Park, Sandbanks Park offers five miles of tawny beach for sunning and strolling. Park Superintendent is Craig Mathieson.

North Beach, developed as a provincial recreation park in 1967, is located about five miles from Cornerore and Hillier. Essentially it is a sand bar between Lake Ontario and North Bay, a small lake near the western edge of the county.

The park offers no camping facilities but does have a mile of sand beach sloping gradually into the lake. Picnic tables dot the park, inviting tourists to spread their tablecloths and enjoy lunch by the lake.

This park opens in early April to accommodate smelt fishing, and remains open until after Thanksgiving Day.

Reforestation is conducted at North Beach, stabilizing the series of low sand dunes that tend to drift.

Lake - On - The - Mountain Provincial Park is basically a picnic area. Swimming is not encouraged in the lake and boats are not welcomed on its placid waters. This park is the only one in the county without "gate Houses." Admission is free.

Visitors can stroll in the park, admiring the "bottomless lake" that seems to be without source.

Picnic tables are set up near the water, and washroom facilities are provided by the department. Attendance at this park last year was estimated at 30,000 vacationers.

Prince Edward County's provincial parks each offer something different to summer visitors.

For campers and swimmers the Outlet is "in." Hikers enjoy the beauty of the Sandbanks Park.

North Beach offers picnicking and swimming, while Lake-on-the-Mountain charms tourists with legends surrounding its mysterious source.

Claremount Is Still Palatial

Apartment House Had Bright Beginning

Fine Home Built for Lawyer

PICTON — Once upon a yesterday a young architect carrying plans for a palatial home came to the town of Picton.

Stamford Warrington held the blueprints for Claramount, a show place he had designed early in the 20th century for Picton lawyer, E. M. Young.

Today the big yellow frame house located on Bridge Street stands largely ignored by passersby.

Converted into an apartment building by the late Fred Van Dusen and now owned by Mr. Harry Smith, Toronto, its occupants come and go seemingly not knowing and not caring what stories the fairy tale palace could tell.

Edward Young, builder of Claramount practised law in an office near the town hall until his death in 1936. Married to Clara, daughter of Wellington Boulter, he named the house in her honor. Prince Edward contractor Alva Brewer constructed the house, which was Georgian Colonial in design. The 10-acre estate was landscaped with rose arbors, lilac groves, fountains and alabaster urns. The county's first swimming pool graced Claramount's grounds.

A low stone fence, broken only by a circular drive, fronted the estate. Claramount was furnished almost entirely in antique with many of the pieces from Europe.

Edward Young and his brother-in-law G. E. Boulter piloted what was probably Prince Edward's first speedboat. The Wildfire raced in Picton each year on Civic Holiday. Top speed for the craft was about 18 miles per hour.

Stabled at Claramount were a fine team of chestnut driving horses prized by Mr. Young for their beauty and action.

The Royal Military College in Kingston once bargained for the pair as officers' mounts. Their owners refused to sell. The horses were a part of the gracious way of life that had become Claramount.

Whenever Mr. and Mrs. Young's daughter Bernice went driving with her pony Bobby, the family greyhounds loped behind. The dogs patrolled the estate and were familiar companions of Mr. Young when he walked into town.

Claramount was often opened for parties. The piano which stood in the drawing room provided music for dancing. Girls radiant in long gowns and white gloves moved gracefully throughout the elegantly furnished rooms.

Bernice Young was the princess of the fairy tale. She fell in love with the architect who designed her father's house. Stamford Warrington made her his bride shortly after World War I.

Now widowed, she spends her time travelling around the world. Her parents both died prior to 1940.

At their death, Mrs. Young's sister Lillian Boulter, moved to Claramount. Upon her death 15 years ago the home was sold to Fred Van Dusen who renovated it to apartments. The antique furnishings were sold privately to dealers.

Claramount was more than a home, it represented a way of life that has vanished with the years and will never return. Today, Claramount stands somewhat forlornly, symbolizing all that is past.

Million Dollar Mushroom Plant To Locate Near Wellington

Right out in the country! That just about sizes up the location of the property Campbell Soup Company purchased to build their new multi-million dollar mushroom growing facility.

But who cares! At least the company is there in Prince Edward county, two miles outside the village of Wellington.

Construction has not begun yet on the factory but the land has been surveyed and staked out and soil and water tests have been made so that now there's nothing left to do but build, hire and produce.

With an Ontario Development Corporation forgiveable loan of maximum $500,000, the $3-million plant that will be constructed by the company will be one of the most modern in Prince Edward county. One hundred area people will be provided jobs and the construction of the plant will result in the elimination of over $1 million worth of food imports from the United States each year.

Officials of the company at their Toronto headquarters say that the plans for the factory are already drawn and ready to go.

However, since the contract to construct the facility has not yet been awarded, public relations officer J. D. Young would give no tentative date for beginning of actual physical construction or a projected production date.

Property was purchased by the company through the efforts of Hallowell reeve George Vincent and Wellington reeve Robert Boyce who optioned the land originally from Wellington farmer Ronald Conley.

The deal was sealed last April

The signs on the outskirts of Wellington say "Wellington — The Friendly Village" and these signs tell the truth. We indeed welcome all who visit here and invite them to return. In the heart of Prince Edward County, Wellington is a quiet but promising community with future plans for increased activity — on the industrial and social level. Also a thriving tourist industry with fishing, boating and swimming in abundance, shows even better things to come.

Please, Don't Sneeze

Quinte Island Theatre performers kibitz in a scene from the play, Please Don't Sneeze by Chris Wiggins.

Thos. Crothers' Dream Now Theatre Group

SANDBANKS — The name of the play?

"How to organize a little theatre group in Prince Edward."

In Act one, scene one, leading man, Thomas Crothers carried what was "only an Irishman's dream" to Prince Edward Collegiate Institute board members, seeking support.

The plot thickened. In the final scene the Irishman gained backing for one of the most original cultural projects initiated here.

Thomas Crothers is now director of The Quinte Island Theatre organized last year. Before arriving in Canada he ... with a repertory group in Ireland. For the ... he has been a teacher at PECI.

The 12 student members of the Quinte Island Theatre had their "grand opening" June 29, in the recreation hall of Lakeshore Lodge, a tourist resort operated by Dr. and Mrs. Lawson Mackie.

George Hees, MP Prince Edward-Hastings, attended the young theatre group's premiere performance cutting the ribbon at opening ceremonies. Toronto author Chris Wiggins came to the opening and watched Quinte Island Theatre perform his play, Sinbad and the Mermaid.

Since opening, matinee and evening performances have been staged three days weekly. On Tuesday's Sinbad and the Mermaid captivates young audiences. Rumplestiltskin is presented each Wednesday, and on Thursdays Please Don't Sneeze is performed by the Q.I.T.

The people of Prince Edward County seem eager to co-operate with this live-theatre group. Cast members travel to and from Lakeshore Lodge in a bus donated for their use by a Picton coachline.

Costumes belong to the theatre wardrobe abundantly stocked following a clothing drive last fall. Old ball gowns, frock coats, and top hats were donated by public spirited people who rummaged through their attics.

A West Lake couple donated use of a vacant home as a dining and makeup area. Props are also stored there.

A prominent Prince-Edward County photographer snapped a number of photos of the players in costume then gave them to the QIT for its publicity.

Prince Edward County Council granted funds to assist the budding group this summer. Contributions have been made by a number of individuals as well.

Promotion is "the" activity of Quinte Island Theatre right now, in the words of director Thomas Crothers.

QIT cast members are daily discovering more ways to boost their project. For instance, it was learned many tourists find it difficult to reach Lakeshore Lodge because its location has not been marked on signs pointing to Qit. The solution? New signs. Campers would like to bring their children to the theatre but often the "men of the tents" are using the families' cars to commute to work. The QIT intends to send a bus to Outlet Park for campers and their children interested in seeing the plays.

Mr. Crothers also hopes to run a bus to Belleville to pick up theatre parties and transport them to Lakeshore. Chris Wiggins and other pros see great potential here for live theatre," remarked Mr. Crothers.

"I think," added the director, "that our work this year has put us in line for grants." Ultimately Mr. Crothers hopes to see the theatre in Prince Edward emerge as a school and community effort as opposed to a guild.

Members and sponsors of the theatre would like to have a hall in which to stage productions this winter. The Milford Church has been suggested as a possible headquarters for the actors.

Tom Crothers, in the meantime, looks forward to taking a play on tour this summer to recreation parks in Belleville.

An Irishman's dream is apparently shaping into reality.

Chapel Early Church

PICTON — Erected in 1809 on land donated by Stephen Conger — a loyalist from New Jersey — who settled with his family in Hallowell in 1787, The White Chapel was the first Methodist church in Prince Edward County.

It was also one of the earliest Methodist Churches in Upper Canada.

Built by William Moore and financed by local subscription, The White Chapel has been maintained as a place of worship for a longer period than any other church of Methodist origin in Ontario.

An anniversary service is conducted at the chapel each year in June. Its interior has been carefully preserved and all church records photostated for display.

Two miles from Picton the historic site is of great interest to tourists passing through Prince Edward County.

Getting Your Goat?

Mrs. Tom Fox, left, stands with one of her favorite goats while daughter, Alicia, right, holds a registered Nubian Goat.

Goats on Bloomfield Farm Are Touch of Holland

PICTON — Who lives in Prince Edward County? "Little Spain," as the county is nicknamed, is home to people of varied backgrounds and interests.

Mrs. Tom Fox immigrated to Canada from Amsterdam, Holland, 15 years ago. She settled in Prince Edward County where she met and married her husband who is a farmer in the village of Bloomfield.

While Mrs. Fox had left her picturesque little homeland she brought with her fond memories of its ways.

In Holland goats are a common sight in the pasture fields, separated only by creeks. Mrs. Fox explained that horses roaming the fields soon learn to jump the creeks if left in the fields alone. If a goat is turned out with the horses the equines cease to be "jumpy." Instead they graze contentedly with their bleating mascot.

Mrs. Fox and her husband have no horses on their farm but they do keep goats. Mrs. Fox has a herd of these sure footed animals including at least three different species. Among the herd are English Alpine, Toggenburgh, and Nubian goats along with what Mrs. Fox terms "just goat" goats.

Milked twice daily the nannies give two quarts at each milking. Members of the Fox family all like to drink fresh goat's milk.

Scooping up a baby goat in her arms, blonde and pretty Mrs. Fox somewhat resembles the storybook heroine, Heidi. For her the goats are a little bit of Holland right in her own back yard.

Born in Sophiasburg township 36 years ago, Mrs. Grace Jamieson has seldom left the county of her birth in her lifetime. Married to farmer Albert Jamieson, she recalls working beside him in the fields of their Chuckery Hill farmland near Glenora.

She holds clear memories of Picton's market square on Saturday mornings when all the farmers drove to town.

Horse and buggy days made it difficult for country folks to get a doctor in times of sickness. Mrs. Jamieson remembers delivering more than one squalling youngster into the world while a tardy doctor drove as quickly as he could to the mother's bedside. She says she will always remember sitting with a neighbor who was dying with a ruptured appendix while a farmhand rode six miles into Picton for a doctor. "Then all anyone knew to do for him was to put hot cloths on his side," she remarks, shaking her head.

Widowed in 1919, Mrs. Jamieson moved to Picton where she raised her three children. Today she resides at Rest Haven Nursing Home, Picton, keeping very much abreast of progress in her county.

Roma Mishra has lived in Picton for only three years. This pretty "Indian Princess" came to Prince Edward County with her family from the town of Chandigarh, India.

Reputation Undeserved

Bee in Bonnet Not Uncommon Event

WELLINGTON — Occasionally getting "a bee in his bonnet," or to be accurate — in his bee veil.

It's an occupational hazard faced by the founder of the largest apiary in Prince Edward County, Mr. Marvin began his apiary in 1922 with a single swarm of bees. The following year he purchased 13 additional hives.

Today, he looks on as his son, Douglas, cares for more than 600 hives scattered through Hillier, Amelissburg and Hallowell townships.

Douglas Marvin showed interest in his father's apiary while in his teens. When Mr. Marvin discussed selling the hives because of ill health, his son decided to keep business "humming" by taking full responsibility for them.

In June, he supervised the unloading of 266 new hives purchased in Owen Sound for the apiary.

Bees in the Marvin apiary are of the three - banded Italian species. This type is favored by the Marvins because it is the gentlest and easiest to handle of any variety. Other species include the Caucasian and Carnolean bees.

"Bees have a bad reputation that is undeserved," remarked William Marvin. He verified the popular concept that they will not sting unless they are annoyed.

The "honey harvest" begins in the latter part of July and continues through August. In the past few years the honey crop, according to the Marvins, has been poor. Once it was not uncommon to expect a yield of about 100 pounds per hive each season. Today, each hive can be expected to produce about 40 pounds. This reduction can be attributed, in Mr. Marvin's opinion, to the farmers' refusal to sow sweet clover and alsike.

"The department of agriculture has suggested that there is something harmful to cattle in sweet clover," said Mr. Marvin. Alfalfa has is cut promptly these days and the bees don't get much chance to "buzz in the blossoms." This, too, accounts, in part, for the current low yield of honey.

Scales are used to check the production of individual hives. Mr. Marvin recalled reading the scales at 22.5 pounds of honey one day several years ago for a single hive. This is the record in his apiary.

Honey from the Marvin apiary is sold mainly from the farm. Each year a surplus, five to six tons are shipped to Belleville for sale.

What is the best remedy for a bee sting? Wellington's veteran bee keeper advises: "Just forget about it."

Well, I'll Bee

Mrs. John Sorensen with her collies Maestro and Sweet Talk

Indian Princess Does Folk Dance

foothills of the Himalayas, was designed by the same French architect who drew the plans for the United Nations Building.

As a child of six, Roma studied Indian folk dancing as part of her school curriculum. Later she took additional lessons in dancing at a private school.

Roma began to dance with the Kingston Folk Art Council shortly after arriving in the county. She has performed Indian ritual dances at Queen's University, The 401 Inn, The Kingston YMCA and various other places in the city of Kingston.

Dressed in the colorful sari of her native land, Roma conveys the emotions of her dancing with her hands and eyes.

The 15-year-old Indian girl will be a student at PECI next September.

John and Karen Sorensen arrived in Prince Edward County from their native land of Denmark 12 years ago. Mrs. Sorensen, who had learned to train dogs as a child in her homeland began to raise German Shepherds in the county. After breeding these dogs for a time she sold them and started to raise collies.

Mrs. Sorensen found sale in the county for all the puppies she raised and began to wonder if dog obedience classes might not be welcomed by canine enthusiasts.

She held her first dog obedience classes in Prince Edward County seven years ago with an enrolment of 13 "students."

These training sessions turned out successfully and graduates of the course performed at the Sportsman's Show held in the county centre that spring.

The Eyes Have It

Roma Mishra, 15, Picton, a native of India who now dances with the Kingston Folk Art Council. In Indian dancing the eyes and hands tell the story.

Mrs. Sorensen has continued the classes each year and estimates about 200 dogs from the county and nearby areas have graduated "cum laude."

The attractive Danish trainer also teaches advanced obedience classes. These "university courses" include teaching the dog to take hurdles, to retrieve, and to perform signal exercises. These advanced classes lead to a CDX (comparion dog excellent) utility degree for the dog.

Mr. and Mrs. Sorensen live in a country home at East Lake with their four children, Hanne, Ilse, Jessie, and John junior. A home in the country has been their dream since coming to the county. Now they have plenty of room for their kennels and a large front lawn which is the official "campus" for dogs attending school under Mrs. Sorensen's direction.

These are the people of Prince Edward County. Some of them were born here, others left their native lands to settle in the county. Each one is contributing to Prince Edward in his or her own way.

Cement Plant Largest Employer

Lake Ontario Cement Limited is the largest employer of labor in Prince Edward County and pays the most taxes. The $30,000,000 investment it has in land and plant in Picton provideds a stabilizing factor in a largely agricultural area which is otherwise subject to the usual vagaries of weather and current market conditions.

"Because of the large financial expenditure that is required to set up a cement plant," said LOCL President R. D. MacLean, "It has become a permanent member of the community. On the other hand, less capital intensive industries can come into being and then move out of the district at the discretion of the Company. The reliability of the continuing economic contribution of Lake Ontario Cement, is, therefore, an important factor."

Impressive ceremonies marked the official opening of the Picton plant on June 25, 1958. The plant then had a designed capacity of 7,200,000 bags of cement per year.

At the present time, in their 12th year of operation (the plant actually started production in June, 1957) and due to expansion programs carried out in 1964 and 1965, their production capacity is 20,000,000 bags per year. Lake Ontario's Picton plant is the 23rd largest cement plant in North America; the 8th largest dry process plant in North America and the 5th largest in Canada.

The plant and quarry cover an area of approximately 700 acres, which land is believed to contain a limitless supply of high grade limestone, the basic raw material of cement manufacture. Prior to LOCL setting up its plant, the limestone was not exploited significantly as a natural resource.

Much of the production from the plant is shipped out of Picton by water. Two cement carriers are employed full time in transporting cement to Rochester, Rome, Ithica, Toronto and Windsor. The M. V. Metis with a capacity of 34,000 barrels and the M.V. Day Peckinpaugh with a capacity of 8,000 barrels. Including material shipped into the plant, LOCL activates about 600,000 tons of shipments annually through the port of Picton. Overland shipments in Ontario are handled by Triad Truckways Ltd., an independent trucker which contributes nearly $400,000 to the economy of Prince Edward County through wages, taxes, fuel and services.

Coal is the fuel used in plant operations and is received at the dock in self-unloading ships. Gypsum, one of the raw materials besides iron and silica sand which must be purchased elsewhere, is received in the same manner and is off-loaded directly to its stockpile area.

The usages in a plant of the capacity of Picton are tremendous: 3,500 tons per day of limestone; 1,500,000 gallons per day of water (for low temperature cooling); 350 tons per day of coal; 250,000 KWH per day of hydro electric power; 1,000 manhours per day of labor.

Approximately 200 are employed at the plant in Picton, generating an annual wage bill in this area of about $1,600,000. An additional $200,000 per year is spent in the district in the form of local purchases. Last year the company paid over $180,000 in municipal taxes.

Over 1,250,000 tons of limestone are blasted from the on-site quarries each year for use in making the cement. The limestone is first crushed to pieces about the size of a baseball, and then is crushed in a second stage to pieces smaller than a marble. It is then conveyed to ball mills, where it is ground finer than face powder.

Other materials are added and the blended mixture is burned in a kiln. The largest kiln at the Lake Ontario plant is 13½ feet in diameter and 500 feet long.

The material resulting from the kiln treatment (2700 degrees Fahrenheit) is called clinker, a glass - hard product which is discharged from the kiln into a cooler. Through chemical changes which occur during the burning, the clinker emerges as a chemically new substance.

A small quantity of gypsum is added to the clinker and the mixture is ground in ball mills to a powder. This powder, known as Portland cement is so fine it will pass through a screen which will hold water.

In the course of producing the cement, LOCL utilize nearly 100,000,000 KW hours of electrical energy per year at a cost of over half a million dollars.

Craftswoman Teaches Art Of Caning and Rushing

PICTON — When Picton craftswoman, Mrs. Edward Hawkins isn't "raising cane" she turns to her second hobby, "rushing things."

An expert in the arts of caning and rush work, Mrs. Hawkins conducts classes in these crafts at Benson Hall, sponsored by the Prince Edward Arts and Crafts Association. She has taken a teacher's course at Whitby Women's College and estimates she has instructed about 65 county residents in her chosen crafts.

Mrs. Hawkins learned the ancient art of caning from a young German girl and had been practising it for some time before enrolling five years ago in a furniture refinishing class offered at night school. While refinishing antique chairs as a school project, Mrs. Hawkins restored them to their original beauty by caning the seats. Her fellow students became interested in caning and asked for instruction in this art. This request led to the recognition of caning as a formal course under sponsorship of the county's arts and crafts association.

Rush work is a fascinating craft that Mrs. Hawkins admitted she learned on her own, using an old text book as her chief guide.

The history of rush work dates back to the Anglo-Saxons when loose rushes were used for floor coverings. The early Egyptians also wove rushes and today the British Museum displays a rush stool taken from the pyramids.

Between 1720 and 1780 English furniture makers used rush extensively for seats and stools. Early Canadian settlers from Europe brought rush patterns here, using them to design attractive seats.

Mrs. Hawkins gathers many of the rushes she works with at South Bay, Consecon Lake, and West Lake. She remarked that the Prince Edward County is typified by a pretty green streak running the length of its blade.

"It must be gathered just as the flower buds are forming seeds, then tied in loose sheaves and dried in a dark, airy barn," said Mrs. Hawkins.

A chair crafted by Mrs. Hawkins from rushes collected at South Bay was displayed last summer at South Marysburg Museum.

Mrs. Hawkins has been asked to display her work at several district county fairs this fall. She looks forward to these opportunities to acquaint people with her crafts and hopes for a display at Prince Edward County Fair in September.

Mrs. Hawkins, a long time employee of the Bell Telephone Company, originally chose caning as her "retirement hobby." No longer working for the telephone company Mrs. Hawkins is constantly "on the go" with her caning and rush work demonstrations.

Retired? No, this energetic lady has simply changed jobs.

Rushing Things

Mrs. Edward Hawkins, Picton, displaying samples of caning and rush work. Mrs. Hawkins teaches these crafts at Benson Hall under sponsorship of the Prince Edward Arts and Crafts Association.

No Longer King, Horse Holds Own

PICTON — No longer king of the road in Prince Edward County, today the horse holds court in the show ring and on the race track.

With the coming of the Model T, horses "took a back seat" as a method of transportation. Tractors eventually replaced the fine teams of draft horses once found in the fields of the Prince Edward. But the "old timers" can still remember War Whoop, the spirited sorrel stallion owned and raced by G. E. Boulter, and E. J. Healey's standardbred, Won't Dance, and the magnificent imported draft sire, Romulus, owned by Northport farmer W. E. Baker.

War Whoop was a winner of the Queen's Plate and for many years his record for the three and seven mile races remained unbeaten.

Romulus was the first Percheron stallion in Canada. An Arab cross, this fine stud sold for $1,600.

Today in Prince Edward County the horse has staged a comeback. A number of promising standardbreds trained in the county race at tracks in Belleville, Kingston, Connaught Park and Garden City. Cameron Wannamaker, RR 1, Consecon has raised and trained some of the finest standardbreds in this area. His colts race annually in Toronto where they match speed with the best on the track and often win.

Walter Demille, president of the Prince Edward County Agricultural Society, trains and drives several promising colts. Among the horses in his stable is the standardbred mare, Miss Clover Grattan, one time winner of the Hiram Walker Stake at Kingston. Now a broodmare, "Cheer" is raising speedy colts to follow in her hoof prints.

Charles Culmer, Picton, has put Prince Edward County on the map with his unbeatable parade horse, "The Rackaterr". Imported from the United States this regal American saddlebred, who stands 17 hands high, has competed and won in parade classes throughout Eastern Ontario and Quebec.

Interest in pleasure riding and western games runs high in the county. Three horse clubs have organized here within the past five years. The Quinte Western Horse Association, The Cherry Valley Western Horse Association, and The Shannonburg Riding Club. The Prince Edward Spring Horse Show, an annual event sponsored by Picton Kiwanians, this year drew a record number of entries, including one from the United States.

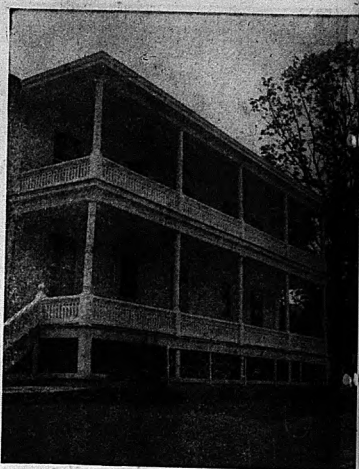
Members of fair's horse committee find it difficult to keep up with the increasing number of entries that flood the secretary's desk each fall.

The horse is still an important part of life in Prince Edward County, providing recreation and sport for children and adults alike.

Blacksmith Still Plies His Trade

PICTON — "Under a spreading chestnut tree,
The village smithy stands . . ."

For Prince Edward County farrier, Arthur Dance, the village was Allworth in Berkshire, England. Here he mastered his trade, apprenticing to the local blacksmith as a lad of 13. He became a full-fledged blacksmith in 1913, and immigrated to Canada with his wife Elsie, in 1924.



Mr. Dance found his first job in Prince Edward County with Picton "smithy" Phillip Osborne whose shop was located at the present site of the Hegadorn home on Main Street East.

Later he opened a shop at Black Creek. Travelling by horse and buggy he drove from farm to farm, shoeing sometimes 20 horses in one day.

Cold shoeing was seldom practiced. Mr. Dance forged the shoes to a red hot glow, plunged them in water to cool then hammered them on the horses' hooves. Now cold shoeing is "in". Shoes are obtained ready made, mostly from Montreal and nailed on cold.

Prices were reasonable. New shoes could be purchased for 40 cents each. Selling price by the pound was five cents. Farmers bringing horses in for a reset paid 20 cents a foot.

Today Mr. Dance charges $1 a foot. A new set of plates for dinary shoes) sells for $3 while heavy shoes or those with special "grabs" cost about $5.

Former Saloon Now Farmhouse

This is Glenview, one time saloon on the Glenora Ferry Road east of Picton, which is now owned by Captain T. H. Lighthall and is used as a farmhouse. Back in the days of Sir John A. Macdonald the house was a roadside inn and saloon.

Historic Home on Bay Dates Back to Mid-1800s

GLENORA — "Glenview" the rambling white country home of Capt. and Mrs. Thomas Lighthall located at Glenora, near the ferry landings, was once a popular Prince Edward County saloon.

When Capt. Lighthall's grandfather purchased the attractive frame house in 1897 it was known as Stone Mills Stage and Ferry Hotel. Research reveals that in 1861 the house was called The Steamboat and Ferry Inn and was run by a Timothy McGuire.

Sir John A. Macdonald visited this inn on a memorable occasion recorded in the book Sir John A. Macdonald, by Donald Creighton.

Following an election in 1851, Sir John, exuberant over the victory of the Tories climbed to a balcony of the saloon and addressed the crowd below.

Capt. Lighthall, a retired Great Lakes sailor recalled that following the death of his grandfather, John Green, in 1919, the house, then called Glenview, became the home of his uncle, Mr. Harry Green.

At Mr. Green's death in 1963 the Lighthalls moved to the historic country home overlooking the Bay of Quinte.

Lift That Bale - - Modern Style

Canning its bountiful fruit and vegetable crops provides Prince Edward with one of its most valuable industries. Here an operator uses a fork-lift to stack the crates used to bring the produce of the farm to the processing plant.

Oldest House in Prince Edward

This is "The Manor," familiar landmark in the village of Wellington and believed to be the oldest house in the county. The old stone house was built by Daniel Reynolds, the first settler of the area, about 1770. The stone walls of the old residence are several feet thick.

Canning Industry in County Dates Back to 1882 Start

PICTON — Canning is probably Prince Edward County's oldest industry. In 1882 the late Wellington Boulter started the second canning plant in Canada at the Vincent Foundry on Mary Street in Picton. As early as 1885 the factory was packing 25,000 cases per year of peas, corn, tomatoes and fruit.

Wellington Boulter became a canning magnate because of his interest in progress. A salesman from a nursery stock company arrived at the Boulter farm one day with a story of a New York State factory which put vegetables in tin cans.

So intrigued with this idea was Mr. Boulter that he went to investigate and brought back with him a man by the name of "Yankee" Miller to superintend operations at the first factory in Prince Edward.

Five years after opening the Mary Street factory, Boulter built a small factory on his farm and two years later, opened a third on the Esplanade in Toronto.

In the 1890s the Boulters were putting up a complete line of peas, corn, tomatoes, beans, apples, pears, jams, jellies, chicken, turkey, and pork and beans.

Tin cans had to be made by hand. Peas in the pod were picked and brought to the factory to be shelled by hand while corn was cut from the cob by women using butcher knives. Cans were sealed and cooked for a while, then removed from the boiling water, vent holes opened to let the gas escape then resoldered and the cooking continued.

The farmer received $20 for a ton of unshelled pods of peas and 25 cents for a 60 pound bushel of tomatoes. This marked the birth of the canning industry in Eastern Ontario.

Today there are about 12 canning factories in Prince Edward County. These factories include the Baxter Canning Company Ltd., Bloomfield; the K. G. Conley and Son Co. Ltd., Wellington; East Lake Canners Ltd., Edgewater Canners Ltd., Northport; Greer Canning Co., Wellington; Hyatt Canning Ltd., Cherry Valley, the L. McCartney factory, Wellington; Par - O - Dice Farms, Bloomfield; Pleasant Valley Canners, Hillier; United Canners Ltd., Cressy and Wellington, and Waupoos Canning Co., Waupoos.

Prince Edward County's chief factory crops today are peas, tomatoes and corn.

William Greer, Greer Canning, Wellington, estimated his factory packs about 30 to 35 thousands cases of tomatoes each year.

The factory also packs approximately 5,000 cases of raspberries now, a significant drop from the 15,000 cases packed a few years ago. Mr. Greer explained that the berry yield is very poor due to what the Ontario department of agriculture describes as a "virus" in the berry bushes.

The decreased yield has affected the number of cases at the factory. Shortage of pickers is another reason fewer berries are canned in Prince Edward. According to Mr. Greer steps have been taken to correct both the problem of the virus and the shortage of laborers. The government experimental farm in Ottawa now has a movement on foot to develop a virus resistant berry plant.

The machine age is responsible for "the berry picker," a marvelous machine that takes the fruit from the bushes using the principle of vibration. Prince Edward County's Town Line Farms is experimenting with one of these modern picking machines.

Mr. Greer feels that with the development of a healthy berry plant and the eventual adoption of a machine for berry picking, there is hope for a better berry pack in years to come.

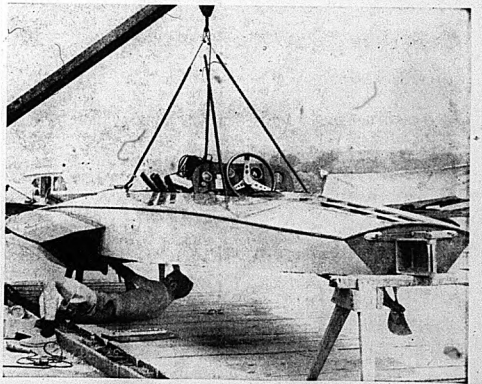
Tomatoes and berries canned at the Greer factory are shipped to Winnipeg, New Brunswick, Quebec and parts of Ontario.

J. Donald Baxter, Baxter Canning Ltd., Bloomfield, estimated that his factory packs approximately 135,000 cases of tomato juice each year. The factory also cans 15,000 cases of pumpkin pie fill.

Mr. Baxter said that none of his canned goods were shipped beyond the head of the Great Lakes because of the freight costs.

He described the cost of shipping canned goods to British Columbia and Edmonton as "prohibitive."

The industry pioneered in Prince Edward County by Wellington Boulter surely thrives, in its way a monument to this man of vision and enterprise.



Prince Edward County Warden George Foster, reeve of Sophiasburg, has a long record of service on his township council.

Little Chief Travelled Afar

Wellington Boulter, while travelling to the west coast by train, disembarked with several other passengers "to stretch his legs." The trip was nearly over.

Stopping at a pump to get a drink of water he lifted up a tin can set there as a drinking cup. Friends reported his surprise when he discovered the can had come from his own factory, thousands of miles away and carried the Little Chief brand name.

Power - - Without Wheels

An island community, Prince Edward County has seen every type of water transport along its shorelines — from Indian canoes to sailing and steam ships. Today, the county's sheltered shorelines have become a haven for sportsmen plying fast, powerful craft — like this powerboat receiving last-minute checkup before launching.

Campaign Chairman

Mrs. Jean Smith, campaign chairman for the 1969 United Appeal campaign, lists the aims and progress of the United Community Services to the Belleville Kiwanis Club.

New Outlook, Changing Society Keep United Appeal on Its Toes

By BARRY GRILLS
Staff Reporter

Target for the 1969 United Appeal campaign has been set at $130,000, 15 per cent higher than in 1968, it was announced yesterday.

Mrs. Jean Smith, campaign chairman, made the announcement while replying to a question after an address to the Belleville Kiwanis Club at the club's luncheon meeting yesterday.

Mrs. Smith spoke about the aims and progress of the United Community Services and of its new almost totally volunteer status.

In particular all funds will be given by Belleville citizens. An annual grant by the city of $7,000 has been cancelled at the request of the UCS.

"The UCS withdrew their appeal to the city council for a grant so that the taxpayer's giving is totally volunteer," she said.

"In the beginning, the United Appeal was formed to eliminate the many knocking on doors', from the individual agencies to raise funds."

"Four years ago, the United Community Services was formed and as well as being an umbrella for the agencies' fund, its function is to do the social planning and to integrate these agencies into the social needs of the community."

Mrs. Smith said that a tremendous job had been done in the planning, co - operation and co - ordinating of all the resources of the community that play a role in the health, recreation, education and well-being of all the citizens.

She listed a number of volunteer committees set up to the above aims.

"A pre-school orientation group started up one afternoon a week and expanded to two afternoons a week at Queen Alexandra School. Mothers were invited every two weeks to observe and have a consultation with their volunteer teachers. This was so successful that it is expected to be expanded in the fall to three or four more schools."

Mrs. Smith spoke of a health services committee and needs for the elderly.

"The committee has made a survey and found that there were over 3,000 senior citizens in Belleville, many of whose needs are not being met," she said.

"In co-operation with the public health department recommendations were made as to these needs. In September the committee will organize to act on these recommendations."

Mrs. Smith also discussed other committees that were set up to initiate a housing registry, to integrate new Canadians into our social and cultural life and to prevent crime and delinquency.

"Each spring the admission and budget committee meets with the agencies to discuss their future plans, changes in the area, needs and to set down their programs for ensuing years," she explained.

"The progress of the previous year is reviewed and in this way the agencies are kept alert as to the needs of the fast-growing community."

"In order to keep up the social planning that has occurred, the community has got to unite itself to see to it that these agencies' programs are utilized to their full advantage."

She told the Kiwanians that the aim of UCS was to help people to help themselves rather than doling out relief.

"As some of the agencies' functions are being absorbed by the government such as in the health field, it is more important than ever that people of the community be interested and involved in their community."

"Our expenses are limited to paper and advertising — five per cent as compared to 24 per cent when each agency has an independent canvass."

"If it comes to the point where this social planning is taken over by our taxation body the rise in cost is obvious as the volunteer drops out of the picture."

Outline of Events

J. K. Fleming, public relations chairman for the 1969 United Appeal Campaign, outlines the schedule of United Appeal Week slated for September.

Week-Long Program To Emphasize Appeal

The 1969 United Community Services campaign for funds will have a new look this year.

Kenneth Fleming, passenger sales manager at the CNR, has spent much of his time, at the agreement of the railway, organizing a United Appeal week in Belleville in September.

Mr. Fleming, as public relations chairman, outlined the basic agenda for the week starting Saturday Sept. 13 to Saturday, Sept. 20.

A CNR steam engine will be put to use on the Saturday and Sunday to supply transportation for children in the public school age level from Belleville to Anson Junction near Stirling.

The train, probably in service for the last time, will make four round trips each day.

Monday, CFB Trenton will get into the act when a number of airplanes will fly over Belleville as a prelude to a fly-over by a helicopter.

The helicopter will drop 500 colored plates, each with a number. Belleville citizens will then be instructed to keep the plates providing themselves with an opportunity to win prizes. About 40 of the plates will have prize winning numbers.

Tuesday will see a fiddlers' contest at Zwick's Island and Wednesday Dick Lovering of CJBQ radio station will be the host for a Trent Valley Jamboree session.

Thursday will see a beauty pageant to select Miss United Appeal for 1969.

Mr. Fleming explained that 15 major industries in Belleville will be asked to select a girl to enter the contest. With 15 entrants ensured, he hopes other girls will enter the contest as well.

Part of the beauty pageant facet of the week will be a parade featuring the girls to leave the firehall on West Moira Street and go to Zwick's Island.

Friday will be dedicated solely to the younger element of the city. Specific details of what will be available for Belleville's young people that day have not been finalized.

But it has been arranged that the Belleville Family YMCA will open its doors for swimming and other activities.

Saturday will wind things up with a massive square dance in the market square near the Belleville arena. At least 500 dancers will be in attendance for the affair.

Sept. 1, Belleville residents will see a caboose make its way down Front street to be parked on the Central Taxi lot.

The vehicle will serve as campaign headquarters during the campaign from Sept. 22 until Oct.7.

It will be painted psychedelically as the result of painting contest. The painting of the caboose will be a gradual process beginning on the day it is parked on the lot.

Details on the UCS week have not been completed, but Mr. Fleming expects little deviation from the present outline of activities.

"We don't know what the reaction will be," he said, "but we're sure there will be one."

Belleville Week Sept 29-Oct 4

Mayors of Three Belleville's to Be Invited to City

Mayors of three communities in the United States with the name of Belleville will be invited to attend the opening of Belleville Week here, it was announced Tuesday.

Chairman for Belleville Week, Donald Soutter, said "there are only four cities in North America bearing the name of Belleville and the committee thought it would be a fitting gesture to have representatives from the other cities on hand for our activities."

Mayors from Belleville, N.J.; Belleville, Ill., and Belleville, Mich., are to be invited.

The week set aside to tell Belleville's story is from Sept. 29 to Oct. 4.

"Our meeting proved productive," said Mr. Soutter "and the format of the week is beginning to take shape."

Committee member Douglas Woodley reported that the Downtown Business Association was initiating plans to participate in the week, kicking off their activities with a night at Bleecker Auditorium at the fair grounds on Wednesday, Oct. 1. "The association has appointed Carl Kidd to be their co-ordinator," said Mr. Woodley, "and they are forming a committee of businessmen to look after their events. Preliminary suggestions indicate they might consider a mall for the downtown area."

Friday night has been set aside as a Young Belleville night and committee member, Bruce Nickson, reported that much of the activities planned for this night "must await the return to school." He is hoping to form the nucleus of a committee by this time and turning the operation of the Young Belleville night over to this group.

Monday night will be civic night with committee member Gerald Hyde as the co-ordinator. A small committee will be formed to look after activities tied in with the opening night.

"We are just beginning the task of preparing a guest list," said Mr. Soutter, "so at present cannot say who will take part in the opening ceremonies. However, we hope to have some national personalities on hand as well as people from the Quinte area."

One of the projects the committe hopes to see take place will be the playing of a NHL exhibition game. "The arena will be refurbished by that time," said Mr. Soutter, "and with a heated arena and 1,000 theatre seats, we think it would be a great kickoff to show the people in Belleville what the parks and arena people have done with the city facility. Right now we are asking three NHL teams to try and fit a game in Belleville into their exhibition schedule and we hope at least one will materialize."

The Belleville week activities will be undertaken at no cost to the taxpayer, said Mr. Soutter. "As a result we have no budget, but feel that there are so many people enthused about the idea that this is not an insurmountable obstacle."

Chief fund raising activity in the days leading up to the week-long festival will be the sale of lapel-size Belleville buttons. The colorful buttons, with the lower case 'b' which is the industrial commission trademark, will mark the wearers as Belleville Boosters.

Goal of the Belleville Week is two-fold, said Mr. Soutter. First it will provide an opportunity for the residents of the Quinte area to take an active part in the spirit of growth and faith in the future which has developed materially in the past few years. Nationally, the week will be designed to attraction attention to Belleville and to point out its economic advantages, its industrial growth and the fine opportunity for expansion."

Negotiation With China At Crisis

OTTAWA (CP) — Talks aimed at the establishment of diplomatic relations between Canada and Communist China are believed to have entered a new and possibly critical period.

The talks, involving Canadian and Chinese diplomats, have been going on in Stockholm for more than five months.

However, they are believed to have got down to gut issues only after the arrival in the Swedish capital of Peking's new ambassador, Wang Tung, a few weeks ago.

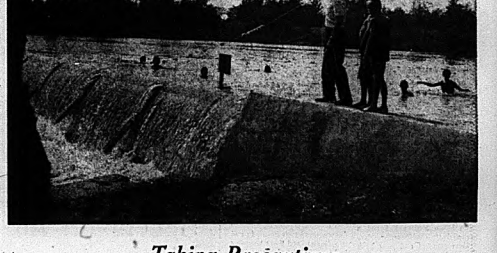
Water Rates Gain Approval

PICTON — Hallowell Township council has forwarded to Picton town council its study of the last proposed agreement for the supply of water and sewage facilities between Picton and the township.

Proposed rates and most of the terms in the agreement gained Hallowell council's approval. Under some terms of the agreement future installation problems seem likely according to Hallowell council.

Drug Raids Are Made At Calgary

CALGARY (CP) — Forty-four persons were arrested and 31 of them were charged with trafficking in drugs after a series of police raids Tuesday.



Warrants were issued for 83 persons in the raids, described by police as the biggest in the city's history. The other 13 arrested were expected to appear in magistrate's court today to hear charges read against them.

The raids were made by 45 officers and one police dog on the basis of information gathered by two RCMP officers and a 23-year-old city police recruit who infiltrated the drug-using community. They grew beards and dressed like hippies to blend into their surroundings.

Police said they seized an undisclosed amount of drugs and at least three loaded firearms.

All but one of the 31 charged were released on $200 bail on each charge — some were charged several times — and ordered to appear Aug. 6.

Thomas F. Determan, about 22, of California, had bail set at $500 on a charge of selling LSD. Magistrate R. T. Read set higher bail for Determan after Crown prosecutor E. J. McConnell said he was accused was a United States draft dodger.

Taking Precautions

City recreation director Lorne Williams directs installation of float markers at Cannifton Road dam yesterday. Dam is once more in operation after drowning tragedy on opposite bank of river, although strict safety precautions are in force in authorized areas.

Western Games Picton Aug. 3

PICTON — The Quinte Western Horse Association has scheduled a show to be held on Sunday, Aug. 3 at Picton Fairgrounds.

Chariot races, western games and saddle classes will be featured throughout the afternoon.

This is the association's first show in Picton and it will draw top game horses in the Quinte area into competition. Classes begin at 12 p.m., Sunday.

Moira River Swimming Area Now Open Under Supervision

Swimming is permitted once more at the Moira River Cannifton dam — but stringent safety precautions are in force.

The site, pleasantly flanked by a city parks project, was the scene of grim tragedy July 8 when the drowning of an 21-year-old Toronto boy was linked to vandalism at the dam.

Frantz Johnson was snared below water between stop logs loosened after steel retaining bolts were smashed some time previously.

The incident occured on the Moira's west bank, just as the city recreation department was inaugurating a swimming area across the river at its Riverside Park project.

Stop logs were removed and the river drained while officials pursued out preventive measures.

Yesterday, the scene was returning to normal.

Logs had been replaced in the dam after a new bolt was designed at the request of the Moira River Conservation Authority, which operates the water control system.

James McLeod, the authority's secretary-treasurer, said the new bolts are secured by a steel pin and riveted in place.

The bolts must now be cut with a saw before removal, he said.

Yesterday, recreation department officials designated an authorized swimming area above the dam with floating markers.

A previously planned lifeguard is now posted at the site.

However, there has an additional duty.

Mr. McLeod said the guard must check the dam bolts regularly and if anything is found amiss the area is to be closed immediately to swimmers.

The water is estimated about eight feet deep at the dam — heavy rains have boosted the river's level about one foot.

Shelled for 9 by Twins

Pneumonia Crimps McLain's Style

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Detroit Tigers' ace right-hander Denny McLain was sent home to Detroit suffering from a touch of pneumonia, a team spokesman said early today.

McLain was sent home from Minnesota Tuesday night with a fever after being shelled for nine runs in 4 1-3 innings as the Twins completed a 5-2, 11-3 doubleheader sweep over Detroit Tigers.

Dr. Len Michienzi, a Minnesota club physician who examined McLain, prescribed rest for the Tigers' 19-game winner, who was running a high fever.

"I haven't felt very good for three, four days and knew something was wrong," McLain said before leaving for Detroit.

The Twins cuffed McLain for 11 of their 17 hits in the nightcap after prevailing over 14-game winner Mickey Lolich in the first game. They hadn't beaten either of the Detroit aces since the 1967 season.

Elsewhere in the American League, Oakland Athletics nipped New York Yankees 6-5, Baltimore Orioles downed Kansas City Royals 4-1, California Angels topped Boston Red Sox 4-3, Washington Senators trimmed Seattle Pilots 4-2 and Cleveland Indians won a pair from Chicago White Sox, 4-3 in 11 innings and 9-5.

McLain, won 31 games last season and has sparkled again this year despite arm trouble and dental problems. He was "quite ill" before the Tigers left Detroit Monday, his business partner, Stan Drall, said Tuesday night.

McLain's no baby about pain, though. Drall added. "I wouldn't be at all surprised if he takes his next regular turn."

Reds Make Move To Challenge For Division Lead

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Cincinnati Reds edged within three games of Atlanta Braves Tuesday, in the scramble for the National League baseball Western Division lead, after a 4-3 decision over Montreal Expos.

San Francisco Giants stopped Chicago Cubs 4-3 in the only afternoon contest while the Los Angeles Dodgers split a doubleheader with Pittsburgh Pirates, losing 4-3 in 10 innings before winning the second game 6-5.

The third-place Giants are two games behind the Braves while the Dodgers are one game off the pace.

St. Louis Cardinals blasted San Diego Padres 10-4 and a scheduled doubleheader between Houston and New York was rained out.

At Cincinnati, lefthander Jim Merrik posted the first complete game by a Reds' starter since July 8 and only the 13th complete game of the season by the Cincinnati pitching staff. Merrik owns five of them as he raised his record to 10-4.

The Expos tagged Merritt for three of their hits in the fourth inning with Jose Herrara's double producing both Montreal runs.

The Braves exploded for seven runs in the second inning and were leading 8-0 after three innings over the Phillies in Philadelphia when the rains came. After a wait of 32 minutes, the umpires called off the game and the Braves' avalanche of base hits was washed out.

The rain stopped a good night for several Braves.

Phil Niekro lost what appeared to be an easy victory, which would have given him 16 for the year. Hank Aaron had two doubles wiped out, Orlando Cepeda three runs batted in and two singles, and Tony Gonzalez had two RBI and single go down the drain.

The Philadelphia fans saw Richie Allen in his first appearance before the home crowd after a 26-day suspension and showered him with a chorus of boos. He responded by blowing kisses toward the stands.

Sports on All Fronts

ST. HYACINTHE, Que. (CP) — St. Hyacinthe Gaulois withdrew from the Quebec Senior Hockey League Tuesday and instead will seek membership in the Quebec Senior B Hockey League. Club president Michel Pothier said the Gaulois were withdrawing because transportation expenses were too costly.

WEST VANCOUVER, B.C. (CP) — More than 50 competitors are expected for the Canadian junior cycling championships Saturday and Sunday. The cyclists, under 18 years of age, will compete in a 25-mile time trial along the winding, mountainside Squamish Highway north of Vancouver in the opening event.

Rookie Leads Eskimos In Romp Over Bombers

WINNIPEG (CP) — Terry Swarn made a brilliant Western Football Conference debut Tuesday night but he needn't wonder why he didn't get a standing ovation.

In fact, many of the 18,000 Winnipeg supporters may have cause to request a refund on grounds of no-show as the Edmonton Eskimos exploded into the 1969 WFC season by blasting the Blue Bombers 33-0.

Highly instrumental in the defeat was Swarn, the 21-year-old speedster the Eskimos found at Colorado State University.

The six-foot-three, 195-pound flanker caught three touchdown passes in the season opener, including one from halfback Jim Thomas whom everybody expected to run with the ball but didn't.

Thermus Butler took some of the spotlight with his touchdown. Linebacker Dave Cutler had two field goals, two converts and a single.

One of the field goals accounted for the 3-0 first-quarter lead and a single and converts on both of Swarn's second-quarter touchdowns helped Eskimos an 18-0 halftime edge.

Unconverted touchdowns by Butler and Sarn in the third quarter gave the Eskimos a 30-0 lead, with Cutler rounding out the scoring in the final 15 minutes with his second field goal.

Possibly the unheralded leaders of the offensive machine were quarterbacks Corey Colebour, who threw two touchdown passes to Swarn, and Charlie Fuller.

They alternated at the pivot position throughout the game and came out with a record of 12 completions in 22 attempts for 213 yards total.

Colebour went to the pass more often, trying 17 and completing 10 for 165 yards while Fulton hit once in four tries for six yards. Thomas' touchdown throw was good for 42 yards.

There was little to rejoice over on the Winnipeg side of the ledger unless it was the showing of backup quarterback Don Weiss who took over for John Schneider at the beginning of the second half.

Weiss completed five of 14 pass attempts for 89 yards and showed he could duck out of a horde of tacklers and run with the ball. He elected to carry himself three times and picked up 25 yards, one more than the explosive Dave Raimey who was given the ball six times.

The Bombers managed just seven first downs to Edmonton's nine as made 74 yards along the ground to Eskimos' 221; and mustered 102 yards through the air.

Bombers total offence was 162 yards, little more than the length of a football field, while Edmonton piled up 423 yards total gain.

Schneider tried 10 passes and hit with three for 13 yards for Winnipeg.

Thomas and Butler together accounted for 190 yards rushing, Butler held the edge with 123 yards in three carries. Thomas carried 12 tilties for 66 yards.

Swarn led Edmonton pass receivers with four receptions for 127 yards. His touchdowns were from 42, 46 and 37 yards out.

Cutler's field goals went for distances of 29 yards and 33 yards.

Riders '69 Success Depends on 'Appetite'

OTTAWA (CP) — Ottawa Rough Riders face Montreal Alouettes tonight in the first game of the Eastern Football Conference schedule and the question is whether the defending Grey Cup champions are hungry enough.

It's a perennial question asked of champions, but in this case Rider General Manager Red O'Quinn is asking it.

"We're apprehensive," he said Tuesday. "When you're coming off a championship year you wonder if your organization is hungry. You only know when your squad is down to size and you start playing league games."

O'Quinn is also worried about how hungry the Ottawa fans are, and not in the sense of their hot dog consumption during games.

The Riders didn't fill the 27,000-seat Lansdowne Park once last year during their regular-season march towards the 1969 Eastern Football League championship, although crowds were fairly healthy.

When the Riders won the Grey Cup in 1960 their advance season ticket sales jumped by 2,000 the following year. This year O'Quinn says they are up only by 150 to 200 to a total of slightly less than 10,000.

His biggest worry, however, may be more specific—namely the possible absence of Ken Lehmann, 1969 Canadian lineman of the year, in the opening match.

The middle linebacker announced his retirement from the Ottawa club Tuesday with a cryptic telegram to O'Quinn.

Taxi Rule Broken?

HAMILTON (CP) — Coach Joe Restic of Hamilton Tiger-Cats feels that some Canadian Football League teams are operating illegal taxi squads.

The last squad system of retaining players that can be inserted into a starting lineup when necessitated by injury to a first-string player is illegal in Canada.

"I can't say clubs are doing this for certain," Restic said today. "But I'll tell you this. Every now and then a player who isn't on a team's active list of 35 players will suddenly appear in the lineup.

"The player will never bust an assignment. They have guys that practice for six weeks and they still bust assignments."

Restic feels that this is proof that some CFL clubs do keep U.S. players around after their rosters are frozen at 35 men—no more than 14 imports.

Under Ottawa CFL rules, a player is not allowed to practice with a team unless he is on the 35-man roster or the injury reserve list.

Restric says he feels that some teams are trying to pay under-the-table salaries to players who have been released and become free agents if they are not claimed by another CFL club during the 48-hour waiver period.

"Don't get me wrong. I have no actual proof of this," Restic said, "I just know some of these fellows play too well after moving into a lineup for the first time. How can they play that well when they haven't been practising?"

and won't be in the lineup tonight unless he and the club can come to a satisfactory salary agreement.

The fact that Lehmann has been in the mainstay of the Ottawa line since coming to the club in 1952, along with his comment from his lawyer, Michael Anka, that the two parties are not "too far apart" on the salary issue could make the whole incident a temporary one.

On the other side of the field the Alouettes, cellar-dwellers of the Eastern Conference last year, are under-rated in O'Quinn's estimation—again a traditional comment on a last-place team.

"It'll be a tough contest. I feel Montreal has the best running attack in Canada right now."

O'Quinn remembers that the Riders had nearly run the wheels off devil quarterbacking of Carroll Williams last year in squeezing out a one win-one loss-one tie record with the Alouettes.

The Riders finished with nine wins, three losses and two ties last year. The Alouettes reversed this with three wins, nine losses and two ties.

The Ottawa club has essentially the same lineup this year that took them to the championship last year, with the exception of the fullback position. Jim Mankins of Florida replaces Bo Scott at fullback. Scott played out his option last year.

Must Live Up to Liske

Stamps' Field Boss Feels Pennant Pressure

VANCOUVER (CP) — Quarterback Jerry Keeling's main pressure is being No. 1 for Calgary Stampeders, a club that won the Western Football Conference title behind the slingshot arm of Peter Liske.

"Sure, I feel the pressure," Keeling said in an interview Tuesday night.

"But our pass receivers can catch the ball no matter who is throwing it. They make it much easier than it might seem."

Keeling, a former defensive halfback, gets his chance to make the sports writers forget the "second string" label tonight at 8 p.m. when he starts against British Columbia Lions in the WFC opener for both clubs.

He led the Stampeders to a 23-10 exhibition victory over the Lions July 6 in Calgary, but coach Jim Duncan is only cautiously optimistic.

"Frankly, B.C. is looking better this year than they have for the last four, particularly in their game against (Toronto) Argonauts," Duncan said.

And coach Jim Champion of the Lions has some statistics to support his claim that his club is "30 to 40 per cent improved on offence and better defensively."

The Lions, who finished fourth last year, rolled up a record of three wins and one loss in pre-season play, including a 27-25 victory over the highly-rated Argos last week.

And psychologically, the departure of Liske could give the Lions a big lift.

Liske, who played out his option last year to take a crack at United States pro ranks, picked the B.C. defence apart in the first game of the 1968 season to humiliate the Lions 41-0.

Keeling may have to experience some growing pains as a signal caller, but Calgary has a rock-hard defence and the best set of pass receivers in the West in Terry Evanshen, Herm Harrison and Gerry Shaw.

If the Stampeders have a weakness offensively, observers say it's their running game.

Calgary came out of its exhibition series with two wins, a loss and a tie and a knee injury to fullback Dave Cranmer. And running back Howard Starks, returning from a two-year stint in Vietnam, is still bothered by a groin injury suffered two weeks ago.

Duncan says he will have to do some juggling, "but just what will depend on how Cranmer and Starks respond to treatment between now and game time." Eddy Linterman will likely take Cranmer's spot if he's not ready. Linterman hits quicker than Cranmer, but lacks experience.

Latest word on progress of plans for another crack at senior hockey arrived here via a curious route: it consisted of a few notes etched on the reverse side of a "CJBQ Music Power Survey."

We assume this means that the Mo-Hawk organization members are setting out with a song in their hearts.

The Mo-Hawk Booster Club — with a membership up from last winter's 10 to a current 120 — are Working On a Groovy Thing.

Under president Jim Graham, the ultra-loyal boosters hope to find funds for new home and away Mo-Hawk sweaters, and bury the existing tattered sacks in The Memphis Underground.

Tomorrow, Tomorrow would be a good time for the Mo-Hawks to begin training for an anticipated 40-game schedule that tentatively opens at home Friday, Oct. 10.

Last winter's infamous slow start had the local hockey public wondering if it would take until The Year 2525 for Belleville to regain senior hockey prestige.

Last year nothing short of Crystal Blue Persuasion would get many people into the silvered seats of the Market St. Forum on chilly Friday Mo-Hawk nights, but I Wanna Testify that portable heaters and the new seats presently being installed could be the Breakaway the seniors need to ease their chronic financial woes.

Mo-Hawk powers-that-be also hope to put some Sugar Sugar in the kitty from their joint celebrity banquet project with the Morrison Junior Reg. 27. Even The Little Woman is invited.

But even with all this Good Ole Rock and Roll of pre-season enthusiasm, it will still take good players to keep Belleville from staying In the Ghetto of the OHA's Senior A society.

Potential Mo-Hawk supporters in the city will start Feelin Alright when they find out what calibre team will be vying for their $1.50.

It's too much to keep asking players that were in their prime in 1958 to keep the Mo-Hawks afloat by sheer Blood, Sweat and Tears.

What Does It Take?

A few defencemen built like Mama Cass, for openers.

Rumors that reach this office indicate playing talent is being scouted down Ottawa way, but we're waiting for confirmation via the next Top 30 chart.

And we'll tell you one thing, My Little Chickadee, unless players are being lined up right away, the Mo-Hawks will be moaning the sad Ballad of John and Yoko when September rolls around.

Gail Hornets won the Allan Cup, you may recall, and began organizational plans for the next season about two days later.

We in Belleville should Listen to The Band.

The Mo-Hawks Don't Have to Walk in the Rain, providing precautions are being taken NOW to ensure they are stocked with the talent that will boost them to the eight-team senior A's Magic Island of playoff qualifiers.

If the Booster Club's efforts can be being matched by those rinning the team being boosted, there is little doubt It's Getting Better.

If much proves not to be the case, Don't Wake me Up in the Morning.

City Minors Win Pair

Two Belleville teams brought home the honors after defeating two out of town teams Tuesday night.

In Tyke-Midget action the Belleville Lions trounced Port Hope 7-2 scoring six of their seven runs in the first two innings.

Both teams used two pitchers. Belleville pitching chores were handled by Terry Maguire and Steve Farrell who gave up only four hits, issued two walks and struck out six.

Belleville's leading hitters were Doug Dersnah with a triple and Terry Meagher with a double.

In the Tyke division Booth's TV pounded out 13 hits en route to a 9-4 win over Cobourg.

Bill Whalen went the distance for Belleville, allowing eight hits, and striking out eight.

It was a night for the hitters as Joe Moaski hammered out a homer, a double and two singles to lead the Belleville offence. Tony Meagher added a pair of triples while pitcher Bill Whalen contributed a single and a double, for Booth's TV.

WHAT A PAIR! is perhaps a good way to describe lawn bowlers Gerry Hyde (left) and Wally Lavergne (right). This pair will vye for Ontario championships Saturday in London — Gerry in the singles competition and Wally in the doubles along with Johnny Sager — and then return to Belleville Sunday to compete in the Corbin Gold Cup fours competition at the Belleville Lawn Bowling Club in what is billed as "Ontario's Lawn Bowling's Greatest Weekend."

Lawn Bowling in The Spotlight This Weekend

By GERALD HYDE

This weekend will climax considerable activity at the Belleville Lawn Bowling Club as the various committees get ready for what is billed as "Ontario's Lawn Bowling's Greatest Weekend."

Upwards of sixty-four mixed pairs from all over Ontario are expected to compete in the Watkin Memorial Gold Trophy Tournament for the day, Aug. 2. This tournament is sponsored by the Watkin family in memory of Mrs. and Mrs. George Watkin, one of the founders of the present Belleville Lawn Bowling Club, and in memory of his younger son, Gordon Watkin, twice a participant and winner of the Canadian Lawn Bowling championship.

The Watkin competition will get underway around 9.30 Saturday morning, continuing throughout the day until prize distribution at approximately 10 p.m.

The local Club, in cooperation with Calvert Distillers, will be hosts at a reception for all visiting bowlers participating in the weekend program of events following the distribution of prize awards.

Even while this social event is taking place, committee members will be transforming the prize display area from the barooms left by the disposition of the "Watkin Memorial" prizes and will be setting up those offered for the Corbin Gold Trophy Men's Fours Tournament which will be held all day Sunday.

This will be the 27th renewal of the Corbin Gold Trophy Tournament for Men's Fours and will commence at 9.30 Sunday morning.

A total entry of 40 teams is anticipated. His Worship, Mayor Dr. J. R. Scott will be present to officially welcome the guests to the city and to deliver "the first bowl," after which the traditional "spider" will be tied to the suitable award to the winner.

The Corbin Gold Trophy is the principal prize being competed for with the Lord Calvert Gold Trophy, the Belle Cleaners' Gold Trophy, the Gordon Watkin Memorial Gold Trophy, and the new John Labatt Gold Trophy being the second, third, fourth and fifth awards.

In the 26 previous years of this competition, no team has been able to match the record of the Kingston entry, skipped by Dick Edney, winners of the Corbin Trophy on four occasions, the second ranking Calvert on two occasions, and the third ranking Belle Cleaners' Trophy on two other occasions. Most of this team will be back to try again this year, although Mr. Edney, himself, is unable to attend because of a duplicate bridge championship committee.

Entries this year for this outstanding one-day men's fours tournament have been received from as far east as Montreal and as far west as London.

One of the entries accepted this year will consist of the four players who will be representing Ontario at the Canada Games Lawn Bowling Competition to be held later this month in Halifax, N.S. This team is made up of one player from each of the four provincial zones and includes skip Bill Anthony of Brampton, Vic Foxhall of Cobourg, (team captain), Bert Blissett of London and Jim Huber of Waterloo.

The newly-renovated Club House will be opened throughout the day for light lunches and meals served by the Ladies' Committee.

The Belleville Club will have seven entries in the tournament this year and these will be skipped by Percy Graham, Orlo Smith, Ab Wonnacott, Walter Elliott, Bruce Miller, Bill Fuller and Gerry Hyde.

The Corbin event follows, by one day, the annual Ontario championships in lawn bowling which will be held on Saturday at the greens of the London Thistle Lawn Bowling Club. Local interest will centre on the results of those championships with respect to the bid being made by John Sager and president Wally Lavergne, to win the Ontario championship in men's pairs and to have the right to represent the province in the Canadian championships to be held this year at the Oak Bay Lawn Bowling Club in Victoria, B.C. Aug. 25 - 27.

Similar interest will centre on the efforts of Jerry Hyde, Sr. to win the Ontario singles championship and to represent this province in the Canadian championships. A win for him would mark the second year in a row for his participation in these championships as he and Bruce Miller won the Ontario pair's championship last year and were runners-up in the 1968 Canadian championships.

Junior 'B's' Organize For 69-70 Season

By MALCOLM JOHNSTON
Staff Sportswriter

"We've got only one way to go — up!", Floyd Crawford asserted Tuesday after it was announced that he would handle the coaching reins of Belleville's Junior "B" for the second year at a row.

The Junior club, again to be sponsored by Harry Morrison and called the Morrison Realtors, wound up in the basement of the six - team Eastern Ontario Junior "B" Hockey League last winter.

Jim 'Snipe' Matthews, a member of the Junior team's executive, officially announced Crawford's appointment as coach and Harry Morrison's sponsorship of the club Tuesday, adding: "Things look better this year."

"I think our personnel has improved, we're going to have a new executive and better ice will be installed in the Memorial Arena earlier this year allowing us to get a better jump — everything adds up to a big improvement," Matthews added.

"We had only three experienced players last season and they were rookies," Crawford said. "We can't help but improve this year now that these boys have a year's experience under their belts."

"Three players — right winger Ray Summers, left winger — defencemen Ford Donaldson and defenceman Wayne Brown — are now overage and two or three others have been offered Junior "A" trials this fall," he added. "But three or four youngsters with previous junior experience have moved into town and I expect that they could help us immensely."

Crawford is in the process of laying plans for the coming season. He plans a training camp before the ice goes in at the Memorial Arena to help round the players into shape and get a jump on the other clubs in the league.

"We certainly aim to avoid a repetition of last year when we started slowly and never did get going," Crawford stressed, "so you can bet we'll be ready when the season starts this year."

Defensive weaknesses plagued the club last season — the local's allowed 220 goals in 30 games, 54 more than the next poorest defensive club and almost three times as many as the league-champion Peterborough Don Byes.

Crawford, a defensive stalwart of the World Champion Belleville Mercurys back in 1959, will direct his vast experience towards shoring up his defensive woes this season.

It's not that the club couldn't make use of some additional scoring punch, but what Crawford feels that the Morrisons are in greater need of defensive improvement.

Purpose the Same Despite Face Lifting

Departmental League Is 'Fun Loop'

Al Rump (left), the initial president of the Departmental Softball League, tells current president, Austin Watkin (right), how the league got its start back in the spring of 1961 as the pair discuss the progess of the league and its present role in the city softball world.

The Departmental Softball League has undergone an extensive facelifting since its birth in 1961, but the original concept of the league is still alive and well.

"It started out as a fun league primarily for older players and it was actually an inter-departmental league composed of teams from the various departments within the frame work of the city," commented Al Rump, who served as president of the Departmental League from its inception until the 1969 season.

"I feel that the Departmental League is a fun-type league with the number of errors and scores both being relatively high," added Austin Watkin, current league president.

Teams representing the Police Department, the Fire Department, Public Works, City Hall and Belleville Utilities were charter members of the league back in 1961.

Due to a shortage of players and the willingness of other concerns to enter the league, many of the original teams amalgamated; City Hall joined with the Public Works to form a team called the Combines and the Police and Fire Department teams combined with the excess players going to Belleville Utilities.

"Although it's getting to resemble an industrial league in a way, the Departmental League is basically for young steers on the way up or oldtimers who aren't quite good enough for a higher class of ball," Watkin added.

"The Commercial League is now the number one league but we've got a few oldtimers who can still play that calibre of ball but don't care to," Watkin continued.

"Today there are recreational clubs sponsoring plant teams in our league and I feel that the more recreational clubs that join, the more everyone will get a chance to play."

Union Carbide and International Hardware are sponsored by recreation clubs within the plants and the Post Office club is sponsored by the office social club," Watkin noted.

When the Departmental League was formed in 1961, Mel Barriage, a local landscaper and contractor, donated the Mel Barriage trophy to the league's playoff champions. In addition Barriage donates individual trophies each year to the members of the championship club.

"I feel that the league is on solid ground now," Watkin said. "It's been a case of making a set of rules and then making them stick."

Watkin added that he thought the league had more younger players this year than ever before and it was becoming more competitive all the time.

There are currently six teams — the Post Office, CN Combines, CN Turbos, Union Carbide, International Hardware and The Intelligencer in the Departmental League, but President Watkin feels that expansion time is at hand.

"I feel that as the league becomes better it'll expand, and considering the fact that we almost had eight teams this year and that new industries are coming to town we could well have eight or ten teams next year."

Cementmen Get Hot at Right Time; Drub Stinson's for 6th Straight Win

Point Anne Cementmen appear to have picked the right time to get hot.

Tuesday night the Cementmen trounced Stinson's Construction 9-7 to extend their winning streak to six games and force a three - way tie with Stinson's and Ellis Juniors for second place in the Commercial Softball League.

All three clubs sport 12-8 records and trail league-leading City Hotel — who have won 13 games and lost nine- by two points. In addition, the three second - place teams each have two games in hand over City as they near the conclusion of their 24 - game schedules.

Meanwhile Black Diamond Cheesmen kept alive their rapidly - dimming playoff hopes with their fourth straight win — a 7-1 shellacking of cellar - dwelling Belvedere Hotel.

Point Anne broke up a pitchers duel for their win — Stinson's starter Bob Swan had hurled three hitless innings and Cementman Jamie Hunter allowed only one hit over the same distance.

Four walks by Swan and one by reliever Al Carkner, three Stinson errors and singles by Ted Waite, Gerald Maher and Mike Cook produced eight runs for the Point Anne club.

Hunter allowed a run in the bottom of the fourth but stifled Stinson's with a three - hitter. He fanned four and walked a pair. Stinson hurlers Swan and Carkner gave up only five hits, but issued seven free passes while striking out five.

Point Anne's current winning streak started June 9. Since that time the Cementmen have outscored the opposition 35-8 and beaten every team in the league with the exception of sixth - place Corby's.

Winning pitcher Hunter helped his own cause with a air of hits and Ted Waite, Mike Cook and Gerald Maher each singled for the Cementmen.

Despite their fourth consecutive win the Cheesemen have their backs to the wall in their bid to catch the fourth and final playoff spot in the seven team Commercial Softball loop.

Black Diamond has 18 points and three games remaining in the regular schedule. The Cheesemen trail Stinson's, Ellis Juniors and Point Anne by six points and must win out and hope that one of the three clubs tied for second loses its final four games to fall into a fourth place tie with Black Diamond.

Don Holoway hurled a four - hitter and struck out seven Tuesday night in pitching the Cheesemen to their 7-1 win over Belvedere Hotel.

Wayne McConnell allowed nine hits in losing cause. He struck out eight Cheesemen and walked one.

Bill Goodfellow with three singles and Jerry Hill with a pair of singles and three rbi's paced the Cheesemen at the plate. Martin Walsh also a pair of hits for the Cheesemen while Dwight Rathwell and Wayne Woods both hit safely.

Gary Gow Bob Lloyd and George Daniels hit safely for the Hotelmen who have been eliminated from the playoff race.

Imlach Says No To Blair's Offer

MINNEAPOLIS (CP) — George (Punch) Imlach, former coach and general manager of Toronto Maple Leafs, has decided not to accept a contract coaching Minnesota North Stars, the National Hockey League club announced Tuesday night.

Wren Blair, general manager of the Western Division North Stars, said Imlach telephoned him from Toronto and told him he had decided to accept a private business offer.

Nature of the job was not disclosed.

Blair said Imlach told him the decision was "most difficult." He said Imlach said "despite several other offers in hockey, it narrowed down to Minnesota and the position I have decided to accept."

Imlach, winner of four Stanley Cups as coach of the Leafs, was fired at the end of last season after the Leafs bowed out in four straight games to Boston Bruins in the Stanley Cup quarter-finals.

Blair expressed regret at Imlach's decision, but said he understood the circumstances.

"I'm very sorry we did not get Punch. He's a fine hockey man and we have been friends for some time. . . . However, I understand his family's desire to remain in Toronto and I respect the decision Punch felt he should make."

Asked about the coaching position, Blair said he would meet soon with Walter Bush, president of the North Stars, and "we should come to a decision in a short time."

Weslock Fumes Over Club Ruling

TORONTO (CP) — The refusal by directors of the Rochester, N.Y., Midvale Golf Club to permit practice rounds has prompted Nick Weslock, Ontario Open and Amateur champion, and his Burlington clubmate, Paul Williams, to withdraw from the qualifying round for the United States amateur golf championship next Tuesday.

This is like Walter Hagen being refused permission to change his shoes in the clubhouse at St. Andrew's," an angry Weslock said Tuesday. "I guess there are a few bastions of snobbery left in isolated places in America too."

He said he has sent a letter to the United States Golf Association tournament-director, P. J. Boatwright, suggesting that in future courses be chosen where practice rounds are permitted.

Weslock said the tournament chairman, William Thorne, who is also the official in charge of the Rochester District Golf Association, had told him the Midvale course "was the type that makes it imperative to play at least one round in order, to score well."

Committee Expanded

Backbenchers Seek More Say

TORONTO (CP) — The legislature's select committee on procedure tried Tuesday to find a solution to the problem of government back-benchers who sometimes feel tongue-tied for eight months of the year.

Conservative members of the committee who are back-benchers said they were fed up listening to opposition speeches, while afraid or unwilling to speak themselves.

The 13-member committee reached general agreement on proposals to transfer consideration of some of the annual spending estimates from the legislature to a new standing committee on supply.

The committee on procedure was told estimates took up 261 hours, 55 minutes in the legislature last session—48 per cent of the total sitting time.

Conservative members said government back-benchers would have a better chance to participate if consideration of the estimates was transferred on an experimental basis to a supply committee.

Glen Hodgson (PC-Victoria-Haliburton) said there is a "feeling" that if a Conservative back-bencher intervened in debate on spending estimates, the intervention would not be good for the government.

Osie Villeneuve (P C-Glengarry) said it is "real punishment" to sit in the chamber for long hours, listening to opposition MPPs reading letters from constituents.

Members agreed the new supply committee should have 21 members and should work on the estimates of at least three of the 24 government departments in the next session.

Weapon Controls Soon

TORONTO (CP) — Attorney-General Arthur Wishart said Tuesday he expects to have new regulations on the use by police of weapons and crowd-control devices such as the chemical Mace.

The Ontario legislature passed a bill in June which gave the Ontario Police Commission the power to regulate the use of weaponry by all Ontario police forces, but the bill stipulated the regulations must be approved by the attorney-general.

At present, control over the use of police guns and other weapons is vested in local police commissions, a situation which led to severe opposition criticism in the legislature following several incidents of shooting by police.

Mr. Wishart said he is ready shortly are new regulations setting out standards of police discipline.

Sunday Supermarkets Decision for Cabinet

TORONTO (CP) — Attorney-General Arthur Wishart said Tuesday night that if a general demand arises in Ontario to allow supermarkets and other chain stores to remain open Sunday, the matter will have to go to cabinet for a decision.

The attorney-general said in an interview that at present each application for prosecution of a store under the Lord's Day Act is referred to him and he gives it careful consideration with a view to the store's location, the nature of its business and local needs.

This resulted in a situation "generally accepted by the public" where many small stores are allowed to remain open so the public may make small purchases of needed items.

Commenting on news reports about a growing trend for keeping chain food and discount stores open Sundays, he said he does not feel there is a public need for such business.

If a general approach for Sunday opening was made to him, the question would have to go to the cabinet.

Earlier Tuesday, a committee of 24 organizations, including the Lord's Day Alliance, unions and church groups, and representatives of three food store chains, called on the Ontario government to halt the sale of non-essential merchandise on Sundays.

Little Interest In Interest Probe

OTTAWA (CP) — The Commons Investigation into the cause and effect of high interest rates is faltering because of a lack of interest.

The House committee on finance, trade and economic affairs opened its inquiry June 27 with testimony from Louis Rasminsky, governor of the Bank of Canada.

It then set a deadline of July 22 for receiving word from any organizations wanting to submit briefs and send witnesses to testify at open sessions.

So far, an informant said, only one major organization—the Canadian Bankers' Association—has said it wants to state its views.

Six other individuals or small groups asked to be heard, but no word was received from major farm, labor or consumer organizations.

Mr. Rasminsky told the committee that high interest rates are a consequence of and not a cause of inflation. Raising interest rates is the only way the free-market economy can ration available loan funds, and the central bank was restricting the supply of funds to dampen excessive demand pressures in the economy.

Some committee members took the position at hearings early this month that the chartered banks and other major financial institutions are using high interest rates to make excessive profits.

Kennedy Case Not Over Investigation Continuing

EDGARTOWN, Mass (AP) — Investigators out of the Martha's Vineyard island area are working quietly to obtain statements from guests at the July 18 party that preceded Senator Edward M. Kennedy's auto accident.

It was learned that the prosecution in the case in which Kennedy pleaded guilty last Friday to leaving the scene of an accident is sensitive to criticism about the court procedure. Critics have said not enough was done to clarify events surrounding the mishap on neighboring Chappaquiddick Island.

Mary Jo Kopechne, 28, died in the accident, which were unreported for more than eight hours.

The investigation, it was learned, is aimed at filling in some of the blanks in Kennedy's two public accounts of the night of the accident. Sources indicated those in charge of the prosecution sought help from personnel in other agencies to obtain statements off the island from persons who attended the party.

There is a chance that information turned up in the investigation never will be made public. The prosecutors say Kennedy's guilty plea officially ended their work.

Attending the party were six young women who had worked on the 1968 presidential campaign of Senator Robert F. Kennedy and six men, including Edward Kennedy; his cousin, Joseph Gargan, and an adviser, Paul Markham.

Kennedy has named only Gargan and Markham as having been innormed of the accident when he walked back to the cottage where the party was held. He said they accompanied him to the accident site and tried to find Miss Kopechne. Neither has commented publicly.

The Edgartown officials who brought the charge of leaving the scene, Police Chief Dominick J. Arena and Dukes County Prosecutor Walter E. Steele, are confident they would have won their case against Kennedy even had he chosen to plead not guilty.

New Toronto Plant Will Produce Electrically-powered Arms

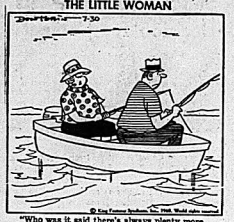
TORONTO (CP) — New hope for crippled children, particularly the victims of the 1962 thalidomide tragedy, is in sight.

Variety Club President Frank Stream announced Tuesday the club will break ground in mid-September for a unique plant which will manufacture electrically-powered arms for children's Centre on a non-profit basis.

The $300,000 plant is an addition to Variety Village, a centre for handicapped boys in the borough of Scarborough, also financed by the club. The plant, believed to be the first of its kind in the world, will be operated by a staff of researchers from the Ontario Crippled Children's Centre.

"There is a real need for powered prostheses (artificial limbs) in Ontario," said Dr. R. R. Mutrie, the project's medical director. "But there is no source of supply for these devices.

"The only way a child can get an electrical prosthesis is through a hospital research department. This new plant will enable us to produce the artificial limbs commercially and distribute them to children who need them."



The Crippled Children's Centre estimates that about 100 children in Ontario need artificial limbs. These children were born without arms, or with only partial limbs or tiny fingers protruding from their shoulders.

In 1962, about 40 babies were born in Ontario with these defects, possibly as a result of the drug thalidomide, which was prescribed for pregnant mothers to combat nausea or sleeplessness. The drug was taken off the Canadian market after it was banned in Britain, the Unified States and Germany, but not before 100 armless and legless children were born.

David Montgomery, 7, of London, Ont., is one of the more fortunate children. A completely normal child in every other respect, David was born with only a tiny hand protruding from his left shoulder.

With his mother, Mrs. Barry Montgomery, David makes about four trips a year to the Crippled Children's Centre where Dr. Mutrie's team of researchers have developed a special artificial arm for him.

TV Viewers Ride Eagle to Landing

HOUSTON (AP) — For seven minutes television viewers rode the lunar module Eagle to a landing on the moon.

They watched movies Tuesday of the moonship as it descended to the pocked surface July 20, veered away from a hazardous, gaping crater and touched down amid soaring lunar dust.

And they saw Neil Armstrong go cautiously down the ladder pause, and then plant man's first footprint on the moon.

This was the first of the Apollo 11 movie footage in color and it captured much of the drama of the landing by Armstrong and Edwin Aldrin.

The color films were shown to representatives of news media at the Manned Spacecraft Center and transmitted simultaneously by network television. Part of the adventure was televised live July 20, but that was in black and white.

The first still photographs, also in color, were sprinkled with footprints and eerie silhouettes of the spacesuits, and showed the U.S. flag perched on the beach-like surface.

A second set of stills, released Tuesday night, caught Armstrong inside the lunar module, showed the landing site from above and rocks on the lunar soil. This set also included a picture of earth with Europe, Africa and Asia visible.

The 16-millimetre movie film opened as the Eagle approached the landing site, cratered and glowing and visible through Aldrin's right-hand window.

It was at about this point 10 days ago that a worldwide audience, tuned in to the space conversation, heard this exchange:

Mission control: "Eagle, looking great . . . you're go!"

Eagle: "700 feet . . . 500 feet . . . got the shadow out there . . . 200 feet . . . things looking good . . . lights on . . . 40 feet . . . picking up some dust . . . 30 feet . . . faint shadow . . . Houston, Tranquility Base here. The Eagle has landed."

The film moved along then to Armstrong's descent and historic first step and his initial action on the moon's surface.

Viewers could recall Armstrong's first words: "That's one small step for man, one giant step for mankind."

The film closed with a view of the U.S. flag, wired for a waving effect and surrounded by footprints.

Technology Is Being Abused

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

In the flood of last month's convocation and commencement addresses — to which I contributed my own full measure of pompous generalities — there was only one talk I ran across that deserves more than passing attention. This was a convocation speech at St. Albans School in Washington by the articulate and abrasive Vice Admiral Hyman G. Rickover.

According to a report in the New York Times, Rickover expressed concern "by the ease with which purveyors of technology have pressured the general public into letting 'so-called progress' alter their lives."

What he meant, the admiral explained, was that "much harm has been done to man and nature because technologies had been used with no thought for the possible consequences." This is an unpopular position I have been taking in the column for some 20 years now, and I am delighted to find reinforcements from such formidable quarters.

The key word to the future, Rickover said in effect, is "ecology." The ecology of our planet demands that we become more familiar with the balance of nature before we continue tampering with forces that may spin out of control and have consequences too fatal to rectify. We are currently so infatuated with all the "miracle" toys of our technology that we have scarcely stopped to assess their negative aspects.

By something more than a coincidence, I have also been reading at the same time a new book, "Technological Man," by Victor Ferkiss, which is the best, latest and most comprehensive study of the vast changes not only in man's relation to the world, but in his relation to his own nature.

Ferkiss, like Rickover and Barry Commoner, and a few other serious viewers of our technological age, is worried that since all the new scientific issues are beyond the comprehension of the ordinary citizen, we may simply sit back and allow the technological element, rather than the human element, to become the central and determining factor in society.

Technology, of course, is a means, and not an end; but it tends to become an end unto itself if not checked by humanistic values — like an elevator that keeps stopping and starting on a timer, regardless of the specific needs of the people who ride it every day, so that the people rearrange their time for the elevator, instead of the elevator serving their schedule.

In the final chapter of his illuminating but frightening book, Ferkiss suggests that if our technological genius cannot create a genuine "world society" wherein man and his environment are in balance, then this infinite possibility for good might easily turn into an infinite possibility for evil. The time to think it out is now, not later.

Job-hunters to Get $20-a-week Allowance

OTTAWA (CP) — Canadians who must leave home to seek employment will benefit after Sept. 1 from a new $20-a-week living allowance announced Tuesday by the federal manpower department.

The new benefits result from an amendment to the manpower mobility regulations.

The amendment will allow payment of a living allowance of $20 weekly for unemployed and under-employed workers already in receipt of "exploratory grants" helping them to find work away from their home areas.

The worker's living allowance will be paid in addition to present two-way travel allowances and family living allowances of up to $40 a week based on the number of dependents.

The exploratory grants cover a job-research period of up to four weeks.

Russian Author Vanishes in London

LONDON (Reuters) — British police today hunted for controversial Russian author Anatoly Kuznetsov, who vanished from his London hotel and possibly defected.

Kuznetsov, 40, criticized in the Soviet Union for his alleged pro-Jewish feelings and writings, has not been seen since he disappeared from his West London hotel Monday night.

His British publisher, Reginald Davis-Poynter, today was quoted in The Daily Express as saying: "It is quite possible he has defected."

Scotland Yard, asked by the Russian embassy to search for the writer who arrived in Britain Thursday, said a colleague of the author who returned to their hotel Tuesday night was unable to say what had happened to Kuznetsov.

Kuznetsov, a Communist party member since 1955 and hero on a 10-day visit, was believed to have come to Britain to write articles about V. I. Lenin's life in London.

The author, who speaks little English, stirred up Soviet controversy with his 1967 novel Babi Yar, about the Nazi massacre of thousands of Soviet Jews in a Ukrainian ravine.

Soviet critics accused him of dwelling too much on the Jewish victims and too little on people of "brother races"—including Russians and Ukrainians—who also were killed.

London detectives inspecting Kuznetsov's third-floor hotel room found his luggage intact and his bed undisturbed.

Moon Meddling Blamed For Ten Gloomy Days

NEW YORK (AP) — For 10 straight gloomy days the northeastern United States it's been raining or overcast, and New York weather experts are deluged with calls putting the blame on Apollo 11.

The calls—many quoting scripture—are convinced moon meddling is behind the meteorological mess. It began July 19, the day the astronauts zipped into the shadow of the moon and kicked their spacecraft into lunar orbit to prepare for the historic landing the next day.

"We've had an abundance of calls from all sorts of people who are absolutely certain, through their Bible studies, that the Lord has taken the sun away from us," said Dr. Robert Harris, a meteorologist with WCBS radio news.

His counterparts at other radio stations have experienced much the same rash from worried weather watchers. People tend to call the stations on which they hear the weather, Harris said. Thus the U.S. Weather Bureau in Manhattan has been somewhat immune, said a spokesman there.

"These are by no means all people with loud-simple, detached lives, either," said Harris. "An airline pilot from Greenwich, Conn., called me. So did a professor emeritus from a theological school. He was quite eloquent and positive, quoting Rev 16:16 and Matt 24:24."

In the verse from Revelation, John tells of the end of the world and the gathering of people "at the place which is called Armageddon." The quotation from Matthew says the Gospel will be preached throughout the whole world "and then the end will come."

Youth Arrested in Kentucky Says He Is Ypsilanti Murderer

YPSILANTI, Mich. (AP) — A sheriff and a police chief made a quick trip to Hazard, Ky., today to question a man Hazard police said had admitted killing a girl in the Ann Arbor-Ypsilanti area.

The arrest in Kentucky was the latest lead as authorities looked for a break in a series of baffling murders of seven young women in southeast Michigan in two years.

The most recent victim, 18-year-old Karen Sue Beineman, will be buried today in her hometown of Grand Rapids, Mich.

Meanwhile, Michigan Gov. William G. Milliken and Attorney-General Frank Kelley planned a news conference today. Aides indicated it would concern the handling of the investigation.

Speculation was they may assume a greater role in it.

Washtenaw County Sheriff Douglas J. Harvey and Ann Arbor Police Chief Walter Krasny left for Kentucky after being told of the man's arrest.

Hazard police said the man was taken into custody along with two teen-age girls Monday and was charged with reckless driving and carrying a concealed weapon. A large knife was found.

Hazard police identified him as a 19-year-old youth from Monroe, Mich., which is south of Ann Arbor and Ypsilanti. The girls were from Dundee, Mich.

Other developments Tuesday included:

—The Washtenaw County sheriff's department released a detailed composite picture of a young man, who Ypsilanti store clerks said gave Miss Beineman a ride on a motorcycle last Wednesday when she was slain near Ypsilanti.

—Eastern Michigan University, where Miss Beineman was a freshman, distributed 4,000 handbills showing an earlier, less detailed composite of the motorcyclist.

—Ann Arbor police confirmed that in following up another lead, they have been staking out a home in Ann Arbor to question a man when he returns. They said it was mainly routine.

Police in the past have received confessions in the seven killings, but have discounted all of them.

THE BETTER HALF by Bob Barnes

"If this egg had been allowed to hatch, we'd have a pet pagoon on our hands."

Dirksen Mobbed by Angry Illinois Farmers

WASHINGTON (AP) — Police phacked Senator Everett M. Dirksen from the midst of shouting, fist-shaking farmers Tuesday, ending a confrontation over protests that U.S. farm policies are leading to rural ruin.

The 200 farmers, wives and children—who drove from Illinois, Dirksen's home state, in a caravan of tractors—surrounded the Republican leader as he emerged from the Senate chamber.

They demanded a return to full parity in farm prices and a stronger voice for farmers on all future federal agricultural policies.

When Dirksen told his constituents he is one of 20 senators supporting a bill to take up to 10,000,000 acres of farmland out of production and to end existing farm programs within five years, he was answered with shouts of, "No! No!"

The shouting got louder when he responded to a request that he buy a bushel of grain at the parity price—$3.06 compared to about the present market value of about $1.05—by pulling a $20 bill from his wallet. He told the farmers to give the change and the wheat to the poor.

"We want parity, not charity," the farmers shouted, echoing the slogan that has been their rallying cry during the long trek from their east central Illinois homes.

"I'm talking," Dirksen boomed back, refusing to accept the return of the money or the sacks of grain piled at his feet.

He said his bill, which is backed by the American Farm Bureau Federation, would raise farm prices by cutting production.

"What's wrong with a farm program tied to parity," a farmer shouted. "We'll take the land out of production now if you give us a fair price," another man said.

"We can't hold a farm meeting in this reception room," Dirksen said, waving his hand at the ornate crystal chandeliers and gilded walls.

"You can't make a demonstration here," he told the crowd that jammed the room.

"Don't push us around," a man yelled at Dirksen.

The noise atracted police who wedged their way through the throng and opened a path for Dirksen to retreat to the Senate floor.

As the farmers tried in vain to set up another talk with Dirksen—he told them his schedule was filled—a smaller group talked more quietly with Senator Charles H. Percy (Rep. Ill.).

"We're telling you that we cannot live with the present price structure," one man told Percy. "We're having farmers in my county paying their taxes under protest and that's never happened before."

"The farmer works harder for less than any other segment of the economy," Percy said, and sketched plans to improve farm income by expanding world markets.

of the total breakdowns.

Jeane Dixon's Horoscope

For July 31

Your birthday today: The coming year of poignant personal experience will appear to the casual observer as relatively uneventful. You have the opportunity to develop a satisfying emotional clarity, to have a real zest for life and gratifyingly strong relationships. Your symbols and insight will act as guides. Today's natives are friendly, generous. Their only problems are set up by lack of perspective regarding their own feelings.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): Capitalize on goodwill built up in the past. Be sure to avoid sudden exertion. Your associates or mate must be the ones to take the initiative now.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): Proceed to set matters right in your home and workplace despite some passive resistance. Avoid any squabbling over details as you proceed.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): Protect your health by avoiding excess of any sort. Your work is a little easier, while some older people are a bit more worrisome.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): This is the first day of the rest of your life: It's rather like wishing you a "Happy New Year!" Make some resolutions, set off into the future, make a grand adventure!

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): Consolidate your interests today. Longtime home arrangements can be established now with little bother. Your social connections have a practical joker lurking among them; be wary of some caper.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): This is no day for forcing any issues. Let things drift along a normal course for a while, with other people calling the signals.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): Today all your friends may come to you for money, credit, or references. At the same time anybody you rely on will be unavailable or just plain unsympathetic. If there's any way of dodging either part of the game, do so.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): It is up to you now, as it has been most of the time. Your study and planning have given you a goal — pursue it now with all the strength you can muster.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): Your intuition should be specially mobilized to get you out of or prevent an incipient problem. Discuss your daily life as you go with family, friends, associates: listen to their responses with as little emotion as you can manage. Then let your unconscious analyze it all while you sleep tonight.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): In this normal day, the emphasis is on dealing in old or ancient articles or with elderly people, any problem related to the skin is more amenable to correct diagnosis and treatment now.

AUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): Do what you can to placate your partner, or mate. Work is likely going to run over the time you have for it. Let someone else take the responsibility concerning the right thing to do with group decisions.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): The day is slow but goes better as you get through your regular work. Memory of events long past stirs you to do something or undo or erase some symbol which reminds you too often.

Moon Pioneers To Be Reunited With Their Ship

HOUSTON (Reuters) — The Apollo 11 moon pioneers today will be reunited with the command module Columbia which took them into lunar orbit and back to earth.

Space officials said the spacecraft, picked up in the Pacific after splashdown Thursday by the carrier Hornet, was being flown from Ford Island, Hawaii, to nearby Ellington Air Force Base in a C-133 cargo plane.

It will be brought behind the quarantine barrier at the lunar receiving laboratory this afternoon, they said.

Doctors said the astronauts and everyone else inside the LRL are in such good health that—if the chances continue this way—there will be no reason to keep them from being released Aug. 11.

Dr. William Carpentier, a native of Lake Cowachin, B.C., who is sharing the quarantine with the spacemen and 13 other men, said "all the evidence to date" pointed to there being nothing in any of the lunar material they had come into contact with that constituted a threat to earth life.

The astronauts—Neil Armstrong, Edwin Aldrin and Michael Collins—have completed their initial three-day technical debriefing sessions.

They were scheduled today to sit on their side of the glass-partitioned interview room and discuss the eight-day flight with top space agency officials.

Before breakfast the three men will have blood samples taken for more analysis.

Also scheduled to begin today were tests designed to determine the toxic effects, if any, of lunar material on various forms of earth life—including germ-free mice, cockroaches, fish flies, plants and human and animal tissue cultures.

Dr. Craig Fischer, head of the quarantine medical staff, said the results of these tests—not expected before about 60 days —would determine the release of samples of the lunar material to some 150 scientists all over the world for further analysis.

Progress also was expected to be made today on gamma ray analysis of a rock sample sent down to the radiation laboratory some 50 feet below the surface of the LRL.

Quebec Police Ordered Not to Oust Hippies

PERCE, Que. (CP) — Provincial police were under orders not to assist townspeople in clearing out a group of hippies and motorcyclists, a spokesman for this resort town on the Gaspe Peninsula said Tuesday.

Louis Dolron, legal counsel for the town, said in a formal complaint to the Quebec justice department its refusal to act created an explosive situation.

The clean-up campaign has been led by irate townspeople who feel the hippies' presence in a rented barn near the waterfront keeps people awake at night and threatens the tourist trade.

Three dozen hippies brawed drenchings with fire hoses and returned to the barn Tuesday after they were chased out Monday by 40 townspeople deputized to augment the town's two-man police force.

The hippies, who originally intended to operate a coffee house in the barn, were escorted to a nearby town by provincial police but returned the next day. They intend to stay until served with an eviction notice.

"It's not because they have beards that we don't like them," insisted the owner of a local pool room. "It's because they knock hoarists, bring in dope and are trying to ruin our business." But despite the antipathy, Mr. Dolron said the town did not intend to take legal action against the hippies.

Pope in Uganda

Biafran, Nigerian Delegates on Hand

Mediation Bid Seems Certain

KAMPALA, Uganda (CP) — Pope Paul arrived in Uganda today for a three-day visit during which he will seek peace in Nigeria and close the first all-Africa conference of bishops.

The Pope's jet touched down at 3:03 p.m., to the beat of throbbing drums and songs by hundreds of Ugandans who turned out at Entebbe Airport to welcome the 71-year-old pontiff.

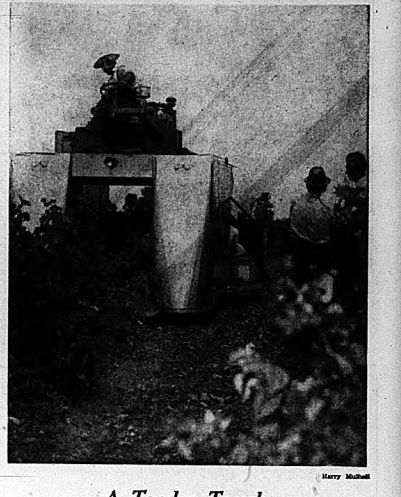
It was on this spot, about 21 miles from Kampala, that the first Roman Catholic missionaries first set foot in 1879. Since then, Roman Catholics in Uganda have mushroomed to nearly 3,000,000.

The Pope, on the eighth and perhaps most exhausting trip of his six-year reign, is making an action-filled 52-hour trip to East Africa that will be capped when he consecrates a shrine to 22 Ugandan martyrs burned to death for their beliefs on Ascension Day, 1886.

His arrival was preceded early today by a Biafran delegation and observers said the presence of representatives of both sides in the Nigerian war during the Pope's visit made it almost certain the pontiff would try to bring the two battling parties together.

The Nigerian government already has rejected a Biafran call for a ceasefire during the Pope's visit, saying there would be no point to it.

But the Nigerian commissioner for information—and top negotiator—Chief Anthony Enahoro said after he arrived here Wednesday that he was willing to talk with the Biafrans.



The Pope confirmed Wednesday he would try to mediate the torrid dispute but held out little hope of success.

Speaking to pilgrims at his Italian summer residence of Castel Gandolfo, the 71-year-old pontiff said "the opposing positions on which the conflict is founded still seem too far apart."

But he added: "We will continue to do everything possible to convince the opposing sides it is necessary to arrive at a truce guaranteed if necessary by some neutral African power."

His opportunity to mediate may come as early as tonight, when he meets Ugandan President Milton Obote, or Friday when he meets visiting African heads of state.

Ausiine Okwu, Biafran roving ambassador to east and central Africa, arrived in Uganda with at least one unnamed assistant but was bustled off by Ugandan officials who refused to allow him to meet reporters.

A Tender Touch

Despite bulky appearance, this machine — demonstrated for first time yesterday — has a tender touch. It's an automatic raspberry picker and owners Elmer and Clifford McFaul, Wellington-area farmers, say it's the first in Canada. (For details, see Page 5.)

Pullout Will Not Be Large

WASHINGTON (AP) — Contrary to reports that substantial withdrawals may be in order, members of the Senate armed services committee expect Gen. Earle G. Wheeler to recommend a gradual pullout of only 25,000 additional U.S. troops from Vietnam this year.

Chairman John Stennis (Dem. Miss.), classed Wheeler's report on his recent Vietnam inspection tour as pessimistic about the battle-readiness of South Vietnamese replacements for the Americans.

Stennis said the process of turning over the defence responsibilities will take time.

"In the meantime, unless we adopt a different policy, we'll be doing a great share of the fighting," he said.

U.S. Steel Prices Up

PITTSBURGH (AP) — The United States Steel industry's peacemaking U.S. Steel Corp. has posted price increases averaging 4.8 per cent on a range of big-tonnage products used for such items as cars, refrigerators and tin cans.

Wednesday's move, the boldest since Bethlehem Steel Corp.'s five-per-cent across-the-board increase was whittled to two per cent by the White House last August, was met with cautious silence by other producers and major users and drew only a mild rebuff from Washington.

Close-ups of Mars Provide New Riddles

PASADENA, Calif. (CP) — The mystery planet Mars has come up with another riddle, in pictures described as "fascinating," the Jet Propulsion Laboratory announced today.

Close-up photographs of the red planet taken by Mariner VI have confused scientists, said Dr. Albert Hibbs, chief staff scientist at JPL.

"Some pictures will show features of Mars which have never been seen before and in some cases we won't be able to tell you what they are," he added.

But because they are "so exciting, fascinating and interesting" they will be released today, a day ahead of schedule.

Mariner VI was only 2,130 miles from its surface, the closest any man-made object had come to the planet.

Hibbs warned some pictures would not be understandable because they could not be unscrambled for direct television showing in time.

El Salvador's Troops Pull Out

WASHINGTON (Reuters) — El Salvadorean troops continued to pull out of occupied Honduran territory today under pressure from the Organization of American States to end a six-week crisis between the two Central American states which erupted after an international soccer game.

OAS military observers and El Salvadorean officers met as the pull-out began Wednesday following an OAS settlement calling for an immediate withdrawal, submission of differences to peaceful procedures, and OAS surveillance to guarantee the welfare of nationals from one country living in the other country.

Wheat Farmers to Get $300,000,000 Advances

OTTAWA (CP) — Trade Minister Jean-Luc Pepin has confirmed details on cash advances of $300,000,000 or more to the hard-hit prairie wheat farmer.

The payments will be available starting Friday and are standard annual practice under federal legislation. They follow Prime Minister Trudeau's recent western tour, where he faced disgruntled farmers, and most of the details had been spelled out before Mr. Pepin's statement.

He said the payments could total more than $300,000,000 in the new crop year which begins Friday. They totalled about $150,000,000 in the crop year just expiring.

Under changes made in the Prairie Grain Advance Payment Act last November, each farmer is entitled to advance payments for his unsold wheat at a rate of six bushels per seeded acre up to a maximum of $6,000. Previously, said a trade department spokesman, the quota was three bushels per acre with a maximum of $3,000.

During his western visit, Mr. Trudeau said that "we've got to find ways of putting cash into your hands."

But Nelson Malm, president of the Alberta Federation of Agriculture, said Wednesday that Mr. Pepin's announcement doesn't solve the serious situation on the Prairies.

"Advances are short-term measures," he said. "This is not solving the marketing problem, which is much more important than cash advances."

The advance payments are, in effect, reimbursement to the farmer before he has sold his grain. The advances are interest free. The per-bushel amount of the advances are expected to be announced within a few days.

Mr. Pepin said that if all eligible farmers apply for the advances the total "could go well beyond the $300,000,000."

Wheat Talks Underway

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada is being represented at current wheat crisis talks in London by two senior officials of the trade department, a spokesman said Wednesday.

Canada is being represented by Maurice Schwartzmann, deputy minister in charge of trade policy, and Robert Esdale, head of the department's grain division.

The conference is composed of the principal wheat exporting countries—Canada, the United States, Australia and Argentina —together with representatives of the six-member European Economic Community.

Nixon Is in New Delhi After Visit to Saigon

NEW DELHI (Reuters) — President Nixon arrived in New Delhi today for talks on Asian security with Prime Minister Indira Gandhi.

The U.S. president flew into the Indian capital from Bangkok after a three-day visit to Thailand during which he briefed Thai leaders on the new U.S. role in Southeast Asia.

He also had a lightning 5½-hour side visit to South Vietnam, where he said the U.S. had gone as far as it could toward opening the door to peace in Vietnam.

Nixon and his wife Pat flew into New Delhi to the biggest reception by newspaper men, television reporters and radio commentators ever seen in the Indian capital.

He was greeted there by Acting President Mohammed Hidayatullah, who told him of India's admiration of the Apollo 11 achievement.

"The bravery of the three astronauts has captured our hearts and the faultless execution of the enterprise has received unstinted praise from one and all in this country," he said.

He expressed confidence that talks between Nixon and Indian leaders would serve to "strengthen further the friendly ties between our two countries."

Nixon said in reply that the major goal of the U.S. was to achieve "a generation of peace for India, Asia and the world."

Nixon said the goal of his administration and of the American people was this:

"We want our generation to be remembered as the one in which man first set foot on the moon, and as the one in which for the first time in the 20th century we had uninterrupted peace with justice and freedom for man on earth."

Nixon then drove away in a bulletproof car with Hidayatullah as hundreds of Indians waving American and Indian flags cheered. Mrs. Nixon followed in the next car with Mrs. Hidayatullah.

India is the fourth stop for the Nixons on a global tour that ends Sunday after more stops in Pakistan, Romania and Britain.

Nixon in his talks with Indian leaders planned to push a pet project, the development of Asian regional co-operation. The president is hopeful such arrangements will ultimately relieve the United States of much of its responsibility for the defence of non-Communist Asia against any Communist threat.

Nixon and Mrs. Gandhi also were certain to discuss the threat of China, which India has watched warily since their 1962 border war; the Soviet proposal for an Asian coalition against China which India hasn't shown much interest in; and U.S. arms policies toward India and Pakistan.

The United States has not been selling military goods to either India or Pakistan since the two nations went to war in 1965 over Kashmir. Pakistan is pleading for a resumption of sales because its army is built around American weapons.

Nixon will hear the Pakistan side when he gets to Lahore Friday.

Honeymoon Recalled

Love Buggy Found for Loyalist Days

PICTON — The love-buggy has arrived in Picton!

Bruce Wallace decided to enter the spirit of Loyalist Days, coming here soon, by buying an authentic old time buggy complete with side curtains. He and his wife, Jean, drove throughout Prince Edward County trying to find the "right" buggy for their standardbred horse, Chex, to draw in the Loyalist Parade on Aug. 16.

The Wallaces were fortunate. While it would seem almost impossible to happen upon a driving buggy still in excellent repair, this searching couple managed to do just that. Most of the buggies in Prince Edward County were sold long ago or allowed to literally fall apart in fields and drive sheds.

In Cherry Valley the Wallace's found a rubber tired, high wheeled buggy with a top built to fold down on sunny days. But there was one problem. The widow who had carefully stored this antique refused to sell it at any price.

Bruce remarked, "The lady and I chin wacked for quite awhile and she still refused to sell that buggy."

She did make a major concession, however. After listening to Mr. Wallace describe his driving horse and his plans to drive him in the annual Loyalist Days Parade the lady gave the buggy away.

The moment the buggy appeared on the Wallaces' front lawn on Bowery Street the neighbors began to wander over to inspect "the surrey with the fringe on top."

Recalled one: "My husband and I started on our honeymoon trip in a buggy like that. Years ago that was the way everyone courted."

One teenager on the scene asked how the "spooners" persuaded the horse to stand still while they moon gazed.

"Oh," she replied, "it was a very quiet horse."

Bruce and his wife have painted the buggy, added a new fringe and are assembling their costumes for the parade.

Loyalist Days begin in Picton on Aug. 13 and continue through Aug. 16. The parade is the grand finale in a program of events that includes street dancing, a milling contest, wrestling matches at the Community Centre and a "battle of the bands."

For the past six years Pictonians have entered the spirit of recreating the past by donning olden day costumes and participating in the many events planned for Loyalist Days. Downtown merchants feature old fashioned window displays in their stores and special sidewalk sales.

Tourists think it's a fine way to celebrate 'the good old summer time' and local people find it entertaining too.

Mr. Wallace, an employee of the Picton branch of Master Feeds, will assist in supervising the milking contest sponsored by his company during Loyalist Days.

For him, however, the big moment will arrive when he takes the reins and steps into the love-bugsy for the big parade down Main Street.

Local 'Love Buggy'

After a long search, Bruce Wallace, Picton, finally found the buggy of his dream — a surrey with a fringe on the top. His dog Scamp seems to agree with the master's choice. Mr. Wallace plans to drive his "love buggy" in the Loyalist Days parade to be held in Picton.

Loyalist Enrolment Set

Loyalist College has set a basic enrolment target of 440 students for its 1969-70 semesters.

To date, 332 students have been accepted for admission for the new term opening September.

A late spate of registrations is expected to bring the enrolment to the largest total, indicates Loyalist president J. K. Bradford.

"This year we anticipate approximately 100 late registrations," he says, "Consequently we should have little difficulty fulfilling our quota."

Meanime, Mr. Bradford has advised the department of education that Loyalist can accept a total of 575 students — should there be maximum pressure on metropolitan area colleges.

To facilitate any such diversion a weekly list of first-year course vacancies is posted with a central provincial registry in Toronto.

Robarts Will Open Pine Ridge Festival

By JUDY SCHREIDER
(Staff Reporter)

"If Moscow, London, Brussels and Paris can have their Youth Theatres, then why not Newcastle?"

That was the question posed in the spring of 1968 to 1,700 residents of the village of Newcastle on the shores of Lake Ontario.

Villagers' response was enthusiastic. Under the leadership of Jean Bennett and Roy Higgins, and who is now resident director of the Belleville Theatre Guild, the Great Pine Ridge Festival of the Arts came into being.

This was the beginning in Ontario of the equivalent of the National Youth Theatres in Britain and France.

Termed "an exciting experience in youth theatre," Roy Higgins and his troupe of teens presented three widely-acclaimed plays in the space of three and a half weeks.

The entire program was carried out by youth. High school and university students worked on the 600-seat Community Hall, built by the Massey family and donated to the village of Newcastle, to ready it for theatre production. Young players worked at making the sets, and sewing the costumes, while others spent time readying the light facilities.

Two Belleville youths are a part of the Great Pine Ridge Festival of the Arts this year. Stephen Clark, a student at Centennial Secondary School, and Dave Fisher are participating in the Newcastle experience as lighting technicians.

Now in its second season, the group has received money from the Ontario department of education, the Ontario Arts Council and a number of private patrons.

Director for the 1969 season is J. R. McAllister, artistic director at the Toronto Polytechnical Institute Theatre in Toronto whichrhe helped establish. When the Great Pine Ridge Festival of the Arts is over, he will be travelling in Europe on a Canada Council grant to study theatre teaching.

This summer the plays will be presented from July 31 to Aug. 23.

Two plays, when the theatre is opened by Premier John Robarts the festival will present the tragedy of Dr. Faustus — the great English illusterpiece by Christopher Marlowe that tells the sad tale of a man's greed and lust which eventually leads him to his downfall.

The festival also includes Bertolt Brecht's The Good Woman of Setzuan and Rodgers and Hart's musical Comedy The Boys From Syracuse.

The festival art exhibit on display this year from the youth and recreation branch of the Ontario department of education boasts embroidery, jewelry and "method" show. The exhibit is "designed for anyone who has ever looked at a hand-made object and wondered — how is it made — in the fare fields of batik, glass-making and pottery."

A publicity table will be set up at the entrance to the theatre. Any groups planning special events who would like to publicize their activities may send material to Box 130, Newcastle.

Brochures, showing what's playing and what night, are available from Box 130 also. Tickets may be obtained from the box office in Newcastle, phone 987-4622.

No show is ever completely sold out. All shows start at 8.15. The youth company is a member of the Great Pine Ridge Tourist Agency and co-operates with the organization to allow visitors to the area an opportunity to attend the youth productions.

This year the Newcastle theatre group hopes to qualify for an Ontario Centre of the Arts grant. In order to obtain the grant, the company must have general business and private donor support in the amount of $4,500. To date, the company has received a total of $3,000.

A publication by the Ontario department of education youth and recreation branch, expressed the success of the group. It was soon found that bringing theatre to Newcastle was far more to the point than bringing coals."

Armoury Mall Shopping Plaza

PICTON (Staff) — A sign of the times went up yesterday in Picton.

It's the area of the shopping plaza and Picton's Armoury Mall has finally received reclamation.

The mall, formerly the Picton Armouries, opened last year but no distinct sign was erected on the building.

A directory standing near the sidewalk has served to guide shoppers to the offices and stores inside.

Yesterday workmen hoisted letters to the top of the building which spelled out "The Armoury Mall Shopping Plaza" boldly across the front.

Trenton Bypass

Diversion Rail Keeps CN Running

Mainline Canadian National Railway trains will be held to a 60 miles per hour limit on their double track across the north end of Trenton for the next few months.

The reason is that trains will be running over a half mile diversion track which has been put in to allow construction of a new railway underpass on Highway 33 in the north end of the town.

The diversion track went into operation a week ago and trains will be operating on the detour until completion of the subway which is expected some time in November.

Geoffrey Cleverdon of Stratford is the general contractor for the subway project.

The new subway will provide for straightening Highway 33 at this point. Over the years the sharply angled approaches both north and south of the subway have been a bottleneck for highway traffic between Trenton and Frankford.

Trenton town clerk comptroller said the subway project would eliminate a level crossing just south of subway site.

This railway siding which serves a north-end industrial site will be elevated to run over the highway route as part of the subway project.

Construction of the new subway is being carried out as a railway project.

On completion of the subway the Ontario department of highways will call tenders for reconstruction of subway approaches and for an intersection at the junction with Cemetery Road.

During the construction period highway traffic is being detoured along the north side of the tracks in the Wooler road where it passes under the tracks through a second narrow subway.

In anticipation of the Highway 33 subway project, the Ontario department of highways two years ago paved the detour route.

Unused Waterfront Greenbelt Strip Coming Into Own as Park Site

By Harry Mulhall
Staff Reporter

A prime piece of greenbelt is being buckled down for Belleville's seedier shoreline areas to what could be the choicest city park site of them all.

Now under way is a land clearance project on five areas of waterfrontage east of the government docks and south of Foster Ward.

Involved are the city's parks board and the harbor commission, administrator of federal regulations along the waterfront.

The commission also is the major landowner along the Bay of Quinte shoreline in the vicinity.

For years the shoreline has been off the beaten track, used fitfully by fishermen, and for launching boats.

The area was green though untidily marked in spots by thick undergrowth, wild-sprouting trees. Rubbish bobbed along the shoreline. However, the Bay frontage made its park potential obvious.

The commission has been working away at the area for some years. In fact, in the past three years estimates narbormaster Don Barrett, about 45,000 yards of fill have been trucked to the site.

The recreation department set up a playground on one of the grassier areas.

But lack of funds slowed development until this week.

Now a work gang is pruning trees, removing rocks hacking out the undergrowth, as both the parks and harbor bodies stage a co-operative cleanup.

Parks superintendent Lloyd Syer says the whole area will benefit from the new park's more attractive image.

Some time in the future part of it may be annexed by the Ontario Water Resources Commission, which operates a sewage disposal station at the east end of the site, says the superintendent.

However, such a move will be a matter of years.

Meantime, many of the park's unique advantages are already obvious.

It's peacefully removed from main roads, there's an abundance of trees, lush grass and a splendid view.

Already, the area has been discovered by sunbathers, horseback riders and romping youngsters.

It could also be the start of waterfront development on the east side of the Moira River, now that Zwick's Island and a hotel-resort have taken care of the city's westend shoreline, officials feel.

Spilled Can Helps Paint City Street

City public works crews painted more than 100,000 feet of street traffic lines in the city this year but they weren't a bit appreciative of a little accidental assistance received yesterday.

A delivery truck was proceeding down Front Street when a large can of white paint tumbled onto the roadway spilling its contents over the pavement.

Then the tireless passing cars picked up the paint and tracked it down the street for nearly a block.

A city works crew was called in to clean up the mess.

First they spread sand to soak up what they could of the mess and then spread a commercial paint remover to get the unauthorized traffic lines from the pavement.

What's New?

Next month the Quinte Exhibition gets under way in Belleville and we were saying the other day that despite absence of a city grant and non-waiver of rental fees the emphasis as ever should be on quality and diversity.

This has set us wondering if the exhibition might try to attract big names in various fields. Beauty queens of course are always crowd-getters and if we cannot bring say Miss Universe to the city then why not Miss Canada?

It is interesting to note that Brenda Lee, who has repeatedly been voted the world's top female vocalist, will head the grandstand show at the Gouverneur and St. Lawrence County Fair in Northern New York on August 8.

The Quinte Exhibition opens August 12, so there is still plenty of planning time left in which to consider means of boosting the event's crowd appeal.

There are any number of possibilities within Ontario itself. For example in one of the Department of Tourism commercials shown in Rotarians on Monday there was a brief glimpse of a group of young Toronto women performing the exquisite calisthenics that are a feature of their Baltic homelands and Scandinavia.

As of the scenes, incidentally, in these films were of split-second duration — and that is how they achieve maximum effect on the viewer, by arousing his curiosity just long enough to make him come our way.

It is as Frederick J. Boyer, the department's executive director pointed out, the films are "meticulously edited." Of course, at an attraction like the Quinte Exhibition a performance by this or any other group would be of longer and more satisfying duration.

The main thing is, again to quote Mr. Boyer, ". . . the age-old plea of clients to agency — so that's great but what are you going to do for me next year?"

Bilingual Golf

Omnium Canadien . . . er Canadian Open winner Tommy Aaron looked a little worried when one of the officials at the prizegiving said his piece in French.

Aaron would not have known, but there it was on CBC television — Omnium Canadien and underneath, Canadian Open, which would seem to make the French language just a little more than English, in the eyes of the CBC. As for the gentleman speaking French he sounded more like an English-speaking Canadian having a go in French. At one point he turned to Aaron and told him not to worry because he was saying good things about the golfer.

If the U.S. golfer looked slightly embarrassed by this bilingual occasion it might be mentioned that in addition to golf he is a wiz at mathematics. He majored in the subject at the University of Florida, a stint which nevertheless failed to save him from another embarrassing moment a couple of years ago when he marked down the wrong score on Roberto de Vicenzo's card, thus doing the Argentine player out of a tie with Gay Brewer in the U.S. Open.

Anyway, whatever the language, English or French or Spanish, the game is still golf. The Scots really started something when they began knocking those little balls around a little while back in time. The world is the better for it — and some of us, the men on the pro circuit for example, are a lot richer for it.

Lunar Contact

For the time being at least we think the moon has it over Mars. Those pictures of Mars on television the other night were interesting enough, but far more absorbing and exciting in our opinion were the shots of the moon-surface from the lunar module as it descended to the moon, right to the very moment it landed and Neil Armstrong uttered the historic words: "Houston . . . this is Tranquility Base, the Eagle has landed."

Indeed, on this second time around for TV viewers, with Armstrong handling the landing manually and the sense of urgency in his voice, the feeling of actually being there on that historic occasion was even more intense. It will be some time yet, maybe not until men land on Mars, before the world is afforded such an incredible sight as the moon landing.

Winners, Nonentities and Losers in Canada's Parliament

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — Three ministerial disaster areas confront Prime Minister Trudeau as he contemplates reorganization and repair of his 28-member cabinet.

Over the long, hard months there have been some consistently excellent performances by Jean-Luc Pepin in Trade, Edgar Benson in Finance, Bryce Mackasey in Labor, Don Jamieson in Transport, Leo Cadieux in Defence, John Turner in Justice.

There have been competent jobs done by most of the others — even if, on the part of five of them, it was the rather negative, five nonentities could possibly be regarded as doing well enough to get by when all they really do is keep out of trouble by keeping out of sight and out of mind?

Well, doing nothing, as they have done, and doing it successfully is not easy.

It may be simple enough in the privacy of the minister's own departmental office.

There the cabinet non-performer, comfortably insulated from the stern realities behind a leather-padded door, can sit and safely twiddle his thumbs, secure in the certain knowledge that his trusted deputy and mandarins of lesser rank will be keeping store, faithfully if not always efficiently.

It is when the minister comes in from the cool of his private departmental office and enters the heat of the Commons political kitchen that the cabinet men are separated from the boys.

And it is then the winners make it big, the "get-by-gang" of mediocrities and nonentities hold their own, and the losers fall on their face.

The big winners zap the Opposition. The mediocrities stumble along while the nonentities wear a "who, me" camouflage expression on their faces, and the losers come through as pathetic.

The big loser has been Government House Leader and Privy Council President Donald Macdonald.

On him has been hung the rap of Parliament's heat-of-the-summer overtime. He so managed the Commons business that when the scheduled June 27 reached, there was the House still tied in knots over its rules.

Macdonald managed that by managing to antagonize the three Opposition House leaders to the point nobody was speaking to anybody else until July, was about to drop off the calendar.

He managed even to antagonize Mr. Speaker Lucien Lamoureux, who has to be just about the coolest cat ever to police the political pigeons.

That was it for Macdonald when the Opposition caught him "trying to intimidate" Mr. Speaker in a flat-under-nose confrontation. Government House Leader had not liked one of Mr. Speaker's rulings and followed him in his left to right.

There they were, concerned, Mr. Macdonald mistakenly assuming that Mr. Speaker was with the six-foot - four Government House Leader, flat balled too, towering over the five-foot-e eight Speaker.

Things have not been the same since.

The No. 2 loser of course has to be Postmaster General Eric Kierans, who in sheer desperation has resorted to laughing at the jokes the Opposition makes of his non-mail service.

It was a real "funny" to the PMG when NDP Leader Stanley Knowles asked him was it true that to be sure of delivery people should mail Christmas cards now, or might there not be any home delivery by that time?

Eric Kierans laughed and laughed.

He nearly choked guffawing when Matthews Conservative Heath Macquarrie asked him was it true the astronauts could get to the moon faster than the Post Office could get a letter across the Rideau Canal from Uppertown to Lowertown here in Ottawa.

There is nothing, but absolutely nothing anybody can say about the near-total paralysis that Eric Kierans does not find hilarious.

Loser No. 3, External Affairs Minister Sharp, has become a caricature of himself — and they could not have been easy, either.

It has got to the point where New Democratic Deputy Leader David Lewis wonders out loud in the Commons if Mitch e l l Sharp, in answering Friday in his unreal world of diplomatic double-think, is still a member of the human race.

Measure of the stature of the losers has been the degree of embarrassment Prime Minister Trudeau betrays in a customary wince when they get mixed up.

"Careful, Abdul, it could be an Israeli trick!"

Cars, Trucks and Trains

Hamilton Spectator

Slow cars and trucks are a menace, especially on fast highways. Police sometimes crack down on doddering car drivers but, it seems, there's little attention to crawling trucks that, apparently, are dangerously overloaded.

Twice within the last week we clocked two heavy trucks, one moving at barely one mile an hour in a 40-mile zone just outside the city limits on Highway 2 and one, at about 20 miles an hour, in the Queen Elizabeth Way passing lane near the Highway 403 cloverleaf.

Both vehicles, laden with heavy cargoes, were incapable of keeping up with traffic, unnecessary braking puts an hour on roads, and poring a fatal threat to omnipresent impatient drivers trying to pass them.

People who drive on Hamilton and district roads have a right to ask why the provincial licensing authority, the Department of Transport, openly permits such flagrant abuse of commonsense safety rules on local roads.

Canadian National and Canadian Pacific use old passenger cars to augment their equipment during peak transcontinental travel periods in early summer and in September. Transport Minister Jamieson told the House of Commons the other day, replying to a question from Hamilton West NDP Lincoln Alexander. Mr. Jamieson said he'd ask the railways to advertise the fact, so the public would be forewarned.

That's good public relations and we hope the railways use it. Travellers may forgive the railways when they understand it's uneconomical to buy costly new equipment that's needed only a few weeks each year.

Children Not Qualified To Experiment on Animals

Christian Science Monitor

There is a growing public feeling that schools, colleges, teachers and research organizations must call a halt to the "experiments" performed by unskilled youngsters on small animals. Painful and delicate operations, such as transplants, which should be carried out only by skilled operators at all times, are performed, often bungled, by high school amateurs in programs sponsored by science fairs, youth talent exhibits, and organizations commercially engaged in scientific research.

Teen-age experiments that involved starving, blinding and mutilating won prizes last spring at the Westinghouse science talent search" in Washington.

These practices not only cause suffering to the animals involved. They boomerang upon the young experimenters in a build-up of callousness, a distorted notion of values, a false estimate of the importance of their experiments in relation to legitimate research, and a dulling of the sense of sober responsibility.

Is He Fit for High Office?

Senator Kennedy's Future in Politics

Letter to the Editor

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

Senator Edward Kennedy does his country a disservice when he asks its citizens to decide his political future. It must be apparent to the Senator that his inaction to stress does not equip him for the rigors of high office and that any ambitions towards the position of the Presidency must now be put aside.

It would be inhuman to be unsympathetic to the Senator's predicament. His personal anguish and self-recrimination will be with him all his life. Yet, in this nuclear age, emotional outbursts of sympathy must of necessity give way to the hard practicality of facts. Once before Senator Kennedy found himself in the awkward position of having to publicly explain his past actions. In referring to his expulsion from Harvard for cheating he said "I was having difficulty and became apprehensive". This evident lack of stability under pressure is not peculiar to Edward Kennedy but must be regarded as a dangerous weakness in one aspiring to public office. He must explore new areas in which to serve his fellow man.

At the present time he has not declared himself a candidate for any presidential election. Let us hope it remains that way.

CONCERNED

Italian Immigrants Press For Voting Privileges

Brockville Recorder and Times

The old question of whether a resident should be given the right to vote before obtaining citizenship was given quite an airing at a hearing of the Ontario Legislature's committee on election law reform recently. A group of Italian-born immigrants proposed that all immigrants be allowed to vote in municipal and provincial elections—but not federal—after one year's residence in this province.

They presented a very interesting argument on their own behalf. Italians, they said, are a very politics-conscious people; the turnout in elections in Italy is usually about 90 per cent — far better than Canada's record. But when an immigrant comes here, he is barred from voting for the five years it takes to acquire citizenship plus whatever time passes until there is an election. The result, they say, is that the newcomer to Canada can lose all interest in our politics.

The Legislature committee did not appear much impressed with the Italian-Canadians' argument and there is certainly much to be said for withholding the vote until a newcomer to this country has absorbed enough of the Canadian background to fully understand what he's voting on. However, the Italians were asking only for what is already granted to immigrants from the Commonwealth and Eire, who can vote in Canada after only one year's residence.

This exemption is based on the premise that Commonwealth immigrants already understand our parliamentary system and speak the English language. That is true enough as far as the United Kingdom, Australia and New Zealand are concerned but the Commonwealth also includes African and Asian nations that are far less politically developed than Italy and where English is not the common language. The Italian-Canadians feel that this is outright discrimination—and it is pretty hard to find a convincing argument against them on that point.

Money Johnny Carson-Style

Portland Oregonian

In a sense, it is the concern only of Johnny Carson, NBC and the Internal Revenue Service how much money Mr. Carson is paid for keeping millions of Americans from getting a full night's sleep. Even so, guess that his new contract calls for $75,000 to $85,000 a week has been called "ludicrous" by the entertainer and "flagrantly in error" by a spokesman for the TV network.

Maybe the guess that his old contract was worth about $1 million a year, or almost $20,000 a week, wasn't accurate either, though as far as we know it has not been denied. Mr. Carson got a "good increase" when his contract was renewed and even if he now receives only $15,000 a week, it will seem ludicrous to most Americans.

The whole system by which movie stars, champion prize fighters, ball players and now television celebrities are paid fabulous sums is ridiculous. It has been going on for a long time, since the first flickers gave mediocre actors and actresses overnight renown and ballyhoo produced the first million-dollar gate for heavyweight slugging. Baseball and football players are paid more merely to sign a contract, in some instances, that the average hard-working person can earn in a lifetime.

This imbalance in monetary rewards is one of the inequities young critics of our society are griping about, we think. If so, they have a point.

Success Story

Marine Yard Launches 100th Corvette

By ROY PEACOCK
(Staff Reporter)

A commercial boat building venture started in Belleville less than four years ago has been successful to a degree undreamed of when the operation commenced.

Back in 1965 Ian Morch set up a boat building division as an adjunct to his Belleville Marine Yards operation, the view being to produce fibre glass sailing craft.

When the operation commenced there were only two full time employees and the hope was that they might build up to 18 craft per year.

That was just over three years ago.

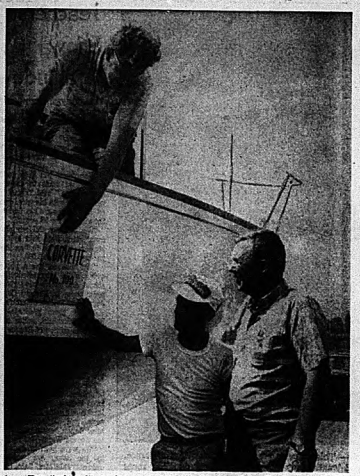
Today the company, now known as Belleville Marine "launched" its 100th sailing sloop of the Corvette type.

In addition the company has produced eight 36-foot frigates and 13 crusaders with a length of 40 feet.

Ninety per cent of the firm's total production has been sold in the United States. The 100th Corvette was loaded on a highway transport for delivery to Essex, Connecticut.

Belleville Marine now employs 55 workers — a number of them women.

And even though another seven or eight craft are in various stages of completion, the firm is running a week or so behind its production schedule.



The Corvette is the smallest of the three racing sloop sizes built by Belleville Marine. The 31-foot craft has achieved a great success as an ocean racing craft.

Although highly adapted to racing, it is built primarily as a family pleasure boat. It sleeps four and can be easily handled by two people. It races with a crew of four to five.

The craft comes equipped with a 30 horsepower inboard motor.

But they don't come cheap.

The "base" price for the Corvette is $14,000, while the Crusader ranges up to $20,000.

Two "original" employees of Belleville Marine, John Koning (on deck) and Ray Marsh affix identification card to the 100th Corvette sailing craft built at Belleville. Company owner Ian Morch looks on.

Parade Ends Summer Training

The summer recruit training of Hastings and Prince Edward will be completed for another year Saturday.

And to officially close 1969's training, there will be a regimental parade in the Belleville Armory Friday night.

Also part of the night's celebrations will be the presentation of awards and a reception after the parade.

Lieut. Brian Young, in charge of the training this year, described the 23 new recruits as "working good and hard."

On the training agenda were such items as basic weapon instruction, weapon firing instruction, first aid, a hunter safety course and drill.

Most of the young men on the course ranged in age from 16 to 19 years of age. Their training will have lasted a month.

Indoor training was taken in the armory itself. The firing ranges at Barriefield were utilized for Hasty Pee sharpshooters. Field training was operated at Cooper, north of Madoc.

Friday's inspection will begin at nine p.m.

The Belleville operation will provide employment for about six persons, including the office manager.

Raspberry Picking Goes Mechanical

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

A man on the moon . . . A television camera hovering around Mars and another on its way . . .

But, with all the wonders in space, there's still some technology left over for earth.

And two Quinte-area farmers currently are possessors of man's latest piece of mechanical ingenuity — an automatic raspberry plucker.

Clifford McFaul and his son, Elmer, say the machine — manufactured at Grand Haven, Mich. — is the first in Canada.

Yesterday they put it through its first test, in a 20-acre berry patch on their farmstead two miles north of Wellington.

As yet, says the elder McFaul, the machine is still on a trial basis.

The lumbering, chain-driven vehicle is a sharp contrast to the tenderest of fruit it was designed to tackle. However, a bruised berry never leaves the patch.

The machine, steered from an overhead platform, passes over the berry bushes, while a series of motorized flaps are in continual motion.

The resulting sustained draught knocks the ripest — and only the ripest — berries from the bushes, onto a conveyor belt. The belt runs to a rear platform, where sorters place them in baskets, ready for shipment.

Like every machine it replaces raw manpower. In this case, the replacement ratio of man to machine is higher than expected.

"We used to have 85 pickers in season," says Clifford McFaul with a chuckle. "This machine is supposed to replace 100 of them."

Belleville Still Lags In Blood Donor Role

Belleville residents are not pulling their weight when it comes to giving blood. Statistics indicate Belleville has never filled its quota of 1,800 donations set in 1964.

The closest Belleville has come was in 1964 when 1,719 bottles were collected.

The quota is set in relation to the population, but since 1964 the population has grown considerably yet the quota has remained the same and still has not been filled.

According to figures across Canada, 970,000 donations were made in 1968, up 10 per cent from the year before, but the shortage still remains. In contrast, Belleville's contribution dropped nine per cent between 1964 and 1968.

The Belleville General Hospital draws an estimated 2,500 bottles from the depot in Toronto. This supply must be filled by Belleville and the surrounding area because the hospital serves numerous other towns other than Belleville yet the shortage is always present.

When a clinic is held every two months, the blood collected is driven to Toronto in refrigerated trucks to the depot from where the blood is distributed to hospitals.

Archie Lewis, former chairman of the Red Cross blood donor service, says the high school drives are the chief sources for blood which helps to offset the decrease in adult donations.

Mr. Lewis said, "In wars, emergencies and national disasters there is always a good supply of blood but when there is no major disaster the supply is constantly short.

"All emergencies have been filled as well as special requests, but in some cases donors have left their beds to give the required blood. For example, requests for donors to cover the 20 to 40 bottles needed to perform open heart surgery have been filled in this manner."

The rarest blood type, AB negative, exists in only one in every 200 people. The rare type is taken to Toronto and frozen at 100 degrees below zero so it will last for approximately three years. Other types last only three weeks.

The service began during the Second World War. After the war the government asked that the service be kept on and, as of eight years ago, the service has been totally free.

Each clinic needs 80 volunteers to call the donors, and handle the many details involved in operating the clinic. The next clinic will be held at the Kiwanis Centre on Thursday Aug. 14.

"This clinic is the hardest of the year because the donors are on holidays but the demand is on the rise because of the increase in accidents on the highways," says Mr. Lewis. "Some firms in Belleville allow their employees time off so that as many as possible can make donations."

All the funds to operate the service come from the United Community Services which has been the main reason the blood donor service has remained operative.

Residents Bade Farewell

MARMORA — A farewell dinner was held at the Royal Hotel, Marmora, recently, in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Robert McCann, who left the following day to take up residence at Bethlehem, Pa.

Superintendent of Marmora Mining Co. for the past two years, Mr. McCann has been Chairman of the Marmora Recreation Committee during that time. The dinner was given by the Village Council in recognition of his guidance and leadership on the Recreation Committee.

Attending were about 60 guests including members of the Village, Township and Deloro Councils and their wives, and members of the Recreation Committee.

Reeve William Shannon thanked Mr. McCann for his contributions and interest in the field of recreation in the community. On behalf of the citizens of Marmora and the Recreation Committee, a presentation was made to Mr. and Mrs. McCann of a set of "Historic Hastings" and a china tea service.

In expressing his thanks, Mr. McCann commended the members of the Committee for working diligently together and dedicating so much of their time for the benefit of the community. He asked that the same support be given to his successor, James McChesney, who has been appointed new chairman of the Committee.

Mr. McChesney has returned to Marmora after an absence of nine years to assume the duties of Superintendent of the Marmoraton Mining Co.

WEDDING

FRATER — BRADY

MADOC — A double-ring wedding ceremony was solemnized in Trinity United Church Madoc recently when Nancy Ann only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Brady was united in marriage to Dr. Thomas Joseph Frater son of Mr. Thomas Frater of Toronto and the late Mrs. Frater, formerly of Budapest, Hungary. Rev. Vernon Tozer officiated and Mr. Stanley Hawthorne provided wedding music.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a floor-length gown of nylon sheer over taffeta, featuring elbow-length sleeves and a mandarin collar. White guipure lace formed a panel down the front of the dress and also edged the bottom of the sleeves and the bottom of the skirt. A nylon sheer train flowed from the shoulders and was also edged with matching lace. The four-tier elbow-length veil of white tulle was caught in a headpiece of nylon sheer flowers and pearls. She carried a colonial bouquet of pink roses and carnations.

Miss Vicky Mirtsis as maid of honor and Miss Lynda Fox, Miss Donna Turcott and Miss Karen Marr as bridesmaids were identically gowned in empire style petal pink polyester crepe dresses with back fullness and pink French lace bell-shaped sleeves. Each carried a colonial bouquet of pink and white carnations accented with the pink lace. Their headpieces were bands of matching pink and white carnations.

Masters Jimmy and Dougie Sopha, cousins of the bride were ring-bearers.

Dr. Gordon Hayes of Burlington as best man attended the bridegroom, while the ushers were Drs. Ted Jones of Hamilton, John Hough of Morrisburg, and John Bembenek of Toronto.

Receiving the guests, the mother of the bride wore a pearl pink brocade dress with matching coat, white accessories and a white gardenia corsage. Assisting was the bridegroom's step mother, who wore an apricot and rust imported brocade dress, gold accessories and a corsage of yellow carnations.

Bill Diamond of Niagara Falls, cousin of the bride performed the duties of master of ceremonies.

The happy couple left amid confetti and best wishes for a six-week holiday in Europe. For travelling the bride wore a lemon yellow shantung dress with matching coat, black patent accessories and a mauve orchid corsage.

Upon their return, Dr. and Mrs. Frater will reside in Orangeville.

PEARLS-A-PLENTY — This autumn, pearls come back with a difference. Instead of the traditional length, they now come in long dangling ropes reminiscent of the thirties era. Some stretch as long as 30 inches to dangle down to the hem of dresses. Pearls above are by Coro. (CP Photo)

Teachers Show Gratitude

VANCOUVER (CP) — Two Japanese-born teachers who were banished to Alberta during the Second World War said "thank you" to Vancouver recently by establishing $100 scholarships at three city high schools.

"Vancouver has been good to us and we want to show our appreciation," said Tsutae Sato, who, along with his wife, operated the Japanese Language School here for 38 years.

"We had no children of our own," Mrs. Sato said in an interview. "But we feel as though we have at least 3,000.

"My husband has a photo of every child who attended our school and many have risen to prominence in Eastern Canada, Japan and British Columbia."

Among their graduates are Kazuo Takahashi, editor of the Japanese edition of Reader's Digest; Sadindro Hidaka, editor for The Associated Press in Japan, and Gerald Morris, executive secretary of the Vancouver Board of Trade.

The Satos said they feel no bitterness at being ousted from their home and moved inland along with all other Japanese and Japanese-Canadians after Japan became involved in the Second World War in 1941.

"We were born in Japan and in the war, we were the enemy," said Mrs. Sato.

"But some of the Japanese-Canadians born here felt bitter. Many never returned from Ontario and other provinces."

"We aimed to keep the Japanese language alive with second- and third-generation Japanese-Canadians, but we stressed that the Nisei should become good Canadians," Mr. Sato said.

"I hope I have had some influence in the removal of the misunderstandings and misrepresentations between our peoples.

"My students are my real wealth."

Walkathon Funds Aid Church Work

DESERONTO — Receipts are still coming in from the walkathon to raise funds for restoration of the interior of the Presbyterian Church of the Redeemer.

Mrs. Albert Walker, treasurer for the project, stated Sunday that the total has now passed the $2,000 mark, and more is expected.

Tenders have been requested from various firms, but have not yet been submitted.

The church has a small, but slowly growing membership. It was threatened with being closed less than a year ago, but was kept open chiefly because of its activity in youth work.

With the proceeds of the walkathon, added to the fund, mainly through work by women's organizations, the interior will be redecorated.

Couple Wed For 39 Years

On Tuesday, July 22 Mr. and Mrs. George Norman celebrated their 39th wedding anniversary at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Dickinson.

Mr. and Mrs. Norman were married at Christ Church in Belleville, in July 1930, with Mrs. Dickinson as bride.

groom's sister, as matron of honor, and Mrs. Russell Dougherty of Oshawa, as flower girl.

In 1934, Mr. and Mrs. Norman left Canada to take up residence in London, England, and this is their first visit back, to meet many of their former friends.

They were accompanied by the sister of Mrs. Norman, Mrs. J. F. Jones from South Woodford, London.

City Children Enjoy Stay in Campbellford

CAMPBELLFORD — A group of 40 children from Toronto's east end were guests of families of St. John's United Church in Campbellford for a week. Some families had one child, some had two.

Of the 40 who came, six went to Hastings homes, one went to Warkworth, where a similar project was held last summer. Some of the children went to farm homes where the novelty of farm life was a source of wonder. Mr. and Mrs. Henry Oliver arranged a hayride for all the children which the adults also enjoyed. Another get together was a picnic at the Lion's Club Beach.

The children were picked up in Toronto by Campbellford residents who were unable to have a child in their home but who were in a position to provide transportation. At the end of the week they were returned to Toronto by courtesy of Ames Coach Lines of Campbellford.

The visit of the children to Campbellford was arranged by the Woodgreen Centre of Woodgreen United Church. The plan worked so well that those who kept the children this year are already planning a similar project next year, perhaps on a larger scale, to include children of other denominations in Campbellford.

The children most of whom knew only the restricted life of the city's east end were enthusiastic about the week in town. Having to board the bus to return home was for the most part an emotional parting not only for the children who hated to leave but for the local residents with whom for one week the children had been part of the family.

Several adults accompanied the children to Toronto.

It is understood another group will go to Island River under arrangement by Woodgreen United Church this summer. The children are chosen by need and are not limited by any-religious adherence of the parents.

Ladies' Club Holds Meeting

The Prince Edward-Belleville Ladies Club held a recent meeting at the Recreation Centre.

The group then travelled by bus through Rednersville to the Amelisburg museum. The evening ended with a dinner at Maple Inn, Bloomfield.

Another trip is planned for August 13 when the women will journey to Toronto.

Answer Is Community Home

Home Care for Retarded in Later Years Discussed

MOOSE JAW, Sask. (CP) — When a retarded child has lived at home all his life, what happens to him after his parents die?

Concerned parents in the Moose Jaw area are looking for an answer with representatives of the Association for Mentally Retarded Children, the Saskatchewan Training School and the school auxiliary.

"What is the point of a family keeping the child at home and making the adjustments for a nearly normal life when there's nothing in the end but an institution?" says Mrs. H. R. Lane, head of the association in Moose Jaw.

Even if an institution were the ideal solution, they have formidable waiting lists.

The group sent out questionnaires to families with retarded children and found their major concern was a place for the child and his support in later years.

The answer as the group sees it is a community home for retarded persons over 18 who have no one to care for them. Such a house, with room for 12 permanents and three temporary residents and house parents, would provide an atmosphere much like that of a private home.

Similar ventures in Saskatoon, Victoria and various Ontario communities have proved successful.

Mrs. Lane said the size of the proposed home is dependent on the number of people willing to support it and the amount of money available from provincial and municipal governments.

To be eligible, the group decided, a person must be able to care for himself basically and be free of any severe emotional problems.

Such a house would be large enough to cope with three temporary residents who might come in for a day or a week if their parents went out of town or if there was illness in the family. As well it could serve as living quarters for other young people, perhaps employed at the sheltered workshop, to drop in for lunch or to spend the afternoon watching television.

"We want it to be as close to home as possible in environment with a house mother and father," she said.

Hastings North District W.I. Elects New Officers

The Hastings North District Women's Institute's 41st District Annual was held at the United Church at Cooper, Ont. The Cooper Branch of the W. I. acted as hostess for the day.

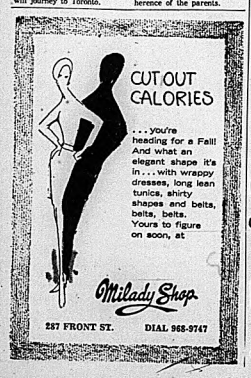
Members were received by Mrs. A. McVey and Mrs. D. Chapman. Registration was taken care of by Mrs. F. Reynolds and Mrs. E. Fox. Assisting song was led by Mrs. C. Keene with Mrs. F. Bailey at pianist.

The meeting was opened with an address of welcome by Mrs. R. Bolton, Cooper Branch. A reply was given by Mrs. C. Frank of the Harta and Riggs Branch.

Minutes and financial reports were given by secretary, Mrs. R. Sills, Stirling. Following Mrs. Sills' report the president, Mrs. Warren Hill of Madoc gave a talk on Institute work. Later all enjoyed dinner served by the Cooper members.

The afternoon session was called to order on the theme of which was "character is the real foundation of all worthwhile success."

Guest speaker was Mrs. C. Diamond, Provincial Public Relations Officer of New Toronto, who spoke on "Institutes on the March."



Mrs. Bart Haggerty, Miss MacEachern also gave a report on the Grill Club, Home Economics work.

Mrs. H. DeClair gave a report on the Guelph Conference. Mrs. Irwin of West Hastings gave a short talk on Institute work. Visitors were Mrs. Graham, area president and Mrs. Calea of Grafton.

Mrs. P. Carmon of Marmora gave a report on safety.

Election of officers for the coming year is as follows: past president, Mrs. W. Hill, Madoc; president, Mrs. F. Tobin, RR 2, Madoc; first vice-president, Mrs. G. Barker McArthur's Mills; second vice-president, Mrs. G. Empey, Marmora; secretary-treasurer, Mrs. R. Sills, Stirling; assistant secretary-treasurer, Mrs. Ted Pollock, Ivanhoe; federation representative, Mrs. W. Hill, Madoc.

Other officers elected were, alternate, Mrs. R. Sills, Stirling; district delegate, Mrs. Albert Bailey, Madoc; alternate, Mrs. J. Spry; public relations, Mrs. G. Barker, McArthur's Mills; curator, Mrs. C. Burkitt, Springbrook; auditors, Mrs. J. Spry and Mrs. W. Barlow, Bonarlaw. Several officers were elected to standing committees.

Successful Living

Statement of Birth Is A Permanent Record

By DORIS CLARK

Dear Doris: I am a 17-year-old who is expecting a baby. I went to see a priest about getting married and he said it was better to wait till after I had the baby, because I hadn't much time.

The priest said it would only cost two dollars to change the baby's name after we were married. My boy friend says it will cost more because you have to have a lawyer and it has to go before a court. — Which is Right?

Dear Which: No need for either lawyer or court. In most provinces the cost is nominal, and legitimation fairly simple.

Once you are married, you merely produce the birth registration and the marriage license. The child care agency will help with the signing of papers.

Far better to put the baby under your name if you are not married. In this connection, one provincial registrar-general stated:

"Recently, I have received an unusual number of letters from single girls who previously registered the child in the father's surname, requesting the office to amend the birth registration to her maiden name.

"In every case the father has left the mother (sometimes to return to his wife) and now the girl is reconciled to the fact that she will never marry the father.

"I have no alternative but to point out to the mother that the Statement of Birth is the permanent record."

* * *

Dear Doris: In a nutshell: We are a couple 48 and 52 years of age, we don't drink and we are of different denominations. Our prime interests in life were in the following order: our only son, our dear friends and pet dog, who was with us for 15 years.

Today our son has married and left: our friends were promoted and left, and pet dog died. We were going to give a try to adopting a child as I felt we still had a lot to give but our age and bank balance were not in our favor.

So I was hoping that you might know of any group or volunteer organization (not a house club or a church club) where it would be possible to meet people and get a new interest in life. — Left High and Dry.

Dear Left: Even with out such a wholesale exit, most couples have to start something new around about the half-century mark. And the happiest are the ones who are making friends all their lives.

Would age and bank balance be o.k. for the adoption of a purebred puppy? This could lead to membership in a kennel club. Heaps of fun! And there are other hobbies worth learning about with clubs to foster them. Your public library is a good place to go for details.

As for volunteer work, it screams for willing hands. It comes in great variety in most places, and friends come with activity. For guidance where you are, ask at the United Community Services of Belleville and District, Inc., 214 John St. N. P. O. Box 815.

Points for Parents

By MARY BRYSON

Father: "Don't those friends of Janie's know enough to go home. It's past midnight and they've still got that record player going full blast. What will the neighbors think?"

Mother: "It will embarrass Janie if I tell her to send them home."

Curfew hours for teen-age parties should be definitely understood and parents should not hesitate to enforce them. All it should take is a friendly, tactful reminder that the party is over.

Kitchen Tested Recipes

A Basic Batter for Fruit Puddings

By MARY MOORE

The young people in this audience and the young people in my own family keep me posted on what they need, the recipes they have missed and some foods they have eaten in restaurants and want to reproduce at home.

The batter for the pudding I am giving you today may be used on so many fruit puddings that it should be a staple in every young housewife's recipe file. Today I am using it over blueberries. In previous years I have given it here covering plums, oranges, peaches and pineapple. If you have the recipe for the simple sponge batter you can improvise as much as you like with the fruits in season that it will top.

BLUEBERRY PUFF PUDDING

Fruit base:
2 cups rinsed and dried blueberries
2 cups sliced apples
½ cup water
3 tbsps. minute tapioca
¼ cup sugar
¼ tsp. salt
2 tbsps. lemon juice

Sponge Batter:
6 tbsps. sugar
2 large eggs — yolks and whites divided
¼ tsp. cream of tartar
⅛ tsp. salt
½ cup sifted all-purpose flour

In a saucepan combine blueberries and apple and water and bring to boil. Mix together tapioca, sugar and salt and stir into blueberry mixture and boil, stirring, for one minute. Add lemon juice. Pour into buttered baking dish and keep hot.

To make Batter beat the egg whites with the cream of tartar and salt until stiff but not dry. Transfer beaters, without washing them, to egg yolks combined with sugar and beat until thick. Fold yolk mixture into whites. Fold in flour. Pour over hot blueberry mixture in baking dish and bake at 325 deg. Fahr., about 50 min.," or until batter is firm to touch—You may want to pass 10 percent cream when you serve this.

Ann Landers

Life Depends Mainly On Point of View

ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN LANDERS: A while back a reader expressed surprise that suicide was the sixth cause for death in the United States. I'll bet it would show up as fourth if all the actual suicides were listed as such.

Thousands of people who die in auto accidents kill themselves. In fact, driving off bridges is called "Catholic suicide." Furthermore, some insurance companies don't pay off on suicidal deaths so the well-tentured person who is tired of living gets in his car and runs into the river. Who can prove it wasn't an accident?

Frankly, I'm surprised that more people don't kill themselves. For every ounce of pleasure in this lousy life there is a pound of pain. For every good person there are a thousand scoundrels. Life is cruel and rotten and unjust. If you can think of three good reasons why my life is worth living I wish you'd let me in on them. Right now I'm despondent, disgusted and sick of fighting. Just sign me — BATTLE WEARY.

* * *

DEAR WEARY: I can't give you even one reason your life is worth living because I don't know what kind of hand you were dealt — or how you've played it. I do know that life to me is exciting and joyous and I want as much of it as I can get.

Yes, life can be cruel and rotten and unjust, but it can also be joyous and rewarding. You say the cup is half empty. I say it is half full. Yet we are both speaking of the same cup. It all depends on the point of view.

The person who places no value on life places no value on himself. And this is your central problem.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Every now and then you print a letter from a wife who complains that she can't get her husband to fix anything around the house. You tell them, "Stop nagging and hire the work done."

Now, will you please tell me what to do with a husband whose hobby is taking things apart — especially after he has a drink or two, and doesn't know how to put them back togeather again?

The TV hasn't been the same since he tried to "improve the picture." He has dismantled an air-conditioner and ruined my sewing machine. Last week he had to have the car towed to the garage after he took it out for the knock in the motor.

If you can think of a cure for this you are a genius, Ann Landers. Just sign me — MARRIED TO A FIXER.

* * *

DEAR MARRIED: If something is not working properly, forget to mention it. When an appliance is left dismantled or broken, call a professional and get it repaired. Your husband's hobby is relatively harmless compared with some I've heard of. At least he's at home, even though he's taking things apart.

Riders Do Dance On Alouette Grave

OTTAWA (CP) — The Ottawa Rough Riders danced breasts in full tuxes before 18,194 fans Wednesday night and the Montreal Alouettes, minus their once nimble pair of feet, couldn't keep up with the tempo.

When Lansdowne Park was cleared, the score was 47-15 in favor of the Grey Cup champions and, the woeful Als faced the possibility of a full season without star halfback Danny Houston.

The flashy 19-year-old American rookie, outstanding in exhibition games this season, limped off the field early in the first quarter with a badly damaged knee.

Alouette coach Kay Dalton said following the game the knee would have to be operated on, perhaps today.

The Rough Riders—a team which General Manager Red O'Quinn said earlier would have to prove they were hungry after last year's championship season —were voracious.

Don Sutherin, last year's Eastern Football Conference scoring champion, racked up 23 points on his own with one touchdown, four field goals, four converts and a single.

Sutherin kicked a 21-yard field goal in the opening seconds of the second quarter to start the scoring, and a little over a minute later picked off a flair pass from Montreal quarterback Carroll Williams and scampered 32 yards for a touchdown.

He missed the convert on that one but added extra points on two touchdowns by flanker Whit Tucker and one each by halfback Vic Washington and end Margene Adkins.

All four Rider touchdowns came on passes from quarterback Russ Jackson.

Jackson, ringing with deadly accuracy behind solid front-line protection, hit on 12 of 20 passes for 212 yards. The longest was a 55-yard bomb to Tucker in the third quarter on a pass-and-run play that covered 82 yards for a touchdown.

Williams connected on 12 of 19 attempts for 128 yards.

Both quarterbacks were relieved in the fourth quarter—Jackson by Bill Van Burkleo and Williams by Sonny Wade. Van Burkleo completed three of seven passes for 49 yards and Wade was three for six for 45 yards.

Montreal scored its first two points when Jackson was hit by defensive end Willie Martin behind the goal posts in the second quarter.

Minutes later punter Peter Dalla Riva scored a touchdown by recovering a kick fumbled by Ottawa safety Billy Ashton, by recovering a fumble by safety Billy Agtern on a kick from Dalla Riva's own one.

Sonny Wade scored with less than a minute remaining in the game on a two-yard plunge.

Vic Washington was almost Ottawa's responsible running attack, accounting for 100 of the Riders' 124 net yards gained. Dennis Duncan picked up 54 yards on the ground for the Alouettes out of a total of 84 for the team.

As far as Duncan is concerned, Keeling is the leader in Calgary. Liske is with Denver Broncos of the American Football League and it's a whole new season.

The Lions led at the end of the first quarter 4-3 on Gerela's single and 12-yard field goal and the B.C. kicking specialist increased the margin to 7-3 early in the second with another three-point boot from 35 yards.

After that, Keeling and Robinson dismembered the Lions' defence and the Stampeders scored 25 points.

Harrison, who caught five passes for 91 yards, picked off Keeling's six-yard flip for the first touchdown at 9:14 of the second quarter.

In the span of six minutes and 16 seconds in the third, Robinson had kicked another seven points and Keeling had humiliated the B.C. backfield with the TD pass to Evanshen.

The Lions had the same number of first downs as Calgary—15—but only a net rushing offence of 83 yards.

Ted Gerela's toe was the only thing the Lions had going for them. He kicked two field goals and added a single when his try for three points was wide from 45 yards.

Keeling, who completed 12 of 27 passes for 242 yards, even put his running game into high gear in the second quarter with some fine broken-field moves, carrying the ball to his own territory without a receiver.

Stampeders' coach Jim Duncan refused to get involved in comparisons between Keeling and Liske, who played out his option last year for a crack at United States pro ranks.

"Keeling makes Liske ever left," he said.

"Having played defence for that long helps me to read the opposition better. It gives me an edge."

Keeling hit Herm Harrison and Terry Evanshen with touchdown passes and handed off to impressive Tuby Linterman for the other Calgary major.

The footwork of Larry Robinson accounted for the rest of the scoring. He booted all three converts and kicked two field goals and two singles for 14 points.

Soviets Protest Nine-Pro Plan

MOSCOW (CP) — The Soviet Ice Hockey Federation Wednesday demanded reconsideration of a decision by the International Ice Hockey Federation earlier this month that will allow nine professionals to participate in the world tournament's A pool next March.

The Soviet federation said the "decision runs counter to the interests of the future development of world hockey."

"It casts aspersions on the purity of amateur hockey and may result in exclusion of hockey from the Winter Olympic Games."

The IIHF delegates approved the use of nine professionals by any team for the 1970 tournament, at Winnipeg and Montreal after defeating a proposal by Canada that it be declared open.

The delegates tied 25 to 25 on the proposal for nine professionals and J. F. (Bunny) Ahearne, IIHF president and chairman of the meeting, cast the deciding vote in favor.

The Russians and Scandinavian countries said then that this would probably make competing teams ineligible for Olympic competition.

Ahearne said it was his opinion that any amateur team competing against a team which included nine professionals would be eligible for the Olympics.

In Vancouver, Fred Page, a member of the four-man North American contingent of the IIHF, said the Russians have little "hopes of having the decision reversed before the next meeting of congress next March."

"The decision was made by majority vote at a regular annual meeting and would have to be protested at the next one," Page said.

The next meeting is scheduled during the A pool tournament in Winnipeg next March.

"I don't think there is really much the Russians can do now," Page said. "If they withdrew from the tournament, they could be relegated to the B pool for failure to appear."

Keeling Makes Stamps Forget Liske Ever Left

VANCOUVER (CP) — Forget about Peter Liske. Quarterback Jerry Keeling is alive and well and throwing touchdown passes for Calgary Stampeders.

Keeling, who spent eight years as a defensive halfback, proved he can take over as Calgary's No. 1 signal caller Wednesday night, leading Stampeders to a 32-7 victory over British Columbia Lions.

"If you have to start at quarterback, this is a good team to do it with," Keeling said following the Western Football Conference game witnessed by 28,-294 fans.

"Having played defence for that long helps me to read the opposition better. It gives me an edge."

Russell Will Retire

BOSTON (AP) — General Manager Red Auerbach of Boston Celtics announced Wednesday that forward Bill Russell, 35, plans to retire after leading the club to 11 championships in 13 National Basketball Association years as a defensive wizard.

"Russell believes he has retired, but I have not given up hope," Auerbach told a news conference. "I hope to convince him to play one more year.

"I will not consider him retired until he does not show up for the first day of practice."

Russell, plagued by arthritis knees the last few seasons, would be stepping down with one year remaining on a contract calling for more than $200,000 a season.

Sports Briefs

TEL AVIV (CP) — Vicki Berner, 25-year-old tennis veteran from Vancouver, chalked up Canada's first victory in the Maccabiah Games Wednesday with 6-1, 6-3 victory over Roberta Timmen of Israel. Canada so far has not won any medals in the games, which got under way Tuesday. In other action, the United States took a stranglehold on the games swimming program by capturing all six gold medals Wednesday. The U.S. has eight gold, seven silver and five bronze medals. Mark Spitz, kingpin of the U.S. team, and his 15-year-old sister, Nancy, played the major roles in the American domination, each picking up two golds.

WINNIPEG (CP) — Winnipeg's Blue Bombers' explosive halfback Dave Raimey visited a dentist Wednesday to have a chipped tooth fixed. Raimey was caught by Edmonton Eskimos' linebacker Jerry Griffin in a solid tackle as he ran back to kickoff in Tuesday night's Western Football Conference opener in Winnipeg.

Western Rebels Back in CAHA Fold

WINNIPEG (CP) — Differences between the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association and the Western Canada Hockey League have been resolved and the WCHL has rejoined the national organization, officials announced Wednesday night.

The surprise announcement came at a press conference held jointly by the WCHL, the CAHA and the Canadian Hockey Association, under whose jurisdiction the WCHL now plays.

The terms of the merger state that the WCHL will be allowed to use up to five over-age players in the first year under CAHA jurisdiction.

Aside from this "there were no concessions either way, said CAHA president Earl Dawson of Rivers, Man.

The meetings here, which began Saturday were the fourth in a series between the CHA and CAHA. Progress was kept under wraps "because we didn't want it to become a football in the press," Dawson said.

Bill Hunter of Edmonton, chairman of the board of governors of the WCHL, said the reunion clears the way to phase the CHA out of existence.

The eastern wing of the CHA, the Western Ontario Junior Hockey League, is currently meeting with the Ontario branch of the CAHA toward a similar end.

If those meetings are fruitful, he said, there will no longer be any need for the CHA.

The CHA was formed in June, 1968, to operate independently of the CAHA. Specifically the rebel association allowed its teams to use players older than the limit set by the CAHA.

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — There may be a sixth team by Friday in the Western Ontario Junior A Hockey League, interim president Syd Symes said Wednesday, but he has no idea who it might be.

"I really don't know—I can't even tell you what cities are interested," he told a meeting of the league's five teams, which broke away from the Ontario Hockey Association and are preparing for their second season under the Canadian Hockey Association banner.

Symes told a meeting here that former WOAHL president Frank Busse of Guelph is negotiating with the mystery team and "we'll make an announcement on Friday."

There has been speculation a team from Weston, Galt, Woodstock, Sarnia or Windsor would join the rebels, although spokesman for Windsor Bulldogs and Woodstock Navy Vets have said they are not interested.

Present members are St. Thomas Barons, Sarnia Legionnaires, Guelph Imperials, Brantford Forresters and Chatham Maroons.

The meeting was told that two members—Guelph and St. Thomas—have not yet posted their $1,500 performance bonds for the 1969-70 season, but Symes said he expects them in a few days.

Now That's Modesty!

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Both Larry Bissell of London and Nick Weslock of Burlington, Ont., won the first senior tournament they entered, but Bissell, who won his first Wednesday, insists the comparison ends there.

"I'm not in his class," Bissell said after edging Weslock by one stroke to win the London Hunt Club senior invitation with a one-under-par 71.

Weslock dogged him all the way despite a balky wedge that let him down on at least five holes. Jack Nash and Ed Ervasti, both of the host club, tied for third at 72. They shared the title two years ago.

Weslock won the event last year, his first senior tournament since qualifying for the age bracket. He added the Ontario senior title a few weeks later, and will be on hand to defend it in August at Kingston Cataraqui.

Playoff Opponents Not Yet Determined

Black Diamond Story: Too Little Too Late!

Black Diamond Cheesemen came back . . . but too late to do their Commercial Softball League playoff hopes any good.

A 3-0 loss at the hands of defending league champion Stinson's Construction last night at the Alemite Field wiped out the slim mathematical chance the Cheesemen had of grabbing one of the seven-team loop's four playoff berths.

Meanwhile, sixth-place Corby's played the role of spoilers, handing the slumping Ellis Juniors a 4-1 loss in the other half of the night's doubleheader.

Stinson's who moved into a first-place tie with Idle City Hotelmen — only touched Black Diamond's Sonny Holoway for five hits, but put them together at the right time.

In the third inning, Ken Genereaux' leadoff triple, Rick Locke's single, and Lyle Thompson's double forged a 2-0 Stinson margin. Neil Campbell's fourth-inning double and an infield error accounted for the other Stinson's tally.

Holway struck out seven, walking only two in taking the loss for the Cheesemen, who had won four straight games in their belated bid to grab a playoff spot.

Meanwhile, Bob Swan earned the win by scattering five singles to Black Diamond's Dwight Rathwell, Jerry Hill, Martin Walsh, Don Wood, and Sonny Holoway.

ELLIS JUNIORS 1

Despite their fifth loss in eight games, the Ellis Juniors managed to stay tied with Point Anne, two points out of the league lead.

The Juniors outhit Corby's 6-4, but couldn't muster a concerted attack against Grant Collett's exhibition of control pitching.

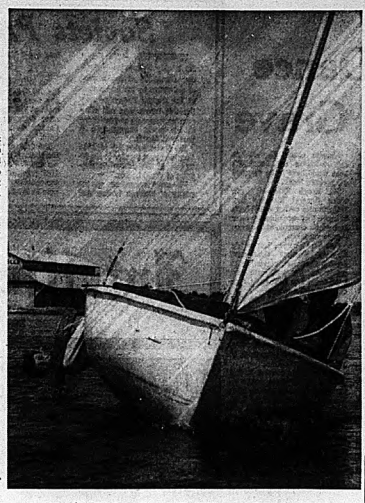
Collett who sat on Black Diamond Cheesemen's bench most of last season hurled Corby's to their eighth win in 20 starts without walking a batter, while striking out three.



The four Corby's hits off Juniors' pitchers Mark Sheridan and Scotty Reid, together with six free passes, provided the winners with their four runs.

Key singles by Bob Wannamaker, Chuck Rowbotham, Ken Brooks and Moe Hawkins, combined with the six walks, were all Corby's needed.

Meanwhile, singles by John Campbell, Bob Persons, Wayne McTaggart, Paul Goodfellow, Reid and Sheridan only netted the Juniors one run. That came in the third inning, and the losers needed three hits to push it across.

The usually effective Sheridan - Reid Juniors' pitching punch was missing, with the pair striking out but four Corby batters between them.

Joe Edwards Has Final Say In Golfing Duel

Joe Edwards of Belleville who placed second in the Eastern Ontario qualifying round at the Bay of Quinte Golf Club earlier this summer behind fellow Bellevillian Doug Ridley, had the final say Wednesday in the 18-hole Ontario bantam golf championships at Glen Shield golf course near Thornhill.

Edwards fired a 23 over par 94 to finish 15 strokes behind champion Mike Holland of Camp Borden in the bantam competition for those 13-years- old and younger.

Edwards' 94 was two strokes better than the 96's posted by Ridley and Mark Westfall of Trenton, who placed third in the qualifying round at the Bay of Quinte course. Ridley shot a 93 at Belleville, eight strokes ahead of Edwards and nine better than Westfall.

Jeff Howard of Trenton defeated Bruce Burgher of Port Hope and Scott Knapp of Napanee in the fourth extra hole of a sudden-death play-off in the junior qualifying round at the Bay of Quinte course, but their roles were reversed Wednesday in the 36-hole Ontario junior golf championship at Thornhill Country Club.

The trio each shot 77's in the 18-hole qualifying round, but were unable to match that performance Wednesday. Burgher topped the trio with a 157 score and finished 13 strokes behind the winner — Kelly Roberts of Burlington — who fired two even-par rounds of 72 for a 144 total.

Knapp was three strokes back with a 157 total while Howard was four strokes further back with a 164 total on two rounds of 82.

Festival Will Flood Course on Weekend

The Bay of Quinte Golf and Country Club course is going to be flooded again this weekend.

Not by a repeat of recent heavy summer showers, but by a vast number of golfers who will converge on the Bay of Quinte Club's sixth annual Golf Festival Saturday and Sunday.

Members of over 30 golf clubs from Verdun, Quebec, in the east to Innerkip, Ontario in the west will compete for prizes totalling $1,000 Saturday in the Men's Handicap Tournament and again Sunday in the Mixed Two-Ball Handicap Tournament. Both are 18-hole tournaments.

Saturday's Men's Tournament will be divided into "A", "B" and "C" flights and competitors will vie for low net and low gross awards in each flight.

Two Bellevillians who captured titles last year in this tournament will compete again this year. They are Max Haggerty, the 1968 "B" flight champion and Ken Lesseia the "C" flight winner. In all 216 golfers have entered Saturday's competition.

Defending champions Betty Ingram of Napanee and Smith will be among 228 entries in Sunday's Mixed Two-Ball competition. Last year they captured the low gross award with a record of 78.

'Hiking' - - Sailing Style!

"Hiking," as it is known to the youngsters in the Bay of Quinte Yacht Club's Junior Sailing Program, is demonstrated by Rick Burnett (left) while Doug Reid looks on during Junior Sailing exercises Wednesday in the Bay of Quinte. The "hiking" procedure is employed in stiff winds to flatten out and increase the speed of the 14-foot Nordberg training boat.

Storey a Welcome Addition To City Celebrities Dinner

By GEORGE H. CARVER

He was born Roy Alvin Storey.

Nature endowed him with red hair, personality, a penchant for puns and a yen for things athletic.

Today he is 74 inches of bean-pole slimness sparse-thatched, a master of the quick quip and bon mot, and one of the nation's top sports raconteurs and after-dinner speakers.

Color him "Red".

In his younger days he ranked with the best in Canadian professional football. He was a top-flight hockey player and later joined the ranks of that much-maligned breed — the National Hockey League Referees' Association.

He reached the top echelon of the whistle-tooters' organization and remained there until he had the effrontery to board the NHL owner-lions in their golden dens.

He exchanged his whistle, skates and sweater, the "slings and arrows of outraged fans and indignant players" for the togs of an ambassador-at-large for a well-known distillery. You know, the one that sponsors the Canadian Open Golf Tournament.

A memory as retentive as those of a dozen elephants stood him in good stead.

He converted a self-styled "gift of the gab" into a stream of comedic chaotic freckled with wit, humor, and anecdote, spiced with priceless nibbits of personal experience.

This with a personality that projects itself over and beyond the banquet head table to the furthermost corners of the room makes "Red" Storey the most sought-after sports after-dinner speaker in this part of the country.

He has acted in this capacity in the Quinte district five or six times. I have attended all of them and each was a new and delightful experience.

"Red," who claims his barbers use guerrilla tactics to "search out and cut down the enemy" instead of the all-out assault, makes his second appearance in the city on Aug. 27, at a sports celebrity dinner scheduled for the Club Canera.

The proceeds of the dinner will go to the exchequers of the Belleville Mo-Hawks senior hockey club and the Belleville Juniors organization.

Funds are badly needed to help these clubs keep Belleville on the hockey map next winter.

In a change of pace from the usual sports celebrity banquet, the Aug. 27 affair will not be a "stag" dinner. Wives and sweethearts of fans will be able to attend and dinner officials hope the dinner-set will add a touch of color to the affair in goodly numbers.

At least a dozen of the top names in sport will head the head table, according to Juniors' manager Jim "Snipe" Matthews.

Hockey will be well represented in Bobby and Dennis Hull, with a possibility of the Boston Bruins' Belleville-born Eddie Westfall being on hand.

Wrestling's 81 x-foot-eight Lord Athol Layton and Whipper Billy Watson have been invited.

Adding a feminine touch to the head table guests will be Belleville's Princesses of the Ice Lanes, Jane and Peggy McCutcheon; two-time national archery champion Carol Armstrong and possibly Sue Hilton, one of Canada's outstanding golfers who hails from Trenton.

Tickets for the dinner will go on sale almost immediately. Outlets will be announced later.

Grapes Gallop To Ribbons

Distance man Dave Simmonds and Marie Brain outpaced seven other athletes from the Belleville Kinsmen Track and Field Club Saturday in the competition for ribbons in the annual Newmarket Track Club invitation meet.

Simmonds, wearing his new purple-and-gold Kinsmen Track Club uniform, captured first place in the juvenile men's 880-yard run with a clocking of 2:03.6 and then placed fourth in the mile run with a time of 4:38.7 — 7.5 seconds better than his previous best.

Marie Brain won the bantam girls 100-yard dash in 11.4 and then leaped 16'4½" to capture first place in the long jump.

Kaarina Jokinen placed second in her heat of the midget girls 100-yard dash and fourth in her heat of the 220-yard dash and failed to qualify for the final in either event.

Although they failed to win the team title or many individual award at the Newmarket competition the Kinsmen Track and Field Club members did pick up one thing — a nickname.

Upon seeing the new purple-and-gold uniforms head coach Gord Smith dubbed the team the "Galloping Grapes" and the team members have unofficially adopted that nickname.

Kennedy to Stay in Senate and Seek Re-election Next Year

WASHINGTON (Reuters) /— Senator Edward M. Kennedy, having apparently ruled himself out of the 1972 presidential race, returns to the Senate today for the first time since his auto mishap in which his secretary was killed.

Aides said the 37-year-old majority whip would be in his office in the Senate today—a crucial day since a showdown vote is expected on President Nixon's controversial proposal to extend the 10-per-cent income tax surcharge.

Kennedy announced Wednesday that he would remain in the Senate and run for re-election next year when his current term expires. He also said that he would serve out his entire six-year term if re-elected—an indication that he would forgo a bid for the Democratic presidential nomination in 1972.

The Massachusetts senator's decision came as no surprise.

After the car crash in which 28-year-old Mary Jo Kopechne was drowned, Kennedy asked for the aid and prayers of his constituents to help him decide his political future.

In his dramatic televised appeal Friday, Kennedy admitted his failure to report the accident immediately to police was indefensible—but denied speculation that he was under the influence of alcohol or that he had immoral relations with his Kopechne.

Thousands of messages of support and encouragement poured in for Kennedy even though some persons and many newspapers noted that his story did not answer all the questions raised by the accident.

Kennedy's Senate colleagues reacted joyfully to the news that the party's most successful fund-raiser had decided to stay in politics.

"Wonderful! Wonderful!" exclaimed Senator Daniel Inoye (Dem., Hawaii), chairman of the Democratic senate campaign committee which helps Senate candidates.

Senator Edmund S. Muskie, considered a top contender for the next presidential nomination and vice-presidential candidate in 1968, said he was "delighted" at the news but added that he was "most surprised."

Kennedy's statement about staying in politics, issued from his Boston office, said:

"Senator Edward M. Kennedy is returning to Washington to resume his duties as U.S. senator and assistant majority leader.

"He is grateful to the people of Massachusetts for their expressions of confidence and expects to submit his record to them as a candidate for re-election in 1970.

"If re-elected he will serve out his entire six-year term."

Knife-wielder Charges American Pair in Tokyo

TOKYO (Reuters) — A man brandishing a knife charged at United States State Secretary William P. Rogers and U.S. Ambassador Armin H. Meyer today and knocked the ambassador to the ground.

Police and U.S. embassy officials said they could not guess which man was the target. Nobody was injured.

The incident took place while Meyer was seeing off Rogers and two other U.S. cabinet ministers who flew to Seoul, South Korea, after three days of talks here.

Rogers was about to walk to the aircraft gangway when the man charged. He collided with the ambassador, knocking him into a sitting position. Police rushed in and seized the knife.

Police first identified the detained man as Juji Hamada, 21, but later changed the Roman spelling of the Japanese characters to Shiegji Hamaoka. They said he gave an address in western Japan.

Japanese Foreign Minister Kiichi Aichi called the American embassy to express regrets soon after he heard of the incident.

Police charged the young Japanese with assault, which carries a maximum two-year term of imprisonment.

The knife, seven inches long, was described as an artist's painting knife used for applying and scraping oils—a palette knife.

It was the second time in slightly more than five years that a U.S. ambassador to Japan has been involved in knife incidents.

An attacker in 1964 stabbed Prof. Edwin O. Reischauer, picked by the late President John F. Kennedy from Harvard University to be envoy in Tokyo.

Your Dollars

Buying Appliances

By KEN WEERES

If you are a typical home owner, you will have over $800 of appliances in your home. It is not uncommon for many homes to have over $2,000 when the television set and record player are included.

To compute your yearly cost for appliances, add up the total cost of appliances in your home and divide by 10. The 10 comes in because this is about the average lifetime of an appliance. For example, if the total cost of your appliances is $1,200 you will probably be spending $120 per year on replacement.

Replacement, however, is not the only cost. For maintenance and repairs you should add another 3 or 4 per cent of the total price. In this example another $45 or $50 per year would not be unreasonable.

In addition, the cost of electricity, natural gas and water should be included. This will vary but it is a substantial amount.

When purchasing new appliances, the commonsense rules certainly will apply. Determining what your needs are, choosing a reputable dealer, comparing costs and features are most necessary.

Always carefully read the warranties, guarantees and service contracts. Parts covered under warranty will vary between brand names and dealers. Also, free labor may or may not be included. One leading manufacturer gives free labor for the first 90 days, while the parts warranty is good for one year.

Be certain also to check into the service and installation of your appliance. A reputable manufacturer usually arranges service through an "authorized" service agency. These agencies use original manufacturer's parts and provide service according to the manufacturer's policy.

Often one can save by purchasing used appliances. But caution is needed. "Reconditioned" means a replacement of parts to put the machine back into satisfactory operating condition. The term "rebuilt" means that the appliance has been torn apart, new parts added, and put back together. Rebuilt is much better than reconditioned. Factory rebuilt refers to the rebuilding of the machine in the factory of the original manufacturer.

Always, always try an appliance before purchasing it. Particularly when buying a stereo set, a television set, or similar appliance. Nor should you test these appliances when the department store is busy with customers. Go to the store when it is not busy so that you can have any unusual or irritating noises.

Be wary of service men who operate by advertising 1 or 9 cost calls. They often attempt to get into your house where they begin running a bill, often phony, bill. Appliance repairmen are usually honest but it is not unknown to have tubes or other parts replaced when they were not needed. This is still practised by many firms today.

To get a good quality appliance take the time to go to your public library and read the "Consumer Report" on the various makes. If you don't know where to look, ask the librarian for assistance. It is worth the trip.

To save on cost it may be cheaper to rent seldom used appliances such as sanders, rug shampooers and so on. They can be rented cheaply and save the initial expense.

And follow the instruction manual for care and maintenance. Your dollars will go farther when you treat your appliances with respect.

Farmers' Union Planned

No Power in Society Can Match That Possessed by Farmers

WINNIPEG (CP) — "No force in our society can match the power possessed collectively by farmers," says a draft statement of policy which will be debated today by delegates attending the National Farmers Union founding convention here.

It also says: "Farmers must organize and bargain collectively as farmers to bring about the degree of discipline and organization necessary to make them an effective countervailing force in our society."

Draft demands include federal legislation guaranteeing farmers collective bargaining rights in the marketing of farm products, and legislation permitting the formation of producer-controlled national marketing boards.

Another point of high concern is the "corporate industrial entry" into the primary production of food—"the ability to produce foodstuffs in mass quantity is increasingly resulting in the encroachment into the production area by corporate structures possessing market control."

Holding government to heavy responsibility, the draft says "farmers must exert every legitimate means of assisting our legislators in providing legislation that can assure farmers of equity and the survival of a flourishing rural community in Canada."

Unlike the new NFU constitution, which was passed Wednesday with the understanding it could be discussed but not amended, the draft policy statement will be open to revision, deletion or addition.

Adoption of a policy statement will be followed by the election of a national president of a new, direct-membership body drawn from the farm unions of seven of 10 provinces.

The choice will be between Roy Atkinson of Saskatoon, who headed the loosely-knit affiliation that was the NFU of the past, and Walter Miller of Tara, Ont., president of the Ontario Farmers' Union.

Names of both men were put forward by the convention nominating committee. There were no nominations from the floor.

Present exceptions from the hoped-for coast-to-coast solidarity are Quebec, Newfoundland and Alberta. Alberta will make its decision in December, holding off action pending further study and there were assurances that the way is open for Quebec's integration if and when it shows interest.

In opening the two-day convention, Mr. Atkinson described it as "beyond question the largest assembly of farmers that has taken place in the history of this nation."

There are 844 delegates and nearly as many non-voting guests and observers.

Greatest delegate strength is from Saskatchewan with 381, followed by Ontario with 227; Manitoba 108, Alberta 75, Maritimes 28 and British Columbia 25.

Almost without exception Wednesday at The Highlander, the curling-rink convention scene, was a day of unanimity and ovations for farm union stalwarts such as Mr. Atkinson and Mr. Miller.

Steel Strike Threatens

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Hard bargaining sessions continued on two fronts Wednesday as the Steel Co. of Canada at Hamilton and Algoma Steel Corp. of Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., sought agreements on new contracts with the United Steelworkers of America.

More than 13,500 workers at Hamilton have threatened to strike at midnight Thursday night unless a new contract is settled. They would join 18,000 union members who started a work stoppage July 10 at International Nickel Co. of Canada plants at Sudbury and Port Colborne, Ont., where no agreements were reached on new contracts.

Negotiations between the union and Inco were suspended Friday and there has been no indication when talks will resume.

In Sault Ste. Marie, M. M. Thibault, provincial conciliation officer, said Wednesday progress is being made in negotiations.

The Algoma contract with the union also expires at midnight Thursday night, but John Ferris, president of the 6,800-member Local 2251, has advised the workers against strike action.

The Hamilton workers can legally strike because they turned down a conciliation report July 22.

Montreal Recovers From Tourist Slump

MONTREAL (CP) — With a strong boost from Montreal's baseball Expos and a fresher Man and His World exhibition, the city's tourist and convention business is pulling itself out of a dismal 1968 slump.

Cab drivers, hotel owners and tourist bureau managers agree that 1969 is no bonanza year for the tourist trade. But the influx of American visitors brings back memories of the bustling Expo 67 summer.

"The Americans flocked to Montreal in 1967," said one cabbie, "because they were very interested in seeing the World's Fair.

"But in 1968, they decided to go somewhere else. This year they've come back."

They're flocking to Jarry Park, home park of the Montreal Expos of the National League.

The United States vacationers also are drawn to Man and His World, where new and improved pavilions and attractions have been set up in the second summer of the continuing exhibition.

ATTRACTED MILLIONS

Canada's 19 national parks had more than 12,000,000 visitors in 1968.

Work, Labor, Toil Are Not Synonyms

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Thoughts at Large:

It is a mistake in understanding to use the words "work," "labor," and "toil" as synonyms; for "work" is what a man needs to do even if he isn't being paid for it; "labor" is what he has to do because he can't do anything better; and "toil is what should be done by a beast or a machine.

Sunday Trucking Ban to Be Eased

OTTAWA (CP) — Two exemptions from provisions of the Lord's Day Act still have been used against highway trucking on Sunday's were announced Wednesday by the motor vehicle committee of the Canadian transport commission.

The exemptions — for Maislin Bros Transport Ltd., La Salle, ue., and Day and Ross Ltd. of Brantford, N.B., are expected to spark hundreds of similar applications.

The Sunday "blue laws" have been most rigidly enforced against truckers operating into Quebec and Ontario, the committee was told at hearings here last March.

The two trucking firms also told the hearing that railways and airlines move freight through the weekends without hindrance and this made it difficult for them to be competitive.

Day and Ross got a blanket exemption from the committee for such movement of freight both to points in Ontario and Quebec from the Atlantic provinces and within the provinces.

Maislin Bros. was given an exemption that covered only Sunday movement of trucks from U.S. points, normally scheduled to reach Montreal or Toronto on a Saturday, where mechanical defects, breakdowns or some other misadventure delayed them. In cases of such delay, the trucks would be allowed to complete their journeys on Sundays.

A transport commission source said the decisions in these two cases could open the door to similar exemption requests by hundreds or thousands of trucking firms.

Red Crackdown Thought Likely

MOSCOW (AP) — The defection of Soviet writer Anatoli V. Kuznetsov probably will lead to a further crackdown on the arts in the Soviet Union.

The Kremlin is expected to try to make sure that no other writers critical of the Soviet system attain enough standing to be able to embarrass the Kremlin.

Kuzpetsov disappeared Monday night during a visit to Britain, and the British government announced Wednesday that he had been granted permission to live permanently in Britain. The writer said he defected because he feared reprisals if he returned to Russia.

The leadership that ousted Nikita Khrushchev in 1964 has shown a consistent pattern of restricting the few outposts of liberalism that remain in Russia.

Writers Andrei Sinyavsky and Yuli Daniel were given stiff prison sentences in 1966 for what the state decided were anti-Soviet writings. This was a clear warning that the Khrushchev thaw had ended.

Other actions against liberals or champions of artistic freedom followed. Recently Yevgeny Yevtushenko, perhaps the best known young Soviet poet abroad, was dropped from the editorial board of the magazine Yunost (Youth).

Rumors have been circulating that Alexander Tvardovsky would be ousted from the editorship of Novy Mir (New World), a magazine that has resisted the more extreme forms of sycophancy toward the system.

Ironically, Kuznetsov was one of the new members put on the Yunost board after the purge of the Yevtushenko group. That the 39-year-old author enjoyed this trust just before his defection can be counted on to increase official wrath against him.

The last well-known Soviet writer to defect, Valery Tarsis, was deprived of his Soviet citizenship when he fled to Britain in 1966. The Soviet authorities accused him of being a mad man after he asserted that communism in Russia had degenerated into "police fascism."

When Joseph Stalin's daughter Svetlana defected a year later, the Soviet press made charges of mental instability against her.

Houston Gets Two Grand Slams In One Inning for League Mark

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Catcher Bob Tillman of Atlanta Braves cracked three consecutive home runs Wednesday, but he ran third in the National League long ball derby.

Houston Astros hit two grand slam homers in one inning against New York Mets for a league record.

Hank Aaron, Tillman's Atlanta team-mate, picked Wednesday night to slam his way into third place on the all time list of home run-hitters. Aaron hit his 537th career homer to pass former New York Yankee star Mickey Mantle.

The Braves split with the Phillies at Philadelphia, winning the first game 6-3 on five homers, three by Tillman, Aaron's 17th and a solo shot by Felipe Alou.

The Phillies came back in the second game to nip the Braves 4-3 on Richie Allen's eighth inning homer, his second of the game. Johnny Callison's homer had tied the score 3-3 earlier in the inning.

In afternoon games, Houston swept past the Mets in a doubleheader, 16-3 and 11-5 and San Francisco Giants whipped Chicago Cubs 6-3. In night games St. Louis Cardinals stopped San Diego Padres 5-2, Cincinnati Reds rapped Montreal Expos 8-3 and Pittsburgh Pirates downed Los Angeles Dodgers 4-2.

Tillman hit his blasts in the second, fourth and sixth innings. The three homers gave him nine for the season and moved him into the game hitting .178.

Aaron, 35, in his 19th major league season, smacked his 537th homer in the third inning. It placed him third behind Babe Ruth who hit 714 and the Giants' Willie Mays who has 596.

In the second game, Atlanta jumped to a 3-0 lead, but Allen's first homer, his 20th, in the fourth inning with one on, tied the score.

The Braves moved ahead 3-2 in the seventh on Felix Millan's run-scoring double, but Callison hit his 10th homer of the year and Allen followed with his game-winner.

The Astros set a National League record with two grand slam home runs in one inning by Denis Menke and Jimmy Wynn as the Astros scored 11 times for an easy first game victory over the Mets.

Larry Dierker napped a two run homer for Houston in the third inning of the second game, concluding a 10-run inning and eased his way to his 13th victory.

The two grand slams in one inning had occurred only once before in major league history. Harmon Killebrew and Bob Allison did it for the American League Minnesota Twins against Cleveland Indians July 18, 1962.

Pitcher Gaylord Perry opened a three-run ninth inning with a double and scored the tie-breaking run in the Giants' victory over the Cubs.

Dave Marshall's single scored Perry and Bob Burda clinched the game with a two-run double, giving Perry his 12th win of the season.

Light-hitting Dal Maxvill walloped a bases-loaded triple, leading a five-run seventh inning that sent the Cardinals to their 13th victory in 23 games. Bob Gibson struck out 13 Padres in posting his 12th win.

Pete Rose tied the game with a run-scoring double in the eighth inning and pinch hitter Ted Savage followed with a two-run double sending the Reds past the Expos.

Manny Sanguillen rapped a tie-breaking eighth-inning single, helping the Pirates to their victory over the Dodgers. Sanguillen scored the insurance run on a single and passed ball.

Orioles' McNally Runs Record to 15-0

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Dave McNally is feeling no pressure, feeling no pain, but he does feel lucky.

The Baltimore left-hander must be wondering after running his record to 15-0 with a 4-2 victory over Kansas City Royals Wednesday night is "how lucky can I get?

"No, I don't feel any pressure," he said. "I think probably I would feel it if I had lost seven in a row, but I haven't that hasn't been the case. "I pitched badly enough to lose six or seven games. I know it has to end sometime, but I'm just happy to get this far, and I'm enjoying it. I'd rather be winning like this than losing, but it's taken a lot of luck to do it."

McNally's No. 15 put him in the American League baseball record book alongside Johnny Allen of Cleveland. McNally, with two victories at the end of the 1968 season, tied Allen's mark of 17 consecutive victories over two seasons — 1936-37—and Allen's record of 15 straight victories at the start of season, 1937.

McNally now is just one triumph away from the league mark of 16 successive victories in one season set by four pitchers.

In other American League games, Detroit Tigers slipped by Minnesota Twins 3-1, California Angels tumbled Boston Red Sox 4-1, New York Yankees beat Oakland Athletics 3-2, Seattle Pilots rapped Washington Senators 4-3 and Chicago White Sox blasted Cleveland 11-5.

McNally, 26, who has only eight complete games in 26 starts, needed relief again against the Royals after the first batter opened the ninth inning with a single. Eddie Watt relieved and preserved McNally's 15th victory in his last 16 decisions, including a 12-game winning streak last season when he was 22-10.

Shannonville Clinches Flag

With Shannonville having already clinched the South Hastings Baseball League pennant. Wednesday night's action was centred around the battle for second place between Plane's Concrete and Bend.

Shannonville clinched the pennant last Saturday with an 8-2 win over fourth place Lotta. It was reported in the Intelligencer Monday, July 28, that the Shannonville club was game short of clinching the pennant. The error was made because complete results of all games scheduled and/or played had not been reported to the Intelligencer.

Being league champions didn't help Shannonville at all last night, for third place Read thumped the league leaders 8-5 to keep alive their chances for a second place finish.

Meanwhile second place Plane's Concrete maintained their three-point lead over Read with a 7-0 whitewashing of the cellar-dwelling Reeves. No game report was submitted to the Intelligencer for the Plane's Concrete-Reserve game.

Harold Pascoe scattered three hits over the seven inning distance Wednesday night in pitching Read to victory over Shannonville. Pascoe walked only one man and struck out ten.

Losing pitcher Glen Barberstock gave up 12 hits, issued two free passes and fanned six men, while Blaine Read, Dennis Gaudreau and Ken Vesterfelt collected the only Shannonville hits — all single — off Pascoe.

Ken Abrazo's solo homer and pair of singles, Carm Milligan's double and single and Pete Hanley's brace of singles sparked the winners at the plate.

OSD Group Arrives In Belgrade

Six students and two instructors from the Ontario School for the Deaf, Belleville, were among some sixty-plus members of the Canadian contingent which was scheduled to arrive in Belgrade, Yugoslavia, today.

Instructors Haylie Bryant and Miss Betty Lalonde and athletes Sharlene MacDuff, Gloria Areva, Merry Lee Quaig, Bonnie Tucker, Jim Snyder and Ted Manktelow are the OSD Belleville representatives on the Canadian team which will compete in Belgrade in the 11th quadrennial World Games for the Deaf Aug. 9-16.

Booth Tykes Bring First Title of Season

The city's littlest baseball team has brought Belleville its first diamond title of the summer.

The Booth TV Tyke all-stars clinched the Eastern Ontario Baseball Association league championship last night with an 8-1 shellacking of Peterborough.

The win gave the Tykes an 11-2 season's record, also averaging 11 runs scored per game.

Belleville now has a bye in the first round of EOBA playdowns, meeting the winner of the Ottawa Peterborough series in the second round.

Peter Hall's five-hitter was good enough to give the tykes their 8-1 pennant-winning verdict over Peterborough Wednesday night. Hall struck out 11, walked seven, besides contributing a double to his own cause.

Meanwhile, a 17-hit Booth attack was being led by Mike Burke (four singles), Jeff Siddall (two singles, double), Bill Whalen (three singles), and Tony Meagher's brace of two-baggers.

Pearson and Gillis split the seven-inning mound chores for the losers, none of whom managed more than one hit.

The Booth Tykes are coached by Dick Hurst and Gord Vaughan.

Turbos Clinch Pennant

The CN Turbos clinched first place in the Department of Health League Tuesday night as they downed the Millers 12-5 to end the Combines 22-4 at Prince Charles Field.

Brian Plumbe and Rod Bennett split the pitching duties for the Turbos allowing five hits, and nine walks while striking out three.

Terry Gaffney and Don Conway were the pitchers for the losers. They gave up 20 hits, walked 13 batters and struck out three.

The Turbos had a field day at the plate. Sid Vanderveld led the Turbos with two grand slam home runs. Ron Conlon also homered out a homer and a single while Milton Bell managed four singles.

The Combines were led by Don Conway with a double while Warren Calbury, Skip Lang, and Bob Schrieder each collected singles.

ROLLO

"Well, I WAS in the bath, but you aren't disturbing me."

MR. TWEEDY by Ned Riddle

"Got a winner here, folks! Look what the lucky little fellow just won!"

ANAF News

It is hoped that next Sunday the weatherman will have more pleasant weather for the Duke of Edinburgh Units' annual children's picnic. Remember to take your programs with you as it identifies you and you also need the number for the gate draw prize. Buses leave the Market Square promptly at 10 a.m. The first bus will leave the picnic grounds at 6 p.m. Lots of clowns, races, goodies and scrambles, plus lots of fun for the kids and grownups also.

Cdes B. Feather at home and H. Dumphy, Kingston Road Dieu Hospital are the only ones on the sick list at present.

The pleasant surprise entertainment was provided by pianist Don Grass, drummer Len Fraser and Gene Cymmings and his guitar. Another very popular maestro of the ivory keys, Jimmy Carradi, was present also and bowed to popular demand by playing a few numbers in his own inimitable style that was very much appreciated by the large crowd.

Jimmy was also the lucky recipient of the second draw prize, while Cde. Johnny Carradi was first draw. It was another delightful evening and the entertainment chairman announced that Dave Sweet, Bobby Walsh and his organ and Alex Adams on the guitar will be back for a return engagement next Friday evening.

A group of forty braved the elements of a cool, blustery and damp Sunday morning on a safari to the Stoco golf course. They were the golfing contingent of Unit 201 and though it was an effort they managed a very early start. For this they were thankful as they managed to finish their tournament before the heavy afternoon downpour. Their spirits were good, never better, in fact, than their golf but all seemed to enjoy the outing. There were several nice prizes and the winners were as follows: Bob Brooks, winner of golf bag, Ted Hurst, runner up, won a lawn chair and Johnny Browning placed for a lovely table lamp. The most honest scorer was Bill Newell who must have pleased his better half by winning a dozen pair of nylons. Everyone returned home, a bit damp and weary but already making plans for the next tournament. Full details will be announced later with another slate of good prizes for the lucky winners.

CNE Warriors Day is on Saturday, Aug. 16th and Branch 99, 418 Wing are cooperating with the Unit to see if there are enough veterans interested enough to form a busload. This includes wives and girl friends. If any members are interested they are asked to leave their names with the stewards within the next two weeks so arrangements can be made.

TORONTO STOCK EXCHANGE

TORONTO (CP) — The Toronto stock market rose sharply in light early morning trading today as a rally that began in late trading Wednesday spilled over.

The industrial index was up 1.32 to 167.51.

Rumors—later denied—that a large commercial bank planned to cut its prime rate sparked the rally.

Today's light volume indicated investors were uncertain about the length of the rally.

Volume by 11 a.m. was 494,000 shares compared with 850,000 at the same time Wednesday.

Golds, down 54.32 in the last five days, gained 3.45 to 198.61.

A "paper gold" plan to supplement gold, dollar and sterling reserves as a basis for world trade touched off the gold rally.

In golds, Dome Mines was up 2¼ to 53 and Dickenson five cents at $2.30.

Advances outnumbered declines 194 to 64.

Alcan was up 1¼ to 24¼, Home A 1¼ to 61, Falconbridge 1¼ to 123, Pacific Pete 1¼ to 31, CPR 1¼ to 24¼, Alcan ½ to 27 and Sherritt ¼ to 13.

Dustbane lost 2 to 18 and Canadian Imperial Bank ¼ to 18¼.

Western oils gained 4.33 to 220.46 and base metals .56 to 99.03.

The Toronto market made a mild-day reversal and closed with a small gain Wednesday.

The industrial index, down 1.55 in the first three hours of trading, closed at 166.19, up .20.

Earlier signs of a possible selling climax were discounted.

Analysts said that although Wednesday's volume was the heaviest in any day since July 7, there was not enough activity to warrant calling the reversal a selling climax.

Volume was 2,702,000 shares compared with 2,612,000 Tuesday.

Toronto's change in direction followed a similar pattern in New York.

However, Wall Street analysts said strength was more primarily due to rumors that a large trust company planned to lower its prime rate from 8½ per cent. The company denied the rumors.
